LESSON IN COOKING
 ...AT...
The Peoples Store

An unusual opportunity is being extended to the housekeepers of Omaha in the demonstration lessons in Domestic Science, now being given by Sarah Elizabeth Craig of Boston. The day has passed for the "rule of thumb," and cooking is now recognized as the demonstration of certain understood laws which can only be properly taught by one trained to the teaching. Such an one is Miss Craig, who was graduated from the Boston Cooking School—that pioneer in its field—an institution that has done a great work in establishing cookery as a scientific art.

The lectures are being given on the main floor to the right as you enter the store. As the classes increase more commodious quarters will be provided.

Miss Craig will give a short talk on bread.

This lesson would lead to the discussion of why bread rises unevenly, why it is dry, or coarse in grain, or why the crust is thick or thin or tough. These questions are all important to the housewife, having the health of the household and economy of expenditure at heart, and they are just the problems Miss Craig is ready to meet.

These lessons are given at 10 o'clock in the morning and 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and are entirely free.

A particularly attractive program has been arranged.

MENU, FRIDAY, 10 A. M.
