A MISTAKE AND ITS CONSEQUENCES

A large furniture car loaded with DRESSERS, CHIFFONIERES and SIDEBOARDS was shipped by an eastern factory to a dealer here. This shipment was made contrary to instructions through a mistake in the shipping department and on this account were refused by the consignee. We were fortunate in securing the entire consignment at a big discount, and will place the lot on sale MONDAY, JUNE 27TH. OAK DRESSERS, OAK CHIFFONIERES, OAK SIDEBOARDS—all with French bevel plate mirrors—will go at fully 40 per cent below regular prices. WATCH SUNDAY'S PAPERS.

FEEDING TIME FOR BIG FISH

The markets are headed and eviscerated before use. The cod and herring are halved, the backbone deftly removed with one sweep of the knife. The rest of the fish is cut into strips of different lengths. In summer a great deal of live food, such as minnows, snails, angle worms, small crabs and crustaceans, such as sand hoppers, is used, being better for the collection in general. In winter marketable foodstuffs are largely consumed. A special collector is kept busy the year round foraging in adjacent bay and ocean shores to keep the fishes' larder well stocked. The average board bill for the aquarium's guests for a month is $100.
Some New Arrivals.
Among the chief specimens of the aquarium at present, from its size as well as from the fact that it is almost new to the general eye, is the curious sea cow, or manatee, from Lake Worth, Florida, probably the only one in captivity. The animals in their wild habitat are very shy and cautious, disappearing immediately upon approach. Owing to their peculiar tropical habits, they are given special treatment and care, such as a suitable kind of sea grass, between 70 and 72 degrees, for the water of their pool and a sufficient quantity of nourishing food. Eel grass and lettuce leaves strongly tempt their appetite. The former, however, is used in more abundance than the latter, a bucketful usually given for a meal.
The manatee is a female, eight and one-half feet long, weighing 900 pounds, and was captured by "Alligator Joe" at Palm Beach in a large drag seine of extra strong manila hemp made for the purpose. Numerous attempts were made at different times for a month, and seven manatees escaped and broke through the net before one was finally obtained. The female was placed about June of the last year in a tide-lined pool, twenty feet long by thirteen feet wide, with a depth of four feet of water. The latter is renewed nightly.
The feeding of the animal is watched with unusual interest by the visitors. Mr. W. De Nyse, with a suspended basket of sea grass, can coax the manatee to raise her head and neck completely out of the water. Sea cows have a peculiar structure, having no front teeth, hind limbs or hip bones, but a huge beaverlike tail. Their bones are said to be the heaviest known among mammals. The best view of the creature is obtained when the water is drained from the pool for tank cleaning, when the whole form is strikingly outlined against the

A LESSON IN HOSPITALITY

Schoolma'ams on a Stalled Train Chalk Up Twelve Meals to the Company.
"Twelve schoolma'ams from Chicago, debtor to Santa Fe railroad, for soup, steaks, chops, potatoes, tomatoes et al—$24."
The "et al" in this account is to be taken seriously, although one waiter who served the schoolma'ams insisted on joking about it in a demoralizing sort of way.
"They near at all, for a fact," he said.
The identity of the schoolma'ams is a secret with the railroad. All were passengers on the Santa Fe train from the west due to arrive in Chicago at 8:47 o'clock Tuesday evening, and were on their summer vacation outings after a school year spent in Iowa and Kansas.
"Consternation fell on the contingent when the train stopped midway between Nixon and Fort Madison, Ia., and it was explained that, because of a washout, further progress toward Chicago would be delayed indefinitely. The distress was accentuated by a summons from the diner.
"Breakfast is now ready," was the call of the wild.
The twelve confided in one another.
"I can't afford to eat in the diner," said one. "I'd figured on railway station lunches. In fact, I'm nearly broke. And here we are, 'way out on the prairie."
The others made similar confessions. It was decided to pick wild flowers instead of eating breakfast. The party had left the train when a broker from Wichita, Kan., named Walter H. Ward, came forward with a helpful suggestion.
"Let's go in the diner and get a swell meal before you start out," he advised. "You know in case of a delay the railroad company stands treat for all the eatings."
The twelve beamed upon Mr. Ward and rushed for the diner. They inspected the menu cards closely and critically and they ordered from it exhaustively and appreciatively. The waiters were impressed. They thought they were catering to a lot of Equitable stenographers.
When the meal was finished there were no tips. Neither was there any money in payment for the checks which the waiters presented.
"It's on the railroad, you know," explained the youngest school teacher, pleasantly.
Then the twelve rose and walked out of
