Missourians Lose Second Game to Champions, Eight to Three.

M'CLOSKEY ALLOWS BUT FIVE HITS

of Indecision Part of St. Joe Enables Omaha to Swell Its

Pop Eyler was batted at will at Vinton Street park Wednesday afternoon. champions won by the score of 8 to 2 before a crowd that was somewhat diminutive because of the lowering skies. McCloskey was in the box for Omaha and he was right, which is 'nuf said. St. Joe simply could not hit the ball when hits meant McCloskey struck out seven of the Saints and backed by perfect fielding except in the eighth, when Captain Joe got a little case of the rattles and booted two grounders, not a wabble was made.

McCloskey tried to get out of the way of one of Pop Eyler's slow benders in the eighth inning and the ball hit him in the jaw outling a hole clear though his In where the ball pushed it against his teeth. Mac let the butcher run for him and then went in and pitched out the game. The Saints thought Mac would lose his nerve after his accident, but they reckoned wrong, for in spite of Dolan's two errors, they made but one hit in the ninth and scored but one more run.

The Champs started off like winners in the first inning after the Saints had been disposed of one-two-three. Thiel opened the ball with a double to left, was sacrificed to third by Carter and scored on a passed ball. Three more were added by the Champs in the third inning by a combination of bases on balls, hits and the remarkable feat of striking out all three men by pitching just three balls to each. Nine balls pitched to retire the In the next inning Ketchem popped a Texas leaguer over third for the first hit of the game for the Saints. In the seventh inning McCloskey hit Pennell for an opener and struck out McGilvray, Quillin doubled and scored Pennell and was brought home himself on Andrews single toward Carter.

Ten men were up for the Champs in the eighth inning and yet but four scored. McCloskey was hit in the jaw as the first man up and the next five men straight hit safe, Thiel, Carter and Thomas for safe bunts which should have been captured, but for some misunderstanding between Pop Eyler and Jay Andrews. These two colts seemed to get rattled when the ball was bunted at them with men on bases and each time Andrews would run back to cover his base and no one went after the strength of the first inning, cinching the game with a batting rally in the ninth. Attendance, 1,200. Score first game: his base and no one went after the ball, each trusting implicitly in the other to field it. When the fracas was over four had scored with three left on bases. The Saints added one in the ninth after McCloskey had let down a little because of his crack on the jaw, and because of Dolan's two errors. A neat double, however, settled all trouble. Martin went way up in the air after Dexter's liner and then in before he could get back to third. Martin made two of these hitstopping catches in the game and Joe Dolan made another with one hand that was a wonder. Welch just missed one after a hard run in the seventh inning. The same teams will play again this afternoon, and Jones, the star pitcher of the Saints' twirling staff, probably will Score second game; be sent in against Eddie Quick. Attend-

> GOOD RACING ON HEAVY TRACK Large Crowd Enjoys Fine Sport at Fremont.

FREMONT, Neb., July 26.—(Special Telegram.) — The second day of the races brought out a big crowd, which packed the grandstand and lined up against the fence on both sides. The track was muddy, all of seven seconds slow, and the horses were not started in the 2:25 class until 3 o clock. The driving was mostly done on the outside of the track. Medium did the work in the first race. Hearst held him well in hand, despite the mud, which was not to his diking, and in the third and fourth heats he did not take the lead until well into the third quarter, in the latter shooting out of the bunch at the beginning of the home stretch. Poverty surprised the betting ring by his fine work in the second heat, making the race almost up to the outside fence. The talent backed Axeyelle to win in the 2:13 class, but the odds were too heavy to bring in much money. In the second heat Lillian H stumbled at the turn on the first quarter, broke badly and fell behind the rest, but Kenyon brought her around in fine shape and instead of being distanced, as it looked as though she would, he landed her under the wire a good fifth. Winnie Blake, who was looked upon as a winner, did not start. The track was so heavy that the drivers and horses were spattered with mud. Results:
Class 2:45, pacing: Fremont.
