Second, an imperfect battle formation, which indicated that Rojestvensky did not sxpect to meet Togo off Tsushima.

Third, the weather, the direction of the wind and the sunlight were unfavorable to the Russians, Togo having the sun behind him and firing with the wind, while the Russians had the sunlight in their syes and were firing against the wind.

Fourth, the Russians wasted their ammunition and eventually ran short. It is believed that the surrender of Nebogatoff was because his ammunition had been exhausted.

Fifth, the marked inferiority of the Russian gunnery.

Some experts criticise Rojestvensky for that Rojestvensky was entire fleet off Tsushima. Many believe that it was necessary for Togo to take a station at a pivotal point from which it would be possible to intercept the Russians entering either Tsushima, Tsugaru or Soya channels. Calculations placed this pivotal point on the west coast, near the western entrance of Tsugaru channel. Togo's real whereabouts were known to many Japa nese, but the secret was successfully guarded; an example of the willingness and ability of the Japanese to preserve military secrets.

Indignation Against Nebogatoff. ST. PETERSBURG, June 3.-1:35 a. m. Feeling in the Admiralty against Rear Admiral Nebogatoff continues to run high, the majority of the naval authorities being deaf to the appeals of the few who insist that the admiral's action in surrendering his warships should not be condemned until the circumstances become fully known The majority say they could forgive any thing but surrender, and point to the precedent set in the case of the Russian warship Raphael, which in 1829, during the Russo-Turkish war, struck its colors to three Turkish ships which surrounded it. Nicholas I meted out a terrible punish ment to the officers and crew of the Raphael, ordering that all of them should be shot after their exchange and directing that if the ship should ever be recaptured its infamous history should be blotted out by the total destruction of the vessel. The Raphnel, strange to say, was recaptured thirty-four years later at Sinope, during the Crimean war, a son of the captain tle, and to this son fell the task of executing the dead emperor's orders to destroy it. Many naval authorities declare that the emperor should reserve the same fate for Admiral Nebogatoff. While hope for the safety of the protected cruisers Oleg and Aurora has been generally aban- to crossed wires. doned, some of the naval authorities be lieve that their commanders, realiging that

The Novoe Vremya has taken up the suggestion of Admiral Avallan, head of the Russian Admiralty department, that the disaster to the Russian fleet does not necessarily mean the collapse of the campaign in the far east as the text for an article preaching a vigorous prosecution of the war on land to the bitter end. One day, it having gone beyond the privilege of criticism accorded to the newspapers in this hour of disaster to an extent which exceeded the patience of the authorities. The paper attempted to print over eleven solid columns of rabid criticism and antigovernment tirade. A few copies have been printed for private circulation and they show little but white paper divided by column rules, with one large space surrounded by a significant black border.

MAYOR MOORES ONE OF THE WITNESSES

Logan to rebut the testimony of Mrs. Eva curred on December 29, while Smith said it occurred on December 18. He said he heard mond worn by Mrs. Swartz. Shercliffe denied having the conversation. G. W. Atkins, county auditor of Harrison county, testified that the records did not show that O. D. Wilson was a deputy sheriff when Shercliffe was taken to the penitentiary. The defense claimed that Wilson was a special deputy and the witness did not dispute that.

"Are you acquainted with J. M. Davis?" was asked J. L. Hall of Woodbine, a county supervisor of Harrison county. "Am I acquainted with him? Yes, sir," and the witness put the emphasis on the "What is his reputation?"

"It is bad," and the words were fairly snorted out. On cross-examination Attorney Egan

"Do you remember that when you were candidate for county supervisor that Davis in his paper did not support you?" "No, sir; I rever read his paper." "Didn't he print a dissertation on you and your colleagues which it was claimed George Egan wrote?" The witness didn't remember about that "You have it in for Tom Dennison, haven't you?" "No. sir."

"You thought he should have employed you in this case, didn't you?" The court saved the witness from answering. A. M. Berry, a newspaper correspondent and collector from Logan, testified that

Davis had a good reputation. "Did you have collections against Stebbens and Judge Arthur?" asked Egan. Beeson objected and Egan was admonished by the court to be more careful about following the rules of the court or he would

Dr. A. B. Somers for the prosecution said he didn't know Dennison, but that his reputation was bad.

"Mr. Somers, isn't there a case pending between you and Mr. Dennison in the Douglas county district court?" asked Cen-

"Yes sir." "That's all."

"No it isn't, either," said the prosecution as Somers was about to leave the stand. 'What is the nature of that suit?" Over the objections of the defense the witness testified that he was a member of the executive committee of the Civic Fderation, which Dennison had sued for libel and the case is still pending.

C. F. Harrison of the Omaha Real Estate exchange said the reputation of Dennison was bad. That ended the morning session.

Afternoon Session.

With the exception of a little discussion about whether any changes had been made in the Hooker account book since Hooker had testified, the afternoon session of court was devoted to hearing witnesses in rebuttal and establishing the reputation of Tom Dennison. The prosecution announced it had in all its evidence at 2:15 and shortly o'clock tomorrow, when the arguments will begin. Attorney Beeson, through C. G. McMillan a photographer, attempted to show that since Tuesday the Hooker account book had been tampered with. He said some one had made some erasures around the word Shercliffe" so that it would be impossible to tell whether the word "King" had been written there. Hooker had testified that he had erased the name King and inserted Shercliffe's name when he got to Legan. Judge Green ruled out this testimony, holding that the state should have shown the book to the jury for examination if it

Dr. I. C. Wood, Colonel Charles Bolter and H. A. Smith, cashler of the Logan bank, all testified for the defense that the reputation of J. W. Davis was good. Mayor Frank E. Moores of Omaha was the next witness called by the defense to testify to the reputation of Dennison and claimed that no erasure had been made.

here occurred the most dramatic incident of the trial, concluding with the audience giving the mayor a round of applause when he left the stand.

"Were you ever in prison," asked Connell

"At Libby prison in 1864-5." And then in answer to Connell's questions Mayor Moores detailed his war experience.

"Did you ever hold office? "Yes sir, I was for eight years clerk or he district court." "Go ahead:

"Well, after that I laid back on my aurels until the dear people who could not get along without me elected me mayor. For three times they have done that in "What is the reputation of Tom Dennison or truth and varacity?" 'It is good, sir. It is good, very good.' Cross-Examines Mayor.

Smith, of the prosecution, then began the ross examination. "You are particularly interested in Mr. Dennison, are you not?"

"No sir, not particularly interested." "Well, he has been one of your hench-"No sir. His has fought me and fought for me. The last time I ran for district clerk he fought me, and I was defeated. Then what d'd you do?"

"I fell back on my laurels and was called by the people who couldn't get along without me, and elected mayor." "Did Tom Dennison support you?" "He has for 'he last six years."

"He is one of the dear people then, is 'Yes sir, Judge Smith, he is one of the dear people and the kind that men want when they are running for office. You should know that. You want voters and he is the kind of man that counts then."

"Mr. Moores, weren't you charged with embezzlement when you were district clerk and didn't the supreme court so hold?" "To a certain extent the supreme court held that I was an embezzler.

"That is all," said Mr. Smith. "Tell the jury about that embezzlement charge," said Connell. "When I was district clerk I acted for seven judges and $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 passed through my hands in estates. When I went out of office some of these estates had not been settled up, and the county sued me for $30,000 witness fees. That came about in this way. Costs in a case would run up to $20 or more and the witness fees would also count up. When a man owed costs and he had witness fees coming to him, I gave him eredit for his witness fees and kept the money to offset what was owing to me The supreme court held I should not have collected those fees. I was easy and did not make the lawyers put up the costs in the case. I sued the county for $30,000 and got judgment for $32,000. I had my settlement with the county and for six weeks my accounts were gone over, checked up and the county demanded, and I paid to the county $3,800, and I got judgnent for $32,000.

Dramatic Scene with Thomas. "That is the kind of embezzler the people of Omaha have elected mayor three times and I am still in." "Who are some of these parties that have charged you with embezziement; has it been Elmer Thomas and others?" asked

"Yes, sir, Elmer Thomas and quite a number of the members of the Civic Fed-"And what about I. J. Dunn?"

"He has been one of the worst men. He s the attorney for Walter Moise. On recross-examination Smith said:

"Now Mr. Mayor, I am not desiring to say anything unkind and I don't want you to so understand. But as a matter of fact did Elmer Thomas ever have any thing to do about your being charged with embezzlement?"

Mayor Moores answered: "In the city of Chicago when he played the grandMand act and stood up there in the Methodist church and talked about this machine, of which I am charged with being a member, when he said: 'We have got a mayor who is a crook and embezzler. but we thank God he is now away off from here suffering with an incurable disease, intimating that I had a cancer of the throat which comes from bad diseases sometimes, and he said that before all these people in Chicago in that church That is where he-

Going on with the cross-examination Smith asked the mayor if he was not enbittered against the prosecution because the federation had fought him, ciadly. "I know personally that you are a mighty good fellow, Judge Smith, but officially I ent moment neither belligerent is anxious do not. You know how that is as well as for peace.

The mayor then reverted to the embezzlement charges and said:

"Before I had secured my settlement with the county and was elected mayor, Ed- tiations until the expedition in course of ward Rosewater came to me and said I must pay to the county the $1.800 which | vostok. t was claimed, I owed and wait and get the money the county owed me through pay that money back before taking my owing me $30,000."

As to Dennison's Character,

T. J. Mahoney, president of the Civic Federation, was called by the prosecution and said the reputation of Dennison was bad. He was asked if the Civic Federation had paid or promised to pay money to Shercliffe and the court sustained ob jections to the question.

C. S. Hayward of Omaha said he was nember of the executive committee of the Civic Federation, and that Dennison had a bad regutation. "You are being sued by Mr. Dennison now, are you not?" "Yes, sir, as a member of the Civic Federation. "Mr. Mahoney is a part of that suit, isn't

"Are you desirous of convicting Tom Den ison to get out of that suit?" "No. sir; that never entered my head.

"Haven't you been actively assisting Elmer Thomas in this prosecution?" "Perhaps I have." "Didn't you write to Jefferson City to get the testimony of a convict against Denni on and Chief Donahue?" Thomas objected that Connell was trying to ring in the proceedings against Chief Donahus before the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners. After a wrangle the witness said he had

'I am opposed to gambling." "Do you remember 108 South Thirteenth street, where Dennison ran his policy shop and don't you remember collecting rents

"As a clerk I probably did." "Did you give him any receipts."

"I don't remember." "When the grand jury was in session didn't you know that you were being in vestigated for renting a building for gamding purposes and didn't you go to Dennison and beg him to give you back those recelpts?

"No, sir! No, sir! It is not true. I didn't ask him for any receipts." William Fleming next testified that Dennison had a bad reputation. Evidence All In.

H. C. McMillian was then called by the rosecution, which attempted to show that the Hooker account book had been tampered with. When this was ruled out the state announced that it was through with its testimony.

The lawyers then began to request Judge Green to allow an adjournment until morning so that Beeson of the prosecution would have time to fix up his speech. "We are willing, your honor, to allow this case to go to the jury without argunent," said Connell, and he was seconder by Cochran, Egan and Junkin. The proffer was not accepted by the prosecution. It was at this juncture that Mrs. Dennison, who had been a constant visitor at court each day from 9 o'clock in the morning until 6 in the evening suddenly broke down and became hysterical. Mr. Donnison and Mrs. Edwards quickly escorted her from the room and little commotion was made. It was some time before Mrs. Dennison was removed to her room. The attorney's then continued their pleas for adjournment when Thomas suddenly maid: "Your honor, I wish you would make Connell quit talking to the jury." At the time Connell and Fallon of the prosecution were talking together at the end of the attorney's table Connell is talking to Fallon," said Junkin. "Yes, he is talking at Fallon, but he is talking to the jury," answered Thomas. The court took no notice of the incident.
