Holiness Association to Start New College on Religious Lines.

WORLDLY AMUSEMENTS TO BE ESCHEWED

Secretary of Des Moines Underwriters Compelled to Answer Questions to Grand Jury, but Refuses to Bring Books,

(From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, June 14. - (Special.)-Claiming that the present day colleges and educational institutions give the greater amount of their attention to football and athletics and very little to knowledge and fundamental religious teaching the National Holiness association now belding its camp meeting here has decided to open a university. This will await on the decision as to the permanent location of the annual camp meetings. The association for a number of years has been using the Chautauqua grounds in this city, which it rents, but desires to have grounds of its own. On these grounds will be built a new dea university that will strictly eachew foot ball and kindred worldly amusements. It is claimed by some of the leading men of the association that the leading educational institutions of the day take up foot ball and athletics and then neglect the Bible and from neglect of the Bible drift to infidelity. This they propose to prevent in the school that will be started. A college of liberal arts and theological school will be started first and the university idea will be a development.

Fight Over Insurance. George A. Newman, adjutant of the Iowa department of the Grand Army of the Republic and secretary of the Des Moines Underwriters' association, refused to answer questions asked of him by the grand fury which is investigating alleged illegal insurance rate making, and was taken before Judge McHenry. He was told that he must answer the questions or go to jail. He was refused counsel, the court telling him he would furnish any information. Newman returned and answered the questions, but refused to bring his books, and this afternoon Judge A. H. McVey ordered him to bring the books. Newman claims he is advised by his attorney that he need not bring his books.

ATTEMPT TO POISON A FAMILY Insane Woman Detected in Place to Save Lives.

TIPTON, Ia., June 14 .- (Special.) -- Crouching in the cellarway at Dr. R. S. Bandy's home in Tipton, the police found Mrs. Laura Miller early yesterday morning. In the grip she carried was a quantity of strychnine and a bottle of wood alcohol. Glasses of jam and jellies had been opened in the cellar and in these were found poison. The police believe a plan to poison Dr. Bandy and his family had been frustrated in the nick of time.

This is a strange sequel to the lye-throwing episode in Tipton just a year ago. On that occasion Mrs. Miller was charged with throwing lye in the face of Miss Gail Campbell, Dr. Band's stenographer. It was thought at the time Mrs. Miller had become infatuated with the physician and had grown insanely jealous of the doctor's assistant. Monday night she came to Tipton heavily veiled and carrying a satchel. A number of people recognized her, and fearing some trouble might result, a close watch over her actions was maintained. Mrs. Miller was taken before the commissioners of insanity this morning and adjudged insane and was ordered sent to the Inedependence asylum.

CITY IN TAX TITLE BUSINESS

Fleming Says This Would Be

Good Thing for Omaha to Do Just Now. Tax Commissioner Fleming thinks the city ought to go into the real estate and tax title business if it is to get the best results under the scavenger law sales. He has so recommended to the city council, offering to perform the work, but that body has not yet had time to act upon his suggestions. Mr. Fleming, since his duties as tax commissioner ceased by direction of the new charter, has been acting as the city's representative at the tax sales. He has made a report for the May sale, in which made a report for the May sale, in which he says:

I regard the sale as reasonably successful when all the conditions are considered. The competition, however, was not spirited or great, and until the flaw is fully established great competition cannot be expected. If there were positive guarantee, in the event of failure to obtain title through the operations of the scavenger law, that investors would be refunded their bids at 7 pe; cent interest, as the law provides, the competition and bidding would be increased and result to the interest of the city, 1 believe. The cash returns on Omaha city property sold in May was $2,35; paid in advance of sale on property advertised, $3,246, making a total of $55,564, or practically 50 per cent of the decrees, which were $114,896, on 1,006 pieces of property. It is estimated that there are over 3,000 pieces not yet in decree in which the city is interested.

After consultation with the assistant city attorney, I suggest that the tax commissioner employ his time in furthering the operation of the scavenger law by communication with the owners and investors. With a view of interesting them in the purchase of the certificates held by the city. If no objection is made I shall take up this line of work. be says:

Fifteen colored women sat on the outside of the African Methodist Episcopal church at Eighteenth and Webster streets Wednesday morning considerably worked up. The agitation was not all attributed to the warmth in the atmosphere, for the "Colored Women of Nebraska in Council" were billed for a three days convention at the church and the church was locked. Of the fifteen women who were there none had a key and evidently the whys and wherefores of the church being locked had not been explained to them. Mrs. Minnie Costen is president and Mrs.

The boys were all eager for the return Wednesday morning, but the strict camp rules kept them in their tents until the call, when everything was then done with military precision. After breakfast had been served the tents were struck to the signals of the drums and were loaded into the baggage car, which was waiting. George F. West personally looked after all of the trains run in connection with the camp by the Northwestern road both for the boys in going and coming and also for the special on visitors' day, and all was run on the dot without a hitch.

Captain Palmer, Omaha's postmaster, and Omaha came off victorious at Lincoln in the postmasters' convention yesterday.

Captain Palmer was elected president of the Postmaster's association and Omaha landed the next annual convention, for June, 1906. "We had a hard fight to get the conven tion," gemarked Captain Palmer, who was vitally influential in landing the prize. "We had Lincoln as our competitor and delegates of Lincoln made a good fight. The attendance at Omaha. It is earnestly believed, will be much larger than at Lincoln this year, for the association is growing and will extend further into the North Platte country. Therefore it is not certain that any more evidence will be introduced in the Union Pacific tax injunction hearing in the federal court. Edson Rich and Judge Kelly may, however, decide that further testimony is necessary in which case they will look after it.
