The peace conference began at two min-utes before 19 o'clock. The plenipotentiaries went to the navy yard in their motor cars, but the trip was somewhat slow, on 'account of the drizzling rain, which made the ronds muddy. Ten minutes after their arrival at the naval stores building, the negotiators had taken their places in the conference room and work began.

At the morning session today, consideration of article 4, which relates to the integrity of China, was begun. As the session of Sakhalin is the fifth article, the natural deduction would be that today would witness a collision and possibly a deadlock. But it appeared likely that the question of the cession of the island, upon which neither side is now prepared to yield, when reached by mutual agreement would be postponed until the end, the policy of each side as understood being to maneuver to place the responsibility of a rupture on the other. It it regarded as a practical certainty that neither will insist at this juncture upon precipitating a aituation which will decide this issue. The plan is almost certain to pass over the disputed articles and see how far an agreement is possible, then to return and attack the obstacles. This is the logical and general method of diplomacy. It has the great advantage of bringing the plentpotentiaries to a rapprochment upon every possible point and clearly defining the points of divergence, narrowing the issues which divide the negotiations to the fowest possible number.

Chance for Compromise.
