OLD WEDDING FASHIONS ARE GOING OUT

Desire for Originality and Novelty Leads to the Abandonment of Several Conventional Features of Attendant Ceremonial.

Now that the weddings are about all over, if it was not for the home coming of the college folks the prospects would scarcely be as bright as they are. The return of the young people has set society to dancing again, as usual, figuratively and literally. Two of the largest affairs planned definitely for the next fortnight are dancing parties, and half the matrons who had supposed their entertaining over until fall, especially those who have sons or daughters home from school, find themselves planning something for their entertainment. But, after all, it matters little what the season or the weather is, society likes to dance and, whether it dances in honor of visiting girls or the home coming of future society men and women, it enjoys it about as well as anything that is pro-

The Saturday and Wednesday evening hops and the games, have been seriously missed this season, so seriously, in fact, that one can't wondering what society did before the Field and Country clubs were opened. and 7 o'clock at the Field club last evening and after that there was the dance, The fine afternoon brought out a large attendance for the tennis match in the afternoon, and a good part of the members remained for dinner and to watch if not participate in the dancing later.

Notwithstanding the attractions incidental to the opening of the new Field club house yesterday afternoon the Country club had about its usual crowd out for dinner and the hop later. If anything, there were more dinner parties than usual and they were larger, too.

Is the June wedding really going out of style? Notwithstanding the fact that there have been two royal weddings this month, and that the society chronicles are abnormally extended with accounts of June weddings and brides, their trousseaus and their accomplishments, the word has gone out from those sources where the correct thing socially is supposed to originate that June is no longer the preferred month of those who would depart from the ways of the common folk. But whether the prestige of the month of roses is on the wane or not, it is certain that this season's brides have departed noticeably from the ancient tradition regarding Wednesday as a wed-

Monday for health, Tuesday for wealth, Wednesday the best day of all. Thursday for losses, Friday for crosses, Saturday no day at all.

This is the verse that has guided the bride for generations, but the desire to be unusual seems to have altogether outweighed tradition of late and Thursday and Saturday, in defiance even of superstition, seem to be the preferred days;

And along with the time-honored preferences of month and day are passing also some of the other well established wedding conventionalities. The wedding veil that has so ong done service is in many instances giving place to the wreath of flowers that was once counted suitable only for the Hill in celebration of their twenty-fifth bridesmaids, and even a greater departure is the picture hat. Since photography has been, and even before, the portraits of the flowers and the hostess was assisted by bride and groom in their wedding costume has been one of the most valued records of the day of days, but it has been a set, stiff affair, painted or made after they have returned from the bridal trip, and Marie Dake, who assisted through the usually in some studio. The advent of the kodak and the amateur photographer has changed all this, too, and nowadays the snapshot of the bride is as much a part of the wedding as the handshaking or any of the other things that follow the ceremony

The wedding of Miss Besse Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hall, and Mr. Frank Berteal Moxham of Baltimore will take place June 28. The wedding party will include Miss Lillian Moxham and Miss Christiancy as bridesmaids, Miss Lillian Hall as maid of honor, Mr. Jesse Weir of Little Rock as best man and Messrs. S. K. Hanford, Evan O. Price and Dr. W. L. Shearer as ushers. A number of affairs have been planned in honor of Miss Hall, but the definite dates have not been fixed as yet.

The marriage of Miss Eleanor King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. King, and mer season in full swing so far as the Mr. Laurence B. Whitmarsh, was solemnized Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of the bride. Only immediate dining room-in fact, most of the privileges relatives and a few near friends were of the club excepting the out-of-doors present. The ceremony was performed under a bower of palms on the beautiful lawn, Rev. E. R. Curry of the Calvary Baptist church officiating. The organization during the last week of he Nebraska Federation of Colored Women's Clubs is one of the most progressive steps that have yet been taken by the colored women of the state and promises much for their future usefulness and influence. The uplifting and purifying of the home and making of better citizens is the object of the organization. So far as known there are less than half a dozen clubs of colored women in the state organized for regular women's club work. The Nerth Omaha Woman's club, one of the strongest of these, disbanded three years ago, but two ENCHANTMENT FOR CRECHE weeks ago practically the same wome were reorganized in the Omaha Colored Mothers' club, with Mrs. Minnie Costen president. The Clenlans Woman's club of South Omaha is a progressive organization doing good work in domestic science and branches, while the Art club of other Omaha is also doing good work. Scrosis chantment," the fairyland spectacle at the Colored Women's club of Lincoln is also an active, progressive organization. Aside from these, the other organizations in cluded in the new state federation are church aid societies. Twelve of these are represented in Omaha, South Omaha, Lin coln and Fremont and it is expected that represented.

For the work preliminary to the formal organization and the management of the convention held in Omaha Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week, too much credit cannot be given the women who had part in it. While the majority were inexperienced in the methods of conducting meetings, they were no more so than the average women's club is at the start. Mrs. Elizabeth Lindsey Davis of Chicago of the National Association of Colored Women's Clubs, who superintended the federation, expressed much satisfaction at its result. In speaking of it she said: There are good, intelligent women with good ideas and considerable executive ability in the federation and they ought to and undoubtedly will do good work if they persevere. There is great need of and they are capable of doing a much broader work than is being accomplished in the church societies. These societies have their place. of course, but it is the aim of the National association to get our women out of the rut and the narrowness of these auxiliary circles, where they can work by themselves and for each other. The persistent interference of the ministers at our meeting in Omaha demonstrates the necessity of the olored women working in organizations where they will not be handfcapped by those who do not understand their aims or the work of the woman's club movement. The well intended presence of those colored ministers was a serious detriment to the meeting and if it continues will be a menace to the future usefulness of the organization. Naturally timid and inexperienced, the presence of the men but made the women more so. The ministers have no place in the club meetings and should not attend them."

The organization of the Nebraska society gives twenty-one state federatious to the National association, which includes approximately 20,000 women. There are thirty-one state organizations, but ten of these are not affiliated with the national although it is expected that all will have come in before the next national meeting to be held at Detroit in July, 1906. Without funds to pay traveling expenses of its officers or for prepagandism, it has been necessary to extend the work through thorough and systematic organization in every state, which reports back to the national. "The purity of the home is the colored people's problem of the twentieth entury," said Mrs. Davis last week, "and it is time for the women and mothers to take a hand in its adjustment. This we can do to a large extent through the teaching, the experiences and the influence of the Woman's club. Through the club we must instill in our women a race pride that will frown upon and place the club stamp of disapproval upon everything that tends to lower the standard of the community. Our women can do this and with telling effect. There is a reason for the low standards and ideals that our women hold for their homes. Only fifty years ago they were fresh from the cotton fields with no idea or conception of the sacred relations of the home or the marital vows, and we can not wonder that the marks of those dark years are still upon them We have been and many of us are still ignorant, but we are all so anxious to improve, and many of us have done so. The mission of these uplifted ones is to lend a hand to elevate their millions of sisters on the plantations of the south, in the one room cabins and those herded together in the streets of the cities north and south, and teach them frugality, honesty, cleanliness and industry. We who have had opportunity realize that no race can rise higher than its women and we recognize our great responsibility. See what the club movement has accomplished for the white women and it can do just as much for the colored if we will work."

It is gratifying information to hundreds of Omaha women outside the actual membership that the Young Women's Christian association has at last taken some tangible step toward a new building. The purchase of the triangular property at the southwest corner of Seventeenth and St. Mary's avenue last week places the association in position to begin its actual work for the building, expecting that the assistance that has been promised when a lot should have been acquired, will now be forthcoming. The association has on hand $5,000 of the $15,000 to be paid for the lot and it will be necessary to raise the remaining $10,000 during the next three months. To this end a meeting has been called of 100 self-supporting women of the city, members of the association, Monday evening at the rooms in the Paxton block. Supper will be served and later plans will be devised for raising the money. The American committee, with which the local association is now affiliated, will send one of its national secretaries to Omaha in September to begin the campaign for the building. The purchase of the lot at a figure so far below what it has been expected would have to be paid, will bring the cost of the building and lot within the $100,000 originally asked, and still admit of the erection of a fine building. The Detroit association building, which is the most completely equipped woman's association building in the country, cost $85,000, and judging from that it is estimated that Omaha can have a building as fine as any and still not exceed the original sum asked

The gospel meetings of the Young Women's Christian association have been suspended for the summer. The audience room being inside and necessarily lighted by ar tificial light, is too close and uncomfortable to be used during the summer. The last meeting was held last Sunday, Mrs. W. P. Harford acting as leader.

The Sunshine club of South Branch closed The Sunshine club of South Branch closed its year's work with seventy members, who made up a picnic party at Hanscom park last Saturday afternoon.

At the annual meeting of the Dunder Woman's club the following women were elected officers: President, Mrs. E. A. Benson; vice president, Mrs. J. H. Hamilton secretary, Mrs. T. J.
