

BURKETT PLAN IS FAVORED

Convention Nomination for Senator Im- presses Millard as the Thing.

EXPECTS TO HAVE SOME OPPOSITION

Senior Senator Says It Is Too Early to Announce Who Will Manage His Campaign.

"That announcement came about in rather an accidental manner, being unintentional at the time," said Senator Millard, in speaking of his candidacy for re-election. "However, it is true that I intend to be a candidate to succeed myself. Many good and earnest friends through the state had been urging me to make a declaration, so that they would know just what to expect in the matter. They did not want to be in the position of getting pledged, even by implication, to someone else and so it is just as well that the announcement was made."

The senator said he would not start in to make an active canvass for some time. "I consider it altogether too early," said Senator Millard, "and for a few months at least I shall have to be attending to other business here in Omaha. As is known, I have been rather under the weather for some time, but expect that being at home and putting aside the worries of public life to a large extent will enable me to recuperate in good shape."

As he spoke the senator did not give much indication of being seriously ailing, in fact, getting home again and going about his duties here seems to have been just the tonic that was needed to restore to him much of his old-time robustness.

Speaking of the method to be followed in the campaign for a re-nomination, Senator Millard said he expects that the method of nomination by convention is to prevail hereafter in this state.

"That seems to be settled in large measure," said he. "While I have rather favored the old established custom, we must be willing to accommodate ourselves to new conditions that find favor with the people. In Nebraska hereafter the convention nomination plan will prevail, so far as I can judge. Whatever suits the mass of the republican party in such a matter will suit me."

No Manager Selected.
Asked as to the selection of a man to direct his campaign, Senator Millard said he has not given the selection of a field manager any thought as yet.

"My indisposition and the press of other business have kept me thinking of matters entirely apart from my candidacy for re-election. Besides, it is too early yet to be launching on the people an undertaking of this kind."

On the question of possible opposition, Senator Millard frankly said he expects there will be other candidates. He had no personal knowledge of who is to enter the lists, he said, and so did not care to discuss that phase of the campaign ahead.

An extra session of congress, to meet in the middle of October, is regarded as a certainty by Senator Millard, as it is by his colleague, Senator Burkett. In this connection, mention having been made of the senatorial hearing on the railway rate question, the senior Nebraska senator said: "It was with the keenest regret that I found myself unable to attend and participate in the sessions of the committee. That promises to be one of the most memorable hearings ever held in this country on the subject, and the character of the men taking part on both sides cannot fail to bring results. Any man could have gained valuable information and enlightenment on the great question at issue from attending those sessions."

A HUNDRED YEARS MAY COME AND GO AND STILL THE COLUMBIA GRAPHOPHONE will repeat the sayings, the songs and the music of today—as sweet as the voice itself—as strong and impressive as the very words out of the mouths of powerful speakers—as rich and enchanting as the music direct from the instruments in the hands of the great masters. It's mighty nice to know that you can have it at any hour in the day or night and with no expense or exertion. Have you a baby in your home? If you have it will be worth $50 to let that baby hear a Columbia Graphophone. It is a whole little world of music and fun all in itself.
The fact of its winning the Grand Highest Award at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition is argument enough to make you want one. You can get one practically free.
