EDWARD W. NASH IS DEAD

Omaha's Distinguished Citizen Succumbs After Noble Fight for Life.

SUMMONS COMES AT FOUR IN MORNING

Stricken with Paralysis Two Months Ago, Mr. Nash Succumbs All by Remarkable Vitality Displayed Against Death.

Edward W. Nash, president of the American Smelting and Refining company, one of the most prominent citizens of Nebraska and the west and an important factor in national commercial centers, died at 4:30 Saturday morning at the Nash residence, 2256 Burt street, after an illness of two months, during which time he made a gallant fight against the malady with which he was stricken on the evening of May 22, while at a dinner party given at the home of Herman Kountze, Forest Hill.

While the various physicians, both of Omaha and Chicago, who were called in attendance on the distinguished patient, offered little hope of ultimate recovery, during any time of the illness, Mr. Nash, possessing a wonderful vitality, appeared to rally at times, and thus inspired the hopes of relatives and friends. The real collapse of the patient began Saturday morning, from which time until death dissolution was in progress. Death came while the patient was in a calm and peaceful condition for an hour.

All of the immediate relatives of the family were present when the final summons came. Dr. Victor E. Coffman had called a few hours before, as much as an old friend of the family as a physician and to be at hand for any emergency. Soon after he left the final change came over the patient.

Those at the Deathbed.

Those who gathered around the bedside at the last hour of life were: Mrs. Nash, his wife; F. A. Nash, brother; Mrs. L. F. Crofoot, Mrs. George Myers and Miss Esther and Frances Nash, daughters; Louis Charles Nash, son; L. F. Crofoot and Harry Cartan, Mrs. Myers, whose home is in Dubuque, has been here on and off during the illness of her father. Mr. Cartan returned from California last Thursday evening. Mrs. J. I. Woodward, sister of Mrs. Nash, and her husband also were at the deathbed.

Mr. Nash was stricken with paralysis Monday evening, May 22. The stroke was the result of cerebral hemorrhage. From the very first his condition was considered grave. Dr. Crummer, Allison and Bridges of this city were first called and they at once pronounced the case a serious one. Dr. H. H. Patrick of Chicago was summoned and he arrived on a special train the evening after Mr. Nash was stricken. Dr. Patrick offered little hope of recovery, the affliction being the result of the stroke. Dr. Patrick made several trips to the Nash home with the hope that constant attendance might restore the patient. Dr. Frank Billings of Chicago, a celebrated specialist, also was called, but he, too, could offer but little hope for Mr. Nash. The best that the medical profession could do was to assist the patient in his fight for life and delay the final hour. One and all say the patient held up with remarkable bravery, his great vitality standing him in good stead during his last illness.

Home but a Short Time.

Mr. Nash came to Omaha from New York City a few weeks before he was taken sick to enjoy a season of rest. The death of his daughter, Mrs. Harry Cartan, and the business responsibilities on him, were beginning to tell on his health.

During the two months of Mr. Nash's illness he had been conscious most of the time, but the last two weeks he was unconscious. Up to last Monday he was able to receive his devoted wife. Mrs. Nash has been at the side of her husband faithfully. Members of the bereaved family say she has been the proper mainstay of the household during the trying ordeal. Never once has she given up hope and not until the eyelids of her husband were closed in death Saturday morning would she acknowledge the inevitable was near.

Many telegrams were sent from the Nash residence Saturday morning to close friends and associates all over the United States and to Canada, Mexico and Chile. Besides, the officials of the local offices of the Union Pacific and Milwaukee roads are sending messages of condolence. Mr. Nash's body was sent to Daniel Guggenheim, chairman of the executive committee of the American Smelting and Refining company; ex-Governor J. B. Grant of Denver, an old associate of Mr. Nash; all of the executive officers of the American Smelting and Refining company; Edward Cuddey, now at Mackinaw Island; Mrs. A. R. Graves, mother of Bishop Graves of Kearney and step-mother of E. W. Nash, and many others. Mr. George Myers of Dubuque, son-in-law, is expected in the city at once.

Shock to the Community.

The death of Mr. Nash's death was a topic of conversation in Omaha Saturday. While his death was not altogether unexpected, when it did come in was no less a shock to the community as well as to many living in different parts of the country. Many of the large cities of the country, many inquiries and callers have been received at the Nash residence during the last two months, the patient's condition and progress being a subject of keen interest everywhere. Mr. Nash's fund of strength and remarkable vitality have been frequently remarked on, which characteristics many believed might carry him through.

Mr. Nash was a communicant of the Catholic church and a member of St. Cecilia's church, 21 North 10th street. Owing to the death of St. Cecilia's church high mass will be celebrated at St. John's Collegiate church, Twenty-fifth and California streets, Monday at 10 a. m. Rev. D. P. Harrington probably officiating. An interment will be private. Friends are especially requested not to send flowers.

Following is a list of the honorary and active pallbearers:

Active—J. T. Page, W. F. Cox, W. H. Koenig, J. W. Woodward, Victor Caldwell, Brock L. Learned, G. W. Megeath, J. A. Munroe.

Ushers at the Church—Robert W. Patrick, Will Coad, J. E. Baird, Thomas Creigh, Jr., Lee McShane and Frank Keogh. Mr. Nash was not identified with any religious society or lodge, although a claimant to a limited extent. He divided his time and energy between his many business interests and his home.

F. A. Nash, general western agent of the Milwaukee, has spent most of the last few weeks at the bedside of his father.

For two years, marrying Miss Catherine Barbeau of St. Marie, Quebec. He brought his bride to Omaha in 1867, landing here with only $50 in his pocket, and no job or arrangements for any. He soon found work as freight trucker for the Union Pacific, but his native ability was soon perceived and he was called to the railway headquarters and given a place in the auditing department. Two years or so later, some of the men with whom Mr. Nash came in contact, became interested in the new Omaha Smelting company. He went to this concern as head bookkeeper and remained with it, gradually rising to secretary and accountant, and then as a stockholder.

Keeps Pace with Company.

He grew rapidly in wealth and influence and as every successive evolution of the smelter as the Omaha Smelting and Refining company and Omaha and Grant Smelting company, which took in a similar plant at Denver. In later years his official connection was secretary of the Omaha Smelting and Refining company, which terms generally imply. When the American Smelting and Refining company, combining most of the industries of the kind in the country, was organized in 1898, Mr. Nash was one of the organizers and retained when the corporation became the American Smelter's Exploration company less than a year ago.

The Omaha smelter, of which Mr. Nash was largely responsible for the development, has the largest output in point of value of any smelter or refinery in the world.

Besides actively managing the affairs of the smelting trust, which is capitalized at $10,000,000, extensive of subsidiary organization, Mr. Nash was a director in the Electric Boat company of New York, director of the Federal Sugar company, president of the Braden Copper company, interested heavily in Chile, stockholder and former director of the Omaha and Colorado Blue-Steel Railway company, stockholder and director of the Omaha and South Omaha National banks, and heavily interested financially in a number of other local business institutions and real estates.

Lover of Home Life.

Mr. Nash was a member of the Lawyers' club of Denver, but was not a club man. In the meaning of the term, having strong preferences for a quiet, domestic life. He was a man of unostentatious charm and gentleness of manner, and he unconsciously made friends of those who came in contact with him. The home of the family is a large dwelling with beautiful grounds at Thirty-ninth and Burt streets, and it has always been kept open, occupied by some member of the family every day during the absence in the east of Mr. and Mrs. Nash.

Besides a widow, Mr. Nash leaves five children: Mrs. L. F. Crofoot and Louis C. Nash of Omaha, Mrs. George Myers of Dubuque, Ia., and Esther and Frances Nash, who have lived mostly in New York. His eldest son, Fred A. Nash, Jr., died last summer. Sometime previously, a daughter, Mrs. Harry Cartan, known and loved for her benevolence, died.

Fred A. Nash, the youngest of the deceased, is a general western agent for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway and president of the Omaha Electric Light and Power company. Mrs. James Woodward is a sister.

CHARACTER SKETCH BY BARTON

Splendid Tribute from Old Friend and Business Associate.

Few successful men more highly esteemed by their friends and close acquaintances than E. W. Nash. In life or death he spoke of him with remarkable affection. Of the men intimately associated with him for the last twenty-five years none was closer than Guy C. Barton, whose financial aid put the local smelting works on its feet in the early '70s.

"The character of Mr. Nash," said Mr. Barton, "can be expressed briefly and truthfully by the more statements of work. He was one of the nicest men who ever lived in Omaha. In many respects his character was admirable and as a business man he was brilliant.

"It was the enterprise of Mr. Nash that really made the Omaha smelting works. He got into it when it was a very crude affair and, seeming to grasp the needs of the situation, started out to satisfy them. He induced me to buy a controlling interest in the stock and thus obtained the financial assistance which was necessary to get the works on their feet. He had no experience in the smelting business up to that time and he came out to North Platte to my ranch and presented the case. Logically I was elected president of the company, although I knew nothing whatever about the business. Mr. Nash's character taught me all I know about it and was particularly kind and patient and fine in doing it. His ability to understand the early situation and his knowledge of the ins and outs of the smelting business was what gave him his right to be one of the big men of the company and later in the consolidations that were made.

"As is well known Mr. Nash came to Omaha a poor young man and got a job wheeling freight. He was one of the best accountants in the city. However, and it was not long before he was made partner in the office of the auditor of the Union Pacific. From this position he went with the group of men who were struggling to make the smelter a success. It was not very long before he became virtually their leader.

"He was a man who never took a vacation. Recreation seemed to be an impossibility to him. He had no fads or hobbies. Many times I tried to get him interested in things outside his work, but his application to anything else. During the long years that he served as secretary and treasurer of the smelting companies he was at his desk incessantly during business hours. When he became president of the American Smelting and Refining company in New York it was the same thing. Always working, working, working. Outings and excursions did not appeal to him, and almost with tears in his eyes I urged him time and time again to take his family to some place where business cares could not reach him and take a good rest. His death at the age of 59, stricken down suddenly and going to pieces all at once, is the result of his intense absorption in business. There is no other reason for it.

Nash for the Place.

"When the consolidation of all the smelting companies was proposed, it was proposed to the presidency by me. It was the largest. I immediately named Mr. Nash and he is immediately proposed me. This illustrates his character as well as anything else—essentially generous and willing to step into the place without a thought. I insisted, however, on his assuming the head of the big company, for which he was by all manner and means fitted. Several months dragged by before he consented to become president, and only then at the suggestion of Mrs. Nash, who wished to go to New York for superior educational advantages for their children.

"Mr. Nash was a man of quick judgment and his opinion was so nearly often the correct one that he might be said to have been always right on such matters. Constantly immersed in commercial affairs he never puzzled over a new condition, but met it quickly, squarely and efficiently. When he came back here from New York he was restless and discontented, although in a measure still at his work. Turn him loose in the town and he would wander from place to place, chatting a few minutes with one and then going on to another, to a desk again to mull over business matters. He attended the theater frequently, but more to please his family than anything else, as he liked to do anything to make them happy, but he cared little or nothing for the drama.

"The business world sustains a heavy loss in Mr. Nash. Personally I cannot describe my sorrow over his untimely end. But, apart from commercial circles, there will be many who will miss him. I learned accidentally of the number of poor persons that he and his wife were caring for, or at least, something of the number. He did a great deal of good in this way, never letting his left hand know of the acts of the right—unostentatiously, quietly, never speaking of it even to his closest friends.

"He was a typical American gentleman of business, one of the indomitable workers of the west."

BARTON SEWELL AT THE HEAD

Vice President of Smelting Company Temporarily in Control.

Guy C. Barton, director and stockholder in the smelting trust, said:

"Since Mr. Nash was stricken Mr. Barton Sewell, vice president of the company, has been directing its affairs. Mr. Sewell will continue to do so until the annual meeting of the directors in September, at which time he will succeed Mr. Nash as president."

DENTAL EXAMINERS ORGANIZE

Board Provided for by New Law in Now Regulating Practice of Dentistry.

The new board of dental secretaries met in Lincoln last week and perfected an organization, with the following officers: Dr. D. A. Meese, Auburn, president; Dr. C. F. Ladd, Lincoln, secretary; Dr. J. Herman Wallace, Omaha, vice president and treasurer. The other members are Dr. W. T. Smith of Geneva and Dr. C. S. Parker of Norfolk.

The law regulating the practice of dentistry in this state, passed by the last legislature, went into effect July 1, and by a ruling of the board all dentists now practicing in the state who have not registered with the board can have their certificates doing so until September 1 without taking an examination. After September 1 all dentists desiring to practice will be required to take an examination before the board.

The board will meet in regular session at the capitol building during the months of May and November of each year, at such times as they may designate, and will meet at such other times and places in special session as they may deem advisable.

No dentists for permanent license to practice dentistry will be examined only during regular meetings. After September 1 all applicants must pass an examination before a license will be issued to them to practice. This license must be recorded with the county clerk in the county in which the applicant desired to practice within six months from date of issue or it is forfeited.

A great many dentists in the state do not understand that they must record their license with the county clerk in the county in which they practice, but this is necessary in order to be a legal practitioner. Any who have not complied with this provision of the dental law must do so at once.

Under the new law the applicant for license must be a graduate of a reputable college or have served an apprenticeship of five years in the office of a legal practitioner, having previously graduated from a high school or similar institution of learning. No temporary permits will be granted, except to those who are eligible for permanent license. When the dental secretaries are not in regular semi-annual session any one of the secretaries may examine an applicant and on his recommendation the board may issue him a temporary license to practice until the next regular meeting of the dental secretaries, at which time the temporary license will expire and the holder thereof must appear and take an examination for permanent license.

No dentist who was a legal practitioner in this state before July 1 will be affected by the new law, but there are some who have not complied with the provisions of the old law and are therefore not legal practitioners and these must comply with the new law.

RUN OVER BY YARD ENGINE

James Murphy Instantly Killed and Gus Brugman Loses Arm.

THIRD MEMBER OF PARTY ESCAPES INJURY

Two Were Sleeping on Burlington Tracks and the Other One Was Asleep Alongside the Rails.

James Murphy, a laborer employed at the Union Pacific shops, living at 1712 South Tenth street, was killed at 12:06 o'clock last night by being struck by switch engine No. 123 of the Burlington road on the bridge crossing Henry street, near Second. Murphy was asleep on the tracks when the accident occurred. Gus Brugman, 1722 South Eighth street, who was with Murphy, was also asleep on the tracks and had his left arm cut off by the engine and was otherwise injured. He may die. Sidney Slaven, who was also a companion of Murphy, was asleep, but was lying on the side of the track and escaped injury. Slaven lives at 1709 South Tenth street. The wheels of the engine missed him by six inches.

Slaven says the three had been downtown and were returning home a little before midnight. The trio reached the bridge from Hickory street and went up to sit down to get some fresh air and all three lay down beside the track and fell asleep. The Burlington switch engine was returning from Gibson, and the three young men, being sound sleepers, did not hear the approaching engine. Murphy was lying with his head directly on the rail and the wheels completely severed his head from his body, cutting his left arm entirely off and mangling his body otherwise.

The switch engine and car were in charge of Foreman Fred Walters and Engineer J. J. Curtis and Fireman H. S. Kibbet. The crew state they were coming into the yards at a moderate rate of speed and it being extremely dark at the place where they were lying were unable to see the forms lying on the tracks. The cries of Brugman, who was injured, attracted the attention of the crew and the engine was stopped. Slaven was sleeping so soundly that he had to be shaken by the crew for some minutes before he was awakened. He was almost frantic when he learned that his companion had been killed.

The police station was notified as soon as possible and the patrol was sent to the spot with Police Surgeon Langdon, who administered relief to young Brugman, and later removed him to the Clarkson hospital. Police Surgeon Langdon attended him at the hospital. He may recover.

James Murphy, the young man who was killed, was about twenty-one years old and has been living with his mother. He has been employed in the Union Pacific shops for some time. Coroner Brailey was notified and removed the body of young Murphy to the morgue.

MOTHER SHOWS LITTLE CARE

Parent of Homeless Children Refuses to Testify in Juvenile Court Hearing.

Judge Redick disposed of the juvenile court business Saturday morning. He had only two cases of delinquency to handle, one child being concerned in one and three children of a family in the other. A Mrs. Schroeder, deserted by her husband, has been somewhat lax in taking care of a bright little daughter. She pleaded with the judge that she is a hard worker and does the best she can. This appearing to be true and the child desiring to remain with her mother, was allowed to do so with the understanding that she should have more parental attention in future.

The family affair was that of John Hack, his wife and three children. Hack was accused of spending his money for drink and then taking the small earnings of his 14-year-old daughter Mammie and spending them, too. Hack and his wife separated on account of his bad habits, each taking two children. Mrs. Hack sent one child to live with her relatives in Iowa and the older child, Mammie, has been working in a South Omaha boarding house for her board and small wages. Hack undertook to pay for the keep of the other daughter, aged 8, and a boy aged 3. He failed to do so. After hearing the evidence Judge Redick committed Mammie, Katie and Loren to the detention home temporarily, Mammie being sent along to care for the two younger children.

Mrs. Hack was in court, but took little or no interest in the case. She has secured a position in a family and is doing well, but seems to have arrived at the point where she has lost interest in her family. No one of the three children went near her and she refused to testify. So far as appearance went she has been the least concerned mother who has yet appeared in the juvenile court.

Art of Touch Typewriting

It Has Been Brought Close to Perfection in Omaha Commercial Schools.

The touch method of typewriting has been brought to greater perfection in Omaha than in any other city of the country. Padoverewski, the great pianist, had written done a student of an Omaha school and was amazed at the speed, rapidity and accuracy of the operator. After the completion of the work he expressed great surprise and said, "That man has sold me a few words, a clause or a short sentence and then writes what he has read. This causes frequent starting and stopping and about one-half of the time is consumed in reading. By the touch method there is no necessity for stopping the machine to read the copy. This enables a touch typewriter to write about twice as much in a given time as a sight operator.

Omaha has had a very important part in developing touch typewriting and placing it before the world. An Omaha man represented the advantages of the system to the National Commercial Teachers' association which met at Chicago in December, 1898, and made such an exhibition with one of his students that the system swept the country like a storm. In a history of touch typewriting published by the Remington Typewriter company the statement was made that Omaha was the "storm center of touch typewriting." Two Omaha men have published texts on this subject and one of them has sold more than 25,000 copies.

Omaha has furnished more expert typewriter operators for exhibiting writing machines at the great expositions than any other city in the country. One operator trained in an Omaha school was sent to the Pan-American exposition and the Louisiana Purchase exposition.

HOLDUP MEN VISIT SALOON

Fred Gallop, Near Ruser's Park, the Victim of Their Visit.

Another holdup occurred about 11 o'clock Saturday night at the saloon of Fred Gallop, near Ruser's park. The holdup men came in with the intention of making an evening and a little after 11 o'clock, after the crowd had gone, two masked men, apparently about 22 years of age, entered the place and compelled the proprietor, Mr. Gallop, to surrender.

Gallop complied with the robbers' demand for cash from the register. They made good their escape. After the robbery the men made a hasty departure, going in the direction of Ruser's park. The police were notified and as given a description of the holdup men could be under the circumstances. No arrests have as yet been made.

THREE BANKS ARE NOW ONE

Formal and Final Procedure of Consolidation is Gone Through With.

The meetings of the stockholders and directors of the three banks to be merged into the United States National of Omaha for the purpose of ratifying in due form the consolidation agreement were held Saturday afternoon. The meeting of the United States National bank corporation was simply through the forms of increasing the capital stock, enlarging the directors and electing the officers and directors, who were agreed upon for the personnel of the consolidated bank.

Stockholders of the Union National bank met at 1 o'clock with complete representation for all except thirty-five of the 1,500 shares. The resolution to go into liquidation was adopted unanimously and G. W. Watiles was appointed liquidating agent. President Watiles explained the reasons for the cessation of the bank and gave the terms of the merger agreement so far as it affected Union National stockholders. Under these terms the United States National is to acquire the accounts of the Union National, drawing $50,000 for its business and assuming to pay the entire liabilities to stockholders and depositors at par, taking enough of the assets additional at their face value over the same. The stockholders will present their certificates Monday for endorsement by the liquidating agent. The bank will receive an immediate dividend of 100 per cent. It is expected that when the bank is wound up and all the remaining assets realized on a final dividend approximately 25 per cent will accrue to the stockholders.

The meeting of the Commercial National bank stockholders also ratified the merger agreement without hitch. The absorption of the Commercial was brought about on a different plan from that of the Union National, the United States buying out the Commercial stock and giving the purchase price said to be around $500,000. At the meeting considerably more than

Mr. Fish, as head of the American company, which is affiliated with all the state Bell telephone companies, draws wages of $100,000 a year. He has not been in Omaha in two or three years and his visit is said to be in the nature of routine.

F. A. Pichernal, assistant to the president, came up from Kansas City and E. B. Smith, general manager of the Iowa lines, is here from Des Moines. According to Mr. Yost there is nothing partaking of the nature of a conference in the entertainment of the three officers in Omaha at one time. President Fish's headquarters are in Boston.

MALARIA UNDERMINES THE HEALTH

When the germs of malaria enter the blood the entire health is affected, and the blood is not purified of these germs and microbes, Chronic Sores and Ulcers, Liver Spots, Chills and Fever, Boils, Aches and Pains, and a great variety of troubles manifest themselves, and soon the entire system is undermined, and the sufferer a prey to a most miserable weak and nervous condition.

812 W. Market St., Louisville, Ky.

For several years I suffered with Chills and Fever, caused by Malaria in my system, and such summer fevers as I would have a relapse. Finally a physician prescribed S. S. S. I took a few bottles; this was about six years ago. It entirely cured me, and I have never been troubled since. I am now so complete and immediate relief. My partner in business is now taking S. S. S. for a eruption of the skin, and a general run-down condition of the system, and although he has taken but one bottle, already commences to improve.

S. S. S. counteracts and drives all the poison from the blood and builds up the system by its fine purifying qualities and tonic effects. It strengthens every part, increases the appetite, helps the stomach and digestion, and by supplying the body with rich, pure blood, cures Malaria and all its disagreeable ailments. Unlike most blood medicines, S. S. S. is purely vegetable. It does not contain a particle of mineral or any kind of disagreeable affect the stomach, digestion and bowels, but by cleansing and strengthening the blood, puts every part of the body in healthy condition. Book and bottle sent free on request. Write for it at once. A resolution was passed to make an effort to open Thirtieth street from Erskine to Burdette streets, Maple
