WORTHLESS CHECK FOR WEDDING RINGS

Harry De Lavey, Manager of United States Investment Company, Plays a Short and Inglorious Engagement.

Harry DeLacey, the alleged representative of the United States Investment company, which opened an office in the New fork Life building here about ten days ro, was arrested in Council Bluffs late ist night by Detective Patullo on a arge of obtaining goods under false prenses. In the arrest of DeLacey there hangs a tale of an exceedingly short married life.

The story of DeLacey's short business career in this city was brought to light in less than two hours after the police authorities, ware informed of the business affairs of the man who, they believe, is sither a professional crook or has been a victim of a most sealous love affair in which Miss Lolotta Scheer of Harvard, Neb., whom he employed in his office as stenographer, played the principal role.

About ten days ago DeLacey fitted up an office in the Life building ostensibly for the purpose of carrying on the business affairs of the United States Investment company, and advertised for a young woman stenographer, and subsequently Miss Scheer was employed. The "business" of the office was progressing nicely when Cupid interfered and sent two of his darts into the hearts of both stenographer and "manager" and Tuesday afternoon the pair were married in Council Bluffs.

Jeweler Grows Suspicious.

During the acquaintance of Miss Scheer and LeLacey the latter had contracted a number of bills with different merchants and Wednesday afternoon he made out Mandelberg, 1522 Farnam street, and ordered a diamond wedding ring, a gold locket and other jewelry to the value of $140, saying that he would call later and get the goods and pay for them. He returned early in the evening with his young bride and the clerk accepted the check drawn on the Commercial bank and De-Lacey departed. The jeweler became suspicious after his customer had departed and telephoned to Mr. Millard, cashier of tody. His story is that he was doing a legitiend of the case was looked after by Assistant County Attorney Murdock. At the time Hirshman and his wife were arrested Mrs. Hirshman admitted that she had purchased the brass from two young men and paid them $5 for the same, She admitted that the brass was worth about $60, but insisted that she adid not know that the stuff was stolen, neither could she give any description of the men who sold her the brass. Railroad detectives produced testimony to show that Hirshman hitched his horse to his wagon at a late hour at night and the tracks were followed to the storage house and back to the Hirshman home. When the evidence for the state was in at least all that was to be introduced at the preliminary hearing, the defense was called. Attorney Leigh positively refused to permit either Hirshman or his wife to go on the stand. So the case ended by holding both to the district court. Railroad detectives have been following
