OMPLEXION CREAM

GREATEST TOILET LUXURY MADE

Cleanses, softens, purifies, whitens and beautifies the skin. Soap and water only cleanse superficially.

Mme, Yale says: A little Al-mond Blossom Complexion Cream should be applied every time the face and hands are washed. It removes the dust, soot, grime, smut and smudge from the interstices of the skin and makes the surface smooth as velvet.

A daily necessity at home and abroad; a treasure when traveling by land and water, or when on an outing of any kind, and particularly prized at a seaside or mountain resort. Protects the skin from cutting winds, burning rays of the sun and every injurious effect of the elements. Prevents and cures abnormal redness of the nose or any part of the face, and that pur plish hue due to exposure to cold, also chapping, chafing, cold sores, fever blisters and all irritation of the skin. It is the greatest known specific for burns; takes the fire out more quickly than anything else, soothes, heals and prevents scars and suppuration. Indispensable for use of infants and every member of the household. An exquisite natural beautifier. A grateful application after shaving. Excellent for massage purposes. Now in two sizes. Mme. Facial Beauty For and About Women Folks

If You Were Your Husband. WRITER of the Kansas City Star delivers a few "home thrusts" in this style: If you were your husband-

Would you feel really proud of a wife who never wore anything around the house except wrappers and kimonos? You'd only be with her, you know, about five waking hours in the twenty-four. Don't you think you'd like to see her in a trim shirt waist suit or a pretty house dress once in a while? Or with hair waved and curled as in the old days of your courtship?

Would you really enjoy taking the baby out for a ride every Sunday morning after breakfast, when the Sunday papers and a cumfy chair invited you to rest on the one day the week gives you at home? Don't you think you might rebel and say that baby could ride six days in the week and stay at home on the seventh, at least until you'd read those papers?

If there are more babies, perhaps three or four regular juvenile steps, don't you think you'd enjoy an occasional Sunday afternoon with your wife without any bables along? Of course you'd be tremendously proud of your little olive branches. You would sacrifice the new spring overcoat and wear darned socks, as lots of blessed fathers do. that Mary Jane might have a Dresden sash and Baby Billy a leather sailor hat, but then you would get a triffe tired of that Sunday afternoon procession at the head of a small child party. Besides, though your wife might realize this fact, you'd sometimes want her to yourself, to roam, wander lighted with her naivete. through the park and imagine you were young again, both of you. If you were a man instead of a woman you'd realize that husbands sometimes carry around quite a on the sleeve of last year's overcont.

Would you like to hear your wife ad- humility was proverbial. your eldest boy thus: Johnny, don't tilt back in your chair at the table. The fact that your father has done kitchen and the drawing-room; to have teteit all his life, and his father before him, a-tete chairs in the dining-room and cookdoesn't make it polite." You'd feel that ing stoves in the parlor; to have every little rap over Johnny's shoulder, but you society woman her own cook and every would not stop the annoying habit half as cook her own society woman; to make quickly as if your wife talked to you deli-

And each of the recitals will be accompanied by an expression of martyrdom that yound make you feel that as a business proposition you are a rank failure and you ought to drop off life's ledge and leave your ought to drop off life's ledge and leave your wife for whom they had been hunting for years. Within the last few weeks letters offering marriage have been pouring in upon the erstwhile society bud.

Some of the writers are young and wealthy and, as they modesty state, handsome. Others are poor, but honest, virtuous and industrious. They are all fine men. What Miss Wood is going to do about the offers was a mystery even after she had wife the big life insurance policy you're wife the big life insurance policy you're wife for whom they had been hunting for years. The latest thing in small leather bags has struggling to carry. Of course you know that Brown doesn't pay his bills unless he's forced into a corner by a claim collector. You know that he's drinking a bit too much to drown his financial worries, but you don't tell that to your wife, because she would tell Mrs. Brown some day in a neighorhood quarrel, and then you'd be drawn borhood quarrel, and then you do that into the affair.

Would you like to have the shortcomings of your wife's servant served up as a conversational bill of fare night and morning? Perhaps you have a dozen incompetent boys and girls working for you downtown, and you never think of burdening your wife's ears with the petty annoyances of your daily grind in the shop or office. And don't you think that after a while you would begin to wonder whether your wife's bump of domesticity was not undersized? You might even think that perhaps she and not the servant girl was to blame.

Think it over. The man behind the newson the printed page.

The Woman and the Trousers. The governor of Ohio has just been called upon to take a decided stand in relation to matter which involved fully as much delicacy in treatment as the question of calling out the militia, relates the Chicago Inter Ocean, and we are glad to be able to say that he has passed through the ordeal without losing political prestige or sacrificing the good opinion of his personal friends. A woman living in the southern part of the state, whose name is withheld, addressed a letter to the executive stating that she was compelled to work outdoors a great deal in the management of a farm, and that masculine attire would, therefore, be much more convenient for her than feminine. Would the governor for this reason, she asked, be kind enough to grant her a permit to substitute trousers for petticoats? If so, would he be kind enough to send the permit by return post?

Now, to appreciate the seriousness as well as the delicacy of this request, one must strive to put oneself in the place of the governor of Ohio. If he were an ordinary citizen he might write, of course, 'Yes, by all means; why not?" or, "Certainly, wear 'em if they are more comfortable," or, "You can wear pants if you want to; 1 don't care," or, "With all my heart, and if you haven't got any on hand I'll send you a pair of mine."

However, when a man is a governor he must be constantly on his guard. He must consider the most trivial question in all of its bearings. He must be careful not to do anything that might cetablish a dangerous precedent or to say anything that might be used against him in the next campaign. So when the governor of Ohio received this letter he submitted it to the attorney general, who looked up the law and found that the permit could be granted only by a special act of the legislature. Then, statesman and diplomat and wise politician that he is, the governor wrote to the woman whose name is withheld telling her that he regretted exceedingly that he could not grant her permission to wear rousers, and suggested that she see tha nember of the legislature from her district and request him to introduce a bill at the next session which would enable er to secure her freedom from petticoats. We have not a copy of this letter, but it a easy to surmise that the governor hoped the day was at hand when the American woman might wear a pair of trousers withut asking the consent of any man, and if he had the honor to be governor when that glorious day arrived, nothing would give ifm more pleasure than to affix his signa-

The whole is enclosed compactly in a bag not so large as that ordinarily carried by shoppers.

That necessity is the mother of invention is nowhere proved more conclusively than in the furniture which is designed for the modern flat. Progress has been as rapid in the line of baby coaches as in any other. A few years ago the only kind of baby coach known was the big, old fashioned willow one, that took up too much room and was far too clumsy and heavy for a woman to handle easily. Then came the little gocart, which was halled by mothers with delight. The latest in this line is a folding one that shuts up almost like a camp chair and can be stored in a corner of a closet. hold a mousquetaire giove simply, are among the novelties. among the novelties.

In the city of Honolulu there is a female policeman. Moreover, she is a woman of means who undertakes the duty for the fun of the thing, and refuses to accept payment. She is Miss Helen Wilder, and her father is a wealthy sugar planter. no more than caresses, of course.

A remarkable issustration of unselfishness and indifference to money was brought to light recently in La Salle county, Illinois. Joseph F. Worsley died last winter near Mendota, leaving an estate valued at $113,765. The will provided for the division of the estate in three parts, the heirs being John O. Worsley of Bronough, Mo., and his two sisters, Amanda and Sarah Worsley, living near Mendota. When the latter werenotified that the sum of $75,000 was to be divided equally between them, they both declined to receive a cent of it, declaring that the money would only be a nuisance to them; that they had all they wanted to make them happy and contented for the remainder of their lives, and that their brother could make a better use of it than they.

Robin Hanged by a Hair. Dangling in mid-air as it was swayed by a strong wind, a pretty red breasted robin that for several days was arranging a sumnier home in a beautiful maple tree in front of Dr. E. G. Douglass' residence in Lapeer, Mich., was found in cold death.

The robin had occupied the same place years before, and Mrs. Douglass had watched the bird from a chamber window as it gathered the material with which to build its nest.

Among the things used in constructing the foundation of the nest was some horse hair. This was securely tied to make the several parts strong. But one of these hairs after being tied formed a loop, and in attempting to leave the nest the robin ran its head into the looped hair and could not

TO OVERBURDENED HOUSEWIVES

Did you ever look into the tiny, compact kitchen of a dining car, or the cook's galley aboard ship, without wonder and envy? Doesn't the thought of standing in one spot and reaching every necessity for preparing a meal appeal to you? Isn't it easier than traveling back and forth from the table to the pantry, the cupboard, the storeroom?.

> Did you ever think how many thousands of steps are needlessly taken, and how much time is wasted by a lack of concentration of kitchen necessities.

The McDougall idea offers a remedy for this waste of time and effort. Clever archftects and artists have been set to work. Domestic Science experts have been consulted. The result of their combined effort is shown in the McDougall Kitchen Cabinet, the greatest labor-saving device ever planned for the housewife.
