tion as Russia, and an older, can enter into alliance with Japan voluntarily and on equal terms, it can be no real humiliation for the czar to make peace with the mikado. Japan has leaped in one bound to the front rank of great world powers and the rest of the world must accept the inexorable fact.

But the problem of peace has also to be studied from the Japanese point of view. The rise of Japan to a foremost position on this planet is a little more sudden than any recorded in history and not less notable than this rapid advancement have been the spirit of moderation, the modesty and the absence of self-glory with which it has The imam of Sanaa is believed to have a taken this high place. He is determined to conextravagant recompense for the sacrifices it has so heroically made and no arrogant ward for the rare and splendid victories has fought for and won by land and sea. It is generally understood that Japan would grant terms of peace-of a real peace-ever less humiliating than those imposed upon France at the close of the Napoleonic wars. But it will not be content with peace which a in effect a dormant war. Its object is simple, and so far as the rest of the world is concerned, is beneficent. It demands that Russia should retire within its old boundaries and should no longer exercise a viral suzerainty over any part of the Chiese empire; that Corea should be recognized as a Japanese dependency and that Russia should disayow, in theory and pracof the Pacific.

Market gardeners coming in were stopped and their carts used in building barricades. Wires were stretched in front of these barricades and the cavalry was unable to charge. Meanwhile the mob had secure arms and revolvers were freely used.

Wanton Acts of Soldiers,

The military secured the upper hand, but not without considerable losses to /themselves and havoc to the rioters. The soldiers exhibited the utmost carclessness as to whether they killed peaceful persons or rioters, and as a consequence many women and children were among the dead.
