WAR FEVER STARTS IN PARIS

French Public Greatly Excited Over the Morocco Incident.

MUCH DEPENDS UPON GERMAN ATTITUDE

Press Seriously Discussing the Possibility of Resort to Arms—Army Officers Are Active.

PARIS, June 24.—(P. M.)—For the first time since the Franco-Moroccan incident the public in Paris is in the throes of the war fever. Whether it will result in anything serious depends on Germany's response to the French note on Morocco, but without considering the exact status of the diplomatic negotiations, a considerable element of the public and press seriously discuss the possibility of a resort to arms. Army circles are particularly active and at the military clubs the officers are merely engaged in making comparisons of the forces of France and Germany. While the financial leaders scout the idea of war, yet the speculative element has been quick to seize the opportunity to raise French prices, which they do so in a way that shows a fall of 1 franc 8 centimes within the week. The official view is that the situation while delicate, does not present any aspect of danger or a crisis involving a rupture of relations. This is the governmental view and naturally presents the most favorable aspect of the controversy. However, the ambassadors of the leading powers express impartial opinions fully sustaining the views of the government.

It is pointed out in diplomatic quarters that the worst features of the Morocco situation do not present a casus belli. An analysis of the controversy shows that the sultan of Morocco invited the powers to a conference. Germany urged the powers, including France, to accept Premier Rouvier's latest note showing the willingness of France to consider a conference if Germany explains its purposes, but even should France decline to accept this, refusal of the invitation does not constitute a casus belli. A diplomat summed up the situation by saying that the default of the present negotiations would not mean war, as the controversy would then proceed along new lines. It would then doubtless lead to direct appeals to the sultan with a view of securing the agreement of the powers to the pessimistic element sees that Germany will seek a pretext for trouble, yet the actual state of affairs does not warrant such gloomy forebodings.

Negotiations Will Continue. BERLIN, June 24.—The foreign office officials are busily engaged in studying the situation in Morocco, and the length of which will necessarily delay answering.

Emperor William's absence at Kiel, the foreign office says, will cause no delay in the negotiations, inasmuch as he is daily informed on all points, and his decisions are made in the most prompt manner. As the study of Premier Rouvier's answer progressed the fact became evident that he has left many points open for discussion and from which further negotiations can continue. The greatest difficulty seems now to be agreeing on whether the powers shall seek to reach a separate agreement before the meeting of the conference, thus eliminating many matters from international action. Germany apparently holds the view that it would be an act of discourtesy to the powers which have already agreed to attend the conference, and to arrange any matters beforehand with France.

Official circles here continue to follow the affair with keen interest, but without anything like excitement, much less bellicose inclinations. They watch closely the movements of public opinion, and while it is realized that the French people at large have grown much less Chauvinistic toward Germany in the last few years, corresponding with the waning influence of the nationalist-clerical military party commission in French politics, some anxiety still prevails in Berlin lest the lack of success in the commercial school is not inferior to his brother in the arts school, in the range of his education, in the quality of his discipline, in the dignity of his work or the worthiness of his destination.

Such an endorsement of commercial education, from such high authority, only emphasizes the tendency of the commercial schools to equip young people for business life and in doing this they render the community a valuable service. The commercial schools of Omaha deserve great credit for what they have done for the city and the state, for it is a well known fact that a large number of our business men of large influence and capabilities, owe their success to the training they received in these schools.

Krug Park is a Beauty Spot Hill Top Pleasure Resort Becomes the Prettiest Place in the Entire West.

Krug park is pronounced the prettiest and most fascinating place in the west and possesses a wealth of amusement features unequalled west of Chicago. From any standpoint or view, this taken in comparison with popular amusements and practical life and the fact that while they do this they, at the same time, discipline and culture the mind, has placed them on an equal footing with schools of the highest rank. Prof. De Garmo of Cornell university has the following to say about the training of the commercial school: "If he has equally efficient teachers and is supplied with equally good facilities, the student of the commercial school is not inferior to his brother in the arts school, in the range of his education, in the quality of his discipline, in the dignity of his work or the worthiness of his destination."

Such an endorsement of commercial education, from such high authority, only emphasizes the tendency of the commercial schools to equip young people for business life and in doing this they render the community a valuable service. KAISER'S HAND SEEN (Continued from First Page.) bination of circumstances which he did not foresee and which none of those who now blame him foresaw when his Moroccan policy was initiated. He merely shared with the great majority of his countrymen the belief that Japan would either shrink from war or would be rapidly and completely crushed by Russia. The course of events and the prolongation of the struggle gave Germany an opportunity of which it has taken advantage to encourage the sultan of Morocco to resist and finally to reject the French demands. That action on the part of Germany was an afterthought. Its previous indifference to what went on in Morocco gave to M. Delcasse no warning of the consequences that might follow a paralysis of Russia in Europe, which itself had not entered into the calculation of any French statesman. In the new situation thus created it is probable that no suppliance on the part of M. Delcasse could have rendered it other than desirable that foreign affairs should be placed in the hands of some one less identified with the policy which circumstances had superseded.

It appears more than probable, moreover, that the changed aspect of affairs in the far east has lent to the attacks of M. Jaures and his associates upon M. Delcasse and his policies a force which they did not possess before the war. It was under M. Delcasse's auspices that the existing alliance between France and Russia was entered into in 1894, and for his alleged pro-Russian proclivities has been unwearingly assailed by the clique which acknowledges the leadership of the fiery M. Jaures. To any one acquainted with the character of the French Republic it is impossible to suggest that any hint of a lack of fidelity to their obligations could be discovered in the present attitude of the French people. But when it is remembered that the enormous sums of French capital entrusted to Russia have strained the friendship of France by repeated attempts to drag it into the contest for the far east, and that Germany as an effective ally has practically ceased to exist for the moment, it is scarcely a matter of wonder if the invective launched against M. Delcasse as the framer of that alliance should find an echo in quarters where it has hitherto passed unheeded.

Sultan Wants Help. LONDON, June 24.—(Special Cablegram to the Bee.)—Khalid Sir Harry Maclean, who has just arrived in London from Fez, says that the sultan of Morocco and his ministers are quite willing to be helped in the development of the country so long as this is brought about in a manner which does not threaten the independence of the country.

"What the country wants," said Sir Harry, "is joint assistance from the powers, but the sultan will not agree to accept the assistance of any one nation, for reasons which are quite obvious."

ELEPHANTS AT LAKE MANAWA Hagenbeck Herd Will Take a Bath and Swim a Race There Today.

Sixteen elephants plunging into the lake and giving an aquatic exhibition constitute the rare and exciting feature that is calculated to make Manawa the mecca of the record-breaking attendance today, with auspicious weather. C. Lee Williams, manager of the Carl Hagenbeck show, has contracted to exhibit the herd in the park and at 4 o'clock today to have them give the water show. There is nothing an elephant enjoys more than a good bath. They draw water into their powerful trunks and spout it as high as forty feet into the air. The washing of the baby by the mother is especially attractive to the children. The Manawa Amusement company has hung up a prize for a swimming race between the monsters.

There will be a lengthy and varied program of free shows in addition to this rare event. W. P. Cresswell, known as "Bicycle Bill," will give afternoon and evening exhibitions of expert riding or lariat twirling, gun spinning, knife juggling and trick cycle work. Covall's Concert band will render an entire change of program of classic and popular music. "Daredevil" Fackler will make a high dive at 5 p. m. and a fire dive at 9 p. m. Prof. Andrews is billed for a balloon ascension and parachute jump at 6:45 p. m. At the Casino in the evening entirely new kinetoscope pictures will be shown.

Bob Irvin at Large. COODY, Wyo., June 24.—(Special.)—Bob Irvin, the outlaw, who has been charged with complicity in the attack on the First National bank and the murder of Cashier I. O. Middaugh here last November, is again at liberty. Irvin was arrested at a ranch south of Basin last January, but escaped from the officers. He fled to Montana, where he was recently arrested, and while being held by the Wyoming officers he again escaped. Irvin is a powerful fellow and as daring as a dozen ordinary men. He is a crack shot, is not afraid to shoot and some one will get hurt before he is again taken into custody. A reward has been offered for the capture of the outlaw.
