

CARRYING NEWS TO GRANT

Thrilling Episode in the History of Sherman's March to the Sea.

DARING EXPEDITION OF AN IOWA OFFICER

On a River Fringed by an Enemy—The Meeting with General Grant.

The march to the sea was completed and we had turned north to do unto South Carolina as we had done to Georgia. The western army was now in the heart of the swamps and wilderness of North Carolina.

The march to the sea was a grand holiday for us compared with this. In spite of all South Carolina was a tiny northern soldier who never put foot on her sacred soil.

The little launch, covered over with cotton bales, had scarcely landed, when Sherman announced to the staff that on the next day he would put somebody on that tiny craft.

I was to go for the light; we were at the village of the river; the headquarters were in the big arsenal built there by the American government.

General Sherman quietly remarked that the dispatches to the government at Washington, and, above all, to Grant before Richmond. Who was to go?
