The property sought to be reached by Atrneys Wakeley and Cooley for the numerus creditors of the defunct bank is that of the Globe Building company, occupied by the Sherman & McConnell drug company, on the southwest corner of Sixteenth and Dodge streets-one of the most valuable pieces of property in the city.

The point raised by the attorneys for the creditors and depositors is that the purchase price for the property of $25,000 was paid to T. C. Brunner, the owner, by Cadet Taylor, H. O. Devries, Globe Loan & Trust mpany and Glove Savings bank in 1890; hat the title to the property was taken in the name of the Globe Building company, the principal defendant in the present action. The vital point contended for was these facts made a resulting trust in favor of the persons furnishing the purchase price of the property, and that this could be enforced by a creditor who had recov ered judgment against them.

District Court Reversed.

The district court held that as this transaction took place in 1890, the plaintiff, Wickerly and others, were barred by the statute of limitation. The supreme court, however, reversed the lower court and remanded the action for trial and judgment and held that as the property actually belonged to the persons furnishing the purchase money, it was immaterial that the title was taken in the name of the Globe Building company, and the property could be subjected to the plaintiff's judgment after the lapse of any time-in this case fifteen years. Homer to suspend the operation of saloons because Indians could secure liquor legally under the decision of the United States supreme court, the town of Hubbard, a few miles west of Homer, began to bid for the trade of the Indians by letting them know that no limit would be placed upon the quantity of firewater which they could obtain over the bars at that place. The Indians were eager to patronize the new place, and many now drive the eight additional miles for supplies.

The matter was brought to the attention of the superintendent in charge of the agency, and he has decided that the practice must stop. As Hubbard is not on the reservation, it is impossible to convict the liquor dealers under the federal law as at present construed, and the superintendent will file suits against them in the state court under the terms of the Slocumb law, which forbids the sale of liquor to in Indians in the state.

the law may be totally defective. A case may be made against some person in this county and taken to Washington, but the matter has not been determined at this time.
