Governor Cummins argued that the basis as to the value Dr. Tubba Dangerously and Dr. Seyof a railroad should be what a person was willing to pay for it just as the value of a farm is fixed. Crandon argued egainst this and thought the physical condition of the road should be considered. Governor Cummins in answer to the claim that the railroads were assessed out of proportion to farm lands said that if the council found that lands in Iowa were worth $50 an acre and the assessments returned to the councll by the county auditors was but $40 then they would assess the roads at four-fifths of their actual value. Crandon conceded that this was right in principle, but that the council disregarded it in practice. Little warmth was developed in the hearings today, but when the railroad men argued that the physical condition and cost of a road was important, considerable confusion was created among them when Gov ernor Cummins asked what was the differ-Tubbs and Seybert, with the former acting ence in the worth of two roads, one costing $20,000 a mile and one costing $40,000. when the gross and net earnings were the bile in the center.
