WINT RECEPTION AFFAIR OF THE WEEK

Some Wonder is Expressed Over the Fact that Eligible Bachelors Are Being Secured by Out-of-Town Girls.

The Woman with the Reins. You take your course with careless rein And airy hand through park and square-Too well you know the paths of pain:

And who would dream you could disdain Life's curb and bondage, smiling there You take your course with careless rein

Who guesses at Love's broken chain And blood-flecked bit, from your light air? Too well you know the paths of pain?

Your laughing lips not once complain Of each old pang you used to bear-You take your course with careless rein. Nor shall men see Love's fire again

Beneath your smile so debonair-Too well you know the paths of pain.

So, hot, rebellious heart, remain
Still glad and smiling to their stare,
And take your course with careless rein—
Toe well you know the paths of pain.
Arthur Stringer in Smart Set.

Last week was quiet almost to the extent of being dull. There were a few large things, but most of them were benefit affairshygienic luncheons and the like. Of course, there was General and Mrs. Wint's reception at the Paxton hotel Wednesday evening and, of course, that was brilliant as only military affairs can be, but aside from that there was little of real consequence. This week is not promising; not even as much so as last week was, but then the season is over and one does not expect much.

The opening of the new forty-acre golf course was the occasion of a goodly gathering at the Country club yesterday afternoon and evening. However, the dinner Hst was not increased as perceptibly as might have been expected. There were several parties, but few of any size. Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Meikle's dinner for Miss Anais Bryne and Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Beeson's dinner were the largest. The others averaged three or four members each. Among those who entertained were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Barker, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Foye, Mr. N. P. Dodge, jr., Colonel and Mrs. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Hostetter and

What is the matter with the Omaha girls? One can't refrain from asking the question, considering the rate at which the local bachelors have been furnishing the engagement announcements of late. And this week brings another-and to an out-of-town girl, too. One by one the eligible men are being won by visiting girls until unless some of the young women follow the example of their guests and go and do likewise, the very young man is going to be even more in demand before long than he is now, or it may become necessary to take some of the old standbys

The busybodies are saying that one of the long overdue announcements is to come very soon now-possibly this week. Perhaps their suspicions have been aroused by a number of prospective affairs in honor of the bride-elect, and perhaps there is more substantial indication that the wedding is not far off. There are certain matrons in society who say they have seen part of the trousseau and that it indicates June wedding; and besides this an officer at army headquarters looked very wise and declined to talk when beset with inquiries by a number of young women Wednesday evening at the Wint reception -and this officer is in a position to know.

It happened at the Boyd Saturday evening. He sat midway of one of the long rows in the parquet. To his left were several elderly people of portly proportions and to his right a quartet of young women -school teachers who have not yet grown old in the service. He was alone and so found it convenient to leave his seat after the first act to chat with the occupants of one of the boxes, and, looking first to the right and then to the left, decided to disturb the young women. He apologized as they all stood up and unpinned their hats from the back of the seats in front, holding them ploft with one hand and clutching their programs, operabags etc. in the other as he crowded past. Just as the curtain was rising again he returned and somebody in the row behind made audible remarks about people who ought make a point of securing aisle seats. At the close of the second act he arose again and crowded out past the teachers gerously as he passed. "Awfully sorry to disturb," he said as he reached the aisle.

Few announcements have been received with more sincere regret than that of the transfer of Colonel Byrne to the Philipines, which was made last week. Colone Byrne will sail the last of the month and will be accompanied by his daughters. Mrs. Byrne will remain here with their three sons until the close of school and will probably join her busband in the fall. During their station here the Byrnes have made many friends. Miss Anais Byrne, their daughter, was one of last winter's debutantes and has been one of the most popular young women in society. Colonel Byrne and his daughters will leave for the west very soon and several social affairs have been planned for Miss Byrne before their departure

One lady, never mind who, invited a lot of her friends to come over one afternoon during the week. She laid special stress n the request that each wear a sunbonnet. The visitors arrived, each equipped with a sunbonnet, and wondering what was coming off. They were not left long in uncertainty, for the hostess furnished each with a long knife and led the way to the lawn, where a busy half hour was spent in uprooting dandelions.

land is proven by the fact that every occasion on which Irish songs or plays or stories or lectures are presented is the sign for a large audience. The Young Ladies' auxiliary of St. Mary's Avenue Congregational church have undertaken the management of the Kelly recital, which will take place in that church auditorium as stated above.

In connection with the program Mr. Kelly will give some interesting anecdotes about personalities of Irish prominence and also incidents relating to some of the songs that will be sung. This is the first time for the program to be given in its absolute entirety. Several of songs have just recently been unearthed by publishers, and a strange and peculiar coincidence is that while there is no publisher in Ireland bringing out the older Irish songs, it is being done by an English firm which is simply seeing a great opportunity.

Several songs will be entirely unknown to the modern audi-nce, and will be found especially interesting, as they were discovered last summer in the old book ar. music shops of Dublin by Mr. Kelly, Every song is true to some distinctive trait of the people and not a few have been secured at great trouble and cost, and will be sung from manuscript.

KRUG PARK IS NOW A REALITY Fifth Annual Season Opened Yesterday with Record-Branking Crowd and Royal Canadian Band.

Manager Cole pushed the button which ut the wheels at Krug park into motion nd started the resort upon its fifth annual season. The entire place has practically been made anew and the changes for the better are really astonishing. Every detail has been so carefully looked after hat nothing has been left undone. Hundreds of new trees have been planted and thousands of the rarest flowers adorn the deverly designed flower beds. Electric ights have been added to what has heretofore been adequate until now it is really brilliant and exceptionally pretty. Many new walks have been laid out and the reservation has been thrown open and settees provided to enable nearly double of the capacity to entertain the public. The Royal Canadian band, under the direction of Bandmaster J. M. Finn dispelled any question that may arise as to ts ability. Ten'soloists are numbered upon its roster.
