pleteness of more than one gathering this summer and the Field and Country clubs drawing Council Bluffs society in numbers that make whole groups of strangers on this side, it should not be many seasons before the fashionables of the two cities have more in common than they seem to have at present.

The busybodies are just now rolling a sweet morsel in the way of a reported attachment between two young people in one of the most exclusive circles in society. She is a young widow and before her marriage not so very long ago, was one of the most sought after young women in the fashionable set. He is a much-traveled young doctor, with an enviable practice, and had eluded the charms of several sets of debutantes and not a few of their older Powerless as women are accused of being to resist the designs of the milliner it is a fact, nevertheless, that these same women are rebelling more and more against wearing hats when they are not absolutely necessary as a protection or a formality. It is no uncommon sight nowadays to see women even on the downtown streets in summer without their hats, while it is safe to estimate that two-thirds of the well dressed women who go out informally of an evening wear only a veil over their heads and these to keep their hair from being blown into confusion. The Benson or the Hanscom Park cars afford everyday evidence that the summer hat, no matter how charming a creation it may less it is necessary.

who are not fortunate enough to be enjoying the summer some place where the responsibility of entertaining falls upon some one else, can't help but reflect upon the exceeding good fortune that gave Omaha its Field and Country clubs. So entirely does the social life of the city center about these two places in summer that it is a bit difficult to remember just what people used to do during July and August before they were opened. Slowly but surely the calendar has dwindled down to just two markings week-Wednesday and Saturday-and the initiated know better than to expect anything but incidentals before the middle of September. The "have gones" are much more numerous than the "have returned" now-a-days and the return of the warm weather has served to hustle off to some of the nearby resorts a lot of people who had planned to remain at home until fall. Excepting the Wednesday luncheops and hop and the Saturday dinner and dance at the Field and Country clubs and a trolley ride for some of the young people this week's calendar is a blank, however, there are still some visiting girls in town and as something is due them there is hope. Another promise is found in the return of several families from the Minnesota lakes who went up for the early sum-

PROMISED AT KRUG PARK Program for Sunday and the Week at This Resort Looks Interesting.

Krug park offers more and better attractions as a pleasure resort than any place in Omaha, the originality of design and reliability of execution making it a dependable place to visit. The success of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Dinning and family the last week has only stimulated Manager W. W. Cole to further efforts, and as a result some rare attractions are booked for the remaining weeks of the season. For Sunday, George Young has been secured to make a balloon ascension and parachute drop. This is Mr. Young's second attempt as an aeronaut. He found his experience of last Sunday, when he was married, and made his wedding trip

And at night, for the first time in the history of ballooning in Omaha, Manager Cole will give a night ascension with fireworks, illuminating the progress of the big air ship through space. Miss Etta Fyvie-Deuch, the Australian contralto, has been re-engaged for another week. Her rendition of "The Deathless Army" and "Killarney" cause her to respond to double encores nightly. One of the most successful music. features is Christian Rodenkirchen, the cornet virtuoso. His solos nightly, accompanied by the Royal Canadian band, are warmly welmed. Krug park as a whole was never better or more attractive and the wonderfully beautiful folinge is at the height of its midsummer glory.

MEXICO PROSPERS FINELY Charles E. Williamson Speaks from Experience of Recent Visit to that Country.

Mr. Charles E. Williamson recently returned from a trip to Mexico, where he went to inspect some land for a client. He says: "The going to a gold basis May 1 seems to have had a great effect. I was reliably informed that within the sixty Mr. Dean Hill of Lincoln will spend the days following May 1 the increase in the aggregate banking capital of Mexico Gits was $6,000,000. This is one of the effects attributed to the change of basis. One certain result is the stabilizing of the rate Grace have returned from Balleys, Colo. of exchange. It now fluctuates practically Mrs. Allison will remain there a few days not at all, and in crossing the river (Rio Grande) you get even $2 for $1 of United States currency and vice versa in returning home. Mr. Williamson says he found the cattle business in the subtropics offer such very attractive inducements that his client is preparing to establish a cattle plantation there as soon as possible.

The Nebraska Women's Christlan Tem perance union has been well represented at the Epworth assembly at Lincoln, all of the state officers having been present at the board meeting held Friday and Saturday. They are: Mrs. Dora V. Wheelock of Superior, president; Mrs. A. Nesbitt of Pawnee, treasurer; Mrs. M. E. Patterson of Omaha, recording secretary; Mrs. C. M. Woodward of David City, corresponding secretaray; Mrs. M. D. Russell, vice president, and Mrs. Mamle Claffin of University Place, journalist. There was also a large representation of local unions from all parts of the state and the Women's Christian Temperance union tent was one of the liveliest on the grounds. The union members have been among the everyday speakers at the pavilion. One of the promi ment addresses of the week was made by Mrs. Nesbit of Pawnee regarding the adulteration of foods and the necessity of pure food legislation in Nebraska. Friday afternoon Mrs. C. M. Woodward, state corre sponding secretary, delivered an address on "A Great Enterprise," dealing with the woman's temple in Chicago, the Frances Willard memorial. Mrs. Woodward was listened to very attentively by a large audience, which manifested its interest at the close of her, address by requests for literature and by subscriptions to the tem ple appeal. Mrs. Woodward told of the daily gospel meetings at Willard hall in the temple and the work resulting therefrom. Sunday afternoon at the Auditorium on the grounds an address will be deliv ered by Mrs. Anna R. Simmons of Chicago, national organizer for the Women's Christian Temperance union

With apologies that it is perhaps a little premature Miss Kate Friend writes of one of those points in club life that is well worthy of consideration. It is in reference to the club report at the district convertion and the point that lies between club loyalty and telling the exact truth. She says:

The district system is to bring into closer touch the clubs whose interest is most in common. The condition of the district is discussed, for mutual information as well as for the knowledge of the presiding officer, who in executive board meeting conveys her message to the state federation. Now, here lies the delicate position of the delegate. She knows things are not prospering in her club; she knows there has not been an afternoon program satisfactorily carried out since the club year book began. She knows the constitution is violated every day, that fines and dues are not paid. And she knows that whatever is accomplished is the result of the heroic effort upon the part of the few faithful. Yet, she has not the bravery to stand before her presiding officer and the other clubs of her district to tell it. So, she puts the very beat face possible upon the condition of affairs; gathers some facts, illuminates them with her ambitious imagination, and reads a report which sounds as though it echoed the very whir of club activity. What does this do? It simply creates a false impression of club strength. To hear all these reports one would infer every club in the state up and doing, thoroughly inoculated with club spirit and yet there is the excuse for creating this false impression. No delegate is willing to east reflection upon her sister clifb woman; she is not willing to say: "We are a club of twenty, all drones except four, we average six at each meeting; our programs are never fully carried out owing to the failure of members to prepare what is assigned them; we have a system of fines, but no one ever collects them for fear of offending; we never read the federation mail, because it does not interest our members etc.

Just where the delegate's honesty with her district conflicts with her loyalty to hear old fire and fine and fine and fire and the clubs whose interest is most nmon. The condition of the district scussed, for mutual information as

At least there is food in this subject for reflection.

> With gardening a fad among women the papers are fairly teeming with suggestions of things that women might raise. One writer suggests that club women devote themselves to some particular product and excel in its production, while another suggests that the southern women take up the cultivation of orris root, reasoning that as 238,000 pounds of this perfume is imported annually at a cost of $28,000, the "ladies might work themselves into a really good thing." It might be a gratifying enlightenment to a great many people if it could be ascertained just how much "raising" the club women are doing every year. It is a emmon thing to find a plane and other luxuries, as well as many of the actual necessities that have been obtained by the frugal wife from her butter or her chickens or garden stuff money. The club women of Nebraska, living as the majority of them do, in small towns or on farms, might be able to give some interesting information and suggestions, too, on "rais-

> ORIGIN OF THUNDERSTORMS

Interesting Information About Common But Little Understood Phenomenon.

A thunderstorm is one of those great events which have their origin in small beginnings. As soon as the sun shows his face above the horizon, on any of these warm summer days, his heat begins to take immediate effect. First the eastern hillsides, then the rocks, and finally all the fields and pastures become very warm This warmth is radiated into the air, which, being thus heated, expands and begins to ascend. Little rising currents of air, here and there, grow larger and swifter, and presently unite with other currents near them. At last great bodies air are rushing upwards, forced up by the colder, heavier upper winds, which come down and are warmed in their turn. Thus a vast circulation is in process. It is this which gives us our day breezes, increasing force from morning until the middle of the afternoon and then, towards evening. dying down into a calm.

Now, as this air ascends and expands, it is cooled, and, consequently, the water vapor which it contains reaches a point when it can no longer remain a vapor, but must change into the liquid form. Clouds In all probability there will no Saturday thus begin to develop. Those great woolly white edges, often with straight bases and plan. An agreement has been circulated massive, piled-up tops, originate in just among the retailers by one of the clerks this way. If the day is very hot, evaporaand a number will not sign it, among them tion at the earth's surface is more rapid, the managers of some of the largest stores the ascent of the air currents is swifter, in town, who say they are unwilling to and clouds are formed in greater abunlose the hig business of Saturday afternoon. dance. The lightning-well, nobody knows; suffice it to say that there is always a considerable amount of electricity in the atnosphere and that the heat of the day, ogether with the extensive formation of liquid water from water vapor, or gaseous water, probably acts upon this electricity in such a way as to collect it in large quantities. At least, this is what some scientists tell us. Lastly, the thunder is merely the crash of the atmosphere as it closes over the hole (for it is literally a hole) made in it by the rapid passage of the lightning.-Boston Transcript.

GAS METERS UNDERGO TESTS

City Rendy to Measure Capacity of Instruments and Determine Accuracy.

Through the energy or Gas Inspector Lynch, the machine at the city hall for testing gas meters has been repaired and put in working order and for the first time in twelve years it is doing business as the city regulations demand. At an expense of about $135 the inspector transferred the apparatus of his office from the fourth floor to the basement, where they are easier of access and put them all in good condition. He has inspected something like forty meters at the request of consumers and found the majority to be running "slow," but a few fast, and one as much as 15 per cent. New meters were installed in the cases where it was found that the old ones were mounting up gas bills altogether too rapidly and not in accord with exact justice. The ordinance's require a $1 fee to be paid the gas inspector for each examination, but Inspector Lynch waived this in all cases where the meters are brought to the city hall. If he has to go after them the fee is charged by way of expenses. The test of the relative consumption of gas by Welsbach and the old style fish tall burners will be made in the city hall base

Initial Showing and Sale Models for Fall 1905 Ladies' Suits and Coats

Beginning Monday, Aug. 7 and continuing for one week.

This event is awaited by hundreds of Omaha ladies who have come to regard this as the first authentic expose of correct fall fashions. We wish you to consider this a personal invitation to view these new styles. Even if you are not ready to make your selection this array of styles can scarcely fail to interest you.

The model suits and coats are from the same high class New York tailoring establishment as in our past advance showings but we are enabled to show many more models revealing the settled styles for autumn than ever before. Many innovations in suit styles for fall are very marked.

The showing offers a splendid variety for purchasers of ready-made garments as well as serving for correct models for made-to-measure suits.
