FORT OMAHA BIDS ACTED ON

Contracts for Large Amount of Work Awarded by the Government.

NO OMAHA CONCERN LANDS BUILDING

Conditions of the Contract Require that All Structures Must Be Completed Within Nine or Ten Months.

Major M. Gray Zalinski, constructing quartermaster United States Army for this point and in charge of the rebuilding of Port Omaha, received instructions from the quartermaster general of the army at Washington, D. C., Thursday morning ap proving the award of contracts for buildings, steam heating, electric wiring, etc., to the following named contractors. It will be observed that the aggregate awards exceed $200,000, or in round numbers $200,407: W. J. Zitterell, Webster City, In., limit of time for completion of structures, nine months.

Total (Previous contract for plumbing, $16,000.) One double barrack
One field officers' quarters...
One administration building...

Total award of contracts, $300,407. No Omaha Bidders Win. It will be noticed that no Omaha bidders were successful in landing any of the building contracts, the successful bidders being Webster City, Ia., and Cheyenne parties. J. J. Hanighen of Omaha secured the contract for heating the new buildings under these last awards for $15,851, and his previous contract award for plumbing for the same structures at $16,000, brings the Hanighen awards up to about $32,000.

The Wolfe-Lovett Electrical company of Omaha gets a small wiring contract for $665, and the Nebraska Electric company of Omaha a wiring contract for $3,290. The aggregate amount of awards coming to Omaha being $35,806 out of the $200,407. The conditions of the awards require that the buildings must be completed within nine and ten months from this time.

When Buying Remember that it is always cheapest to get the best that can be had. Do not let anyone convince you that the article they offer for sale is JUST AS GOOD as some other. Buy the best always. The name "Eclipse" speaks for itself when talking of Gas Ranges.
