Why Smith Went to Washington. OMAHA, June 6, 1905 .- To the Editor of The Bee: My attention has been called to seven-line editorial that appeared in your olumns on May 15. In this editorial you insinuate that my recent appearance before the senate committee on interstate commerce at Washington was at the instigation of the railroad companies and because I was one of a class of "manufacturers and jobbers that are close to the traffic managers." As a matter of fair play I believe am entitled to reply to that aspersion. went to Washington because I believed the proposed governmental regulation of rates would work in a detrimental manner, not only to my own business and the business interests of Omaha, but also to the agricultural interests of Nebraska and the middle west, on which all our prosperity is based. I paid my own expenses to appear before the committee-both railroad fare and other incidental expenses. I did not receive one penny from any railroad or railroad official, nor any promise of remuneration in any manner, shape or form. I am day of the board of trustees of the college well enough known in this community to held its annual meeting. Granting to the government power to fix rates, distance tariffs, in my judgment, are inevitable. Under such a regime Omaha and all other distributing points would be severely injured and the same condition would confront the agricultural industries of this whole western country. I firmly believe that the wealth and prosperity of the west has been largely built up by the prevailing custom of low rates for the long haul and it will be an unhappy day indeed for this western country should this state of affairs be changed or greatly modified.

ATTENDANCE AT PERU NORMAL GROWING

General Manderson Appears Before State Board of Equalization in the Matter of the Burlington Assessment.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, June 7 .- (Special.)-This afternoon the supreme court listened to the arguments of the attorneys interested in the biennial election law case. The opponents of the bill urge that it flies directly n the face of the constitutional provision which requires that there be an election each year. This language is so clear, explicit and unambiguous that it was claimed there could be no other interpretation. On the other hand, the friends of the measure insist that the provision referred to is complied with from the fact that the bill does not abolish the annual election directly, leaving it theoretically, while providing that all elective officials shall be chosen in the even-numbered years. In this connection was also claimed that the provision requiring that the supreme judges be selected in the odd numbered years was merely directory, intended merely for the con-venience of the state, to be superseded as oon as the legislature could take the matter in hand. The lawyers appearing against the bill in the argument today were C. S. Allen, T. C. Munger of Lincoln and L. S. Pemberton of Beatrice, as friends of the ourt and representatives of O. B. Polk of this city, who made up the test case by offering a petition to have his name placed on the independent republican ticket as a andidate for regent of the State university. The attorneys defending the measure were Lysle Abbott of Omaha, former Chief Justice Sullivan, Roscoe Pound, Attorney General Norris Brown and F. I. Foss. The attorneys for the relator urged that he purpose of the constitution framers was clearly to prevent the election of the juound over in $300. Both parties gave dicfal and educational officers of the state at the same time that the political officers were chosen. It was absolutely denied that the framers of that document intended to allow the legislature any latitude in that connection. On the other hand, it was contended that this interpretation is based on the alleged spirit of the constitution and it was denied that such a meaning could be attached to the constitution in view of a declaration stating the specific purpose to be accomplished. The friends of the measure interpret the provision relating to the election of judges could well have been construed meet occurred in the afternoon, at which so as to require the election of the judges in 1876 instead of 1875 under the new constitution, and that therefore the election could have taken place on even-numbered years in perfect accordance with the organic law. The direction that the election be held at the first general election the opponents of the measure said was positive and mandatory, fixing without question the time for the first election in November, 1875, and as the terms of these judges ar two, four and six years, respectively, this provision could not be carried into effect without holding the elections in odd-numbered years. The same argument was made with reference to the regents.

Something like 400 of these little factories have been started in various parts of this country in the past 9 years, and practically all of them have gone the "long journey. Just lately a new one has come to life and evidently hopes to insert itself in public feeling or interest in the matter except to favor by copying the style of the Postum advertising in the papers.

Hessian Fly Has Injured Wheat. According to reports being received by Prof. Bruner of the State university serious damage has been done the wheat crop by the Hessian fly. It is stated that the development of the plant has shown the ravages of the insect in many instances where fields were believed to have been immune. The most common indication is the lopped head, the boring of the fly through the stalk causing it to bend. Prof. Bruner made the following statement:

"Hessian flies are working in the southern and central section of the state and have done damage as far west as Kearney. "It is difficult to tell at this time just what damage has been done, but from reports received from various sections I Judge that it will be extensive. Most of the reports of damage have come from York, Saline, Fillmore and Clay countres."

Rural Schools Doing Good Work. State Superintendent McBrien said today that the awakening in rural school matters is one of the most remarkable things in the recent history of the state. He estimates that fully 2,500 young people will be graduated from the country schools this year. About two-thirds of them are girls, and the average age is 15. He has engagements to attend several of the graduating ceremonies which are usually held in the principal town in each county. This afternoon the State Board of Equalization called General Manderson into consultation as to the proper method of assessing the Burlington branches, whether parts of the system or independently He was called after the board had spent the morning in a fruitless endeavor to agree to the distribution of the total assessment of the Burlington to the branches. An executive session was held.

Governor Mickey announced today that he is satisfied that he will be able to make a good showing if John N. Baldwin subpoenas him to appear as a witness in the tax cases. He said that the board last year had been perfectly fair and that Baldwin had brought as much pressure to bear as any public clamor which he is now seeking to connect with the assessment.

DRUGGISTS ARE IN SESSION AT YORK large Attendance and Much of Ir terest to Trade.

YORK, Neb., June 7 .- (Special.) -- Yesterday nearly every incoming train on the Kansas City & Omaha, the Burlington and the Northwestern railroads brought delegates and members to the annual Nebraska State Pharmaceutical association meeting held here this week. They were met at the depots by friends and the reception committees. In the court room at 4 o'clock C. H. Willson, president, delivered the annual address, which was heartily received. In the evening the druggists met in the court room, where they were welcomed by Mayor M. Sovereign of this city, who told them to make themselves at home and that they had the keys of the city. Henry Gering of Plattsmouth responded to the address of welcome, saying that they had met with such a hearty reception by the citizens and the local committees that he thought they claimed that he never felt more at home in his life when away at a convention than he did right here in York. Mr. George Jerome, druggist of this city, in a short peech welcomed the visiting brothers. This was responded to by Mr. E. L. Willson, who stated that the delegates were already making themselves at home and exhibited what he called a key to the city, saying that several druggists had been provided with them, especially the drug salesmen. When the convention saw the supposed key it was found that it was a small corkscrew. The delegate from the York Commercial club announced to the meeting that the members of the York Commercial club with their women were waiting at the Commercial club rooms to tender a reception to the delegates to the State Druggists' convention and their women. The reception was under the management of the social committee of the club, together with the York druggists' wives. The large Commercial rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion. Flowers and roses were given by a committee of young women to the visitors, and in one corner of the large hall the young women served punch. The evening was most enjoyable. The many delegates were introduced and became better acquainted. The reception lasted until mid-
