July Fourth Makes Trade. What is called Fourth of July dry goods is experiencing a big trade. The retailers find that it is necessary each year to lay in a stock of goods for special trade, such as laces, embroideries, ribbons, fans, para-sols, etc., which have a big run just be-fore the Fourth. Fall goods are now arriving in dry goods houses and orders for the delivery are numerous. There is the customary full in he house trade before the Fourth of July, out the general business has been good all along.

he house trade before the Fourth of July, out the general business has been good all along. The market is firm in brown and bleached cotons, denlines, ticks and similar lines. It is owing to the scarcity of goods. Wool-ens are firm and there has been no ad-vance in the last week. The dress goods advance business has been very good, although the lines were shown by the jobbers two weeks later than last year. The volume of sales in these lines is much greater now than for the corresponding time of last year. There is a demand for a better grade of goods than in former aasons, caused by the prosperous condi-bo of the people in the territory tributary to Omaha. Prices have been somewhat higher than those of last year, but there seems to be no trouble in selling at the advance, as the people are posted as to the increased cost of the raw material. Dress goods prices are about the same sa a week ago and are now presumably fixed for the senson. Some lines of staple wool goods are being withdrawn from sale, owing to the condition of the wajority of the contracts have been placed. Heal Hardware Stendy.

The condition of the hardware trade is summod up by a local jobber in the fol-lowing manner: "A steady volume of orders is coming to this market through salesmen and direct by mail from our customers, and we shall round up our first six months' business this year with an excellent showing. There is no special demand for any particular arti-cles or lines at the present time, but-orders are well assorted, showing that the retail trade is having a steady, even busi-ness.

retail trade is having a steary, tred many ness. "Frequent rains that have visited many sections of territory we cover have kept the having green and growing, so that the demand for sawn mowers has been unusu-ally large. It would seem that the storms have spent their force and we are looking forward now to a warm, dry season, which will ripen the grain and make the corn grow."

will ripen the grain and make the corn grow." Johbers here are fairly well stocked with politry netting and wire dloth to meet the immediate wants of the dealer. Sales of these two lines of goods will far exceed any provious year's. Prices on these lines are low and customers are not afraid to sort up in liberal quantities. There is considerable activity in galvanized sheets, roofing plates, merchant pipe (steel and iron), hand and horse hay forks and grain eradles. Shovels of all kinds are in good demand, as there seems to he a great deal of work being done by trolley and steam railroads. On the whole trade at this time is quite

About the whole trade at this time is quite satisfactory. About the condition of the leather trade there is very little to say. The shoe houses report good business for the time of year, but this month is one of the mest inactive of the year. Some orders for ad-ditional lots of exfords were shipped out to country retailers during the week. There has been no advance now in prices for three weeks or more. Some of the shoe salesmon are taking their vacations.
