Ore Worth $2,000 Per Ton Found on the Sylvanite Property

The gold fields of Boulder county embrace one of the largest mineral areas of Colorado. Gold was first discovered in this field in 1850 and for over forty years the mines of the country have poured forth a stream of golden wealth, quietly and without any flare of trumpets, and have produced over $0,000,000 to date.

The tellurium belt of Boulder county is six miles wide and twenty-five miles long and in area is the largest in the world, excapting the Cripple Creek district. Tellurium is found combined with gold and silver.

One of the peculiar characteristics of this ore is the fabulous value in gold which it carries, ranging from 100 to $100,000 per ton. In appearance it gives no sign of the existing metals, but when reasted on a common stove the pure gold comes to the surface in the form of globules or bubbles.

Magnetia mountain is located in the richest portion of this Tellurium belt. A small area about half a mile square on this mountain is considered by mining experts to be one of the richest gold-bearing regions in the Rocky mountains. Nearly $2,000,-000 in gold has been taken from the shallow workings of the mines, few of the shafts being over 100 feet deep.

Some of the Tellurium and Calavarite over found in this mountain yield over $5,000 per ton in gold. The over as shipped, however, usually yield from $40 to $1,000 per ton. The veins also contain large quantities of low-grade over that will run from $10 to $40 per ton.

The Sylvanite Doen Mining and Tuppel company, has been organized for the pure per ton in gold. The ores as shipped, however, usually yield from $40 to $2,000 per ton. The veins also contain large quantities of low-grade ores that will run from $10 to $40 per ton.

The Sylvanite Deep Mining and Tunnel company has been organized for the purpose of driving a cross-cut tunnel, at a great depth underground, through Magnolia mountain to cut all these rich veins and ore bodies, creating a new level, away below the surface, through which all the rock and ore can be handled by gravity, and the veins all drained through the tunnel, practically bringing all the veins and mines in the mountain under a common system of development and operation.

The length of this tunnel will be $2,000 feet. A large proportion of the ground is virgin territory, owned and controlled by this company. The tunnel is expected to cut over twenty known veins that have produced large quantities of gold. Most of these veins will be cut at a depth of from $60 to 1,200 feet below the surface.

Based on the amount of ore already taken from the surface workings on Magnolia mountain, it is safe to assume that over 1,500,000 tons of ore that, will run from $10 to $500 and upward per ton will be tributary to this tunnel when it is extended its full length into the mountain, and the mining, drainage of water and transportation of these ores will yield an immense revenue to the tunnel company.

Mr. Charles DeCamp, for many years manager of the great Portland mine at Cripple Creek, and one of the best posted mining men in the country, says that the half-mile square on Magnolia mountain that the Sylvanite Tunnel is running under is one of the richest gold-bearing spots in the United States.

It is believed by experienced mining operators who are familiar with the great mineral wealth of this mountain that the Sylvanite Tunnel will open up sufficient ore of stock issued.

Among the properties secured by this company is the old Dardanelie mine. This of stock issued.

Among the properties secured by this company is the old Dardanelie mine. This is the first mine on the mountain side above the Sylvanite Tunnel. Twenty years ago, when this mine was first discovered, nearly $40,000 in gold was taken from right near the surface. Owing to the steepness of the mountain every pound of this ore had to be packed down at a great expense, practically prohibiting the mining and shipping of all low or medium-grade ores.

The tunnel has already drained this mine, and in opening up the vein in the old workings above a magnificent body of ore has been uncovered, containing large quantities of Tellurium and rusty gold, some of it assaying from $200 to $2,000 per ton, and the company is now preparing to make a connection through the tunnel with this rich ore chimney.

A few days ago a number of the stockholders, including Mr. Frank Chittenden and Mr. J. L. Harries of South Omaha, Mr. W. A. McAllister, Mr. M. C. Calto and Mr. O. C. Shannon of Columbus, Neb., and Mr. J. H. McMahon of Omaha, visited the tunnel and took out a lot of ore from this vein and had it tested. Some of it yielded nearly $1.00 a pound in gold.

$1.00 a ponud in gold.

As soon as arrangements can be made for shipping the ore from this vein it is expected to put the company on a dividend-paying basis.

The company offers for sale a limited amount of its treasury stock during the next ten days at TWENTY CENTS A SHARE.

Parties purchasing 200 shares or more may pay one-fourth cash, balance in thirty, sixty and ninety days, if desired; 5 per cent discount allowed on all cash sales. All applications for shares should be made direct to

Features of the Pending Railroad Regulation Bill Just and Reasonable.

SHALLOWNESS OF OPPOSITION ARGUMENT

Necessity for National Restriction of the Dangerous Power Lodged in Traffic Managers-"A Square Deal for Everybody,"

O. P. Gothlin, freight manager for the National Cash Register company of Dayton, O., regards the essential features of the Esch-Townsend rate regulation bill pending in congress as "a square deal for everybody," and presents his views in American Industries as follows:

Whether or not it be for the best interests of the general public that the Esch-Townsend bill be passed by the senate in the shape that it came from the house, is now being debated all over the country The senate committee on interstate commerce has heard exhaustive arguments on both sides, but has, as yet, given no indication as to what their report will be. I have no sympathy with the man who is 'agin the railroads" on general principles; for with the man who does not feel the same moral obligation to deal with as strict honesty with a rallway corporation. as with an individual. In approaching this question all prejudice should be laid aside, that we may consider it in a fair-minded, unblased temper. Every fair-minded citigen will concede that the carriers are enperform. The stockholders are entitled to just return on their investments, and the ervants are entitled to an adequate comconsulion for their work. On the other moral obligation to deal fairly with all none, or against none.

Tariffa Essential in the Selling. Every individual, firm or corporation will onduct its business with the intent of procuring or producing its wares at the lowest ost possible and marketing them at the highest price possible. This policy is not subject to criticism; but there are limitations applicable to transportation companies that are not applicable to other lines of business. I can best show this by illustration.

A corporation manufacturing steam en gines must take into consideration competition in making its prices. It may, for a limited time and for a limited ex-tent, by means of patents or combinations, create an artificial monopoly but it is not a natural monopoly. On the other hand, a transportation line is, in its relation to the majority of its customers, a natural monopoly. Those of its patrons who are located at noncompetitive points can buy of that line only. They cannot refuse to buy the service, at the price it is offered for sale, without going out of business; and more than 50 per cent of the tonnage handled by carriers originates at local points.

In all time since law has been recognized natural monopolies have been considered amenable to legal limitations from which other lines of trade have been exempt. We see this principle applied today in such small things as carriage fares. In every large city the charges that may be assessed by hack drivers are regulated by ordinance. Street car fares are regulated by municipal ordinance, and in most states passenger fares and freight charges are subject to legislative control. Why, then, the strenuous objection to the Esch-Townsend bill, which is

Some of the gentlemen who appear be fore the senate committee have spoken as though they were alarmed at the effect the bill would have, if enacted into a law, think that the immediate effect would be reduction of revenue and a consequent depreciation of stock values. Such anticipations are, to my mind, entirely unsupposed that the commission will stultify itself by radical action, and in the second place, the special court would promptly ability, after the law (if it become a law) has been in effect a year, it will be found that the average rate per ton per mile will not have been decreased at all. On the contrary, it will probably have been in-

It is not rulnously low charges that the public demand, but a fairly adjusted distrioution of charges. There are three kinds of discrimination; discrimination between individuals, discrimination between commodities, and discrimination between localties. Formerly, the first mentioned was the great evil. It was effected by means of rebates: but it is now a thing of the past. It may exist in a few isolated cases, but the public generally are not cognizant of it. Elkins law killed it, almost, if not entirely, But discrimination between commodities and between localities still exists, and will continue to exist until there be some such legislation as that provided in the Each-Townsend bill.

It seems inconsistent to commend the Eikins law and condemn the Bech-Townsend bill, and yet some of our good friends representing the carriers' side of the controversy do this very thing. The Each-Townsend bill represents exactly the same 250; centrifugal, 6@14c. ethical principle that does the Elkins law. Both seek to prevent discrimination. The Elkins law aims at discrimination by secret rates; the Esch-Townsend bill at discrimination by tariff rates.
Suppose two manufacturers of the sam article are located at the same point. It would obviously be wrong to give one manufacturer a concession of 25 per cent in carriage charges by rebate. It could be done in no other way. Suppose a third manufacturer of the same article be located at a noncompetitive point. It is not just as portation charge is not a factor in determining price. Take hats, for instance. A difference of 25 or even 50 cents per hundred pounds in the cost of their freight carriage would have little or no effect on the selling price. This is not true, however, of most commodities. A difference of 5 cents in the freight rate means $1.25 per thousand feet of soft lumber, $2 cents per bushol of wheat, $1 per lumber, $2 cents per bushol of wheat, $1 per

As the situation is at present, it Large Demand for Goods, While Collections is possible for the freight traffic manager of a large system, or a traffic association, to erect a Chinese wall around a territory, beyond which it is not possible for a producing company to go in search of markets. Physically, this wall is imaginary; but it is as effective as though it were 1,000 yards high and 1,000 feet thick. Dangers in Ratiroad Discriminations. This situation applies to a greater or less extent on all low class commodities, and they constitute at a very conservative estimate 60 per cent of the tonnage handled by rallways. In other words, it now lies within the power of carrying companies to make and unmake markets; to neutralize and even destroy the natural advantages of one locality, and to create an artificial advantage for another locality.

This is a dangerous power. It is only fair that it be subject to legal limitations so that if it be used to the detriment of any individual or locality, there may be means of redress. Civilization means the limitation of individual power for the general welfare. Unlimited power begets license. Humanity is frail, and the possessor of unusual power is liable to use It to the public detriment. In an undeveloped society, where limitations are unknown, the weaker individuals have a hard time. It makes little difference whether the expression of power be a club or a document, the result is the same.

It is probable that the strenuous opposition by carriers to the proposed legislation is because it provides a speedy and inexpensive method for the righting of wrong conditions. It is probable that even at titled to a fair return for the service they present there is some slow, tortuous and expensive way for a shipper of freight to secure, through the courts, relief from injury occasioned by the wrong adjustment of rates; but it is so remote, so uncertain hand, there rests upon the carrier the and so expensive that the average indipatrons alike; to discriminate in favor of over, most grievances are of general ap-

Not even the most strenuous opponent of the Esch-Townsend bill will assert that this declaration is wrong in principle. He is only opposed to the application of it-that is all. BOSTON, Aug. 19.—WOOL—The Boston Commercial Bulletin has this to say of the wool market: The market is generally quiet, but some dealers report a fair business in a smaller way. The trade's principal activity is the receiving and distributing of new wools. Australian and South American wools have not had an active call, while fine pulled wools have sold wherever shown. A little 1906 contracting in Idaho, Wyoming and Nevada prices offered and the attitude of growers does not at the present promise any general contracting. The foreign markets are extremely strong and stocks are light. The London wool auctions open September 19, and the first important Australian sale will be held at Adelaide on September 18.

The shipments of wool from Boston to date from December 29, 1804, according to the same authority, are 147,873,147 pounds, against 134,513,951 pounds at the same time last year. The receipts to date are 245,801,-104 pounds, against 293,477,342 pounds for the same period last year.

General conditions in Omaha's trade territory this week have been very satisfactory. Hains have practically ensured an enormous corn crop, while latest threshing reports indicate that the wheat crop is as large as estimates made at cutting time. The demand for articles from Omaha's wholesale market has been good and prospects for the future are of the best. Collections are unusually good for the time of year.

pects for the future are of the best. Collections are unusually good for the time of year.

Coffee continues to advance. The first of the week an eastern coffee seller offered sevens to a local house at 8%c. The last of the week he said he was selling that grade for 8%c. Prices cannot stay where they are, in the opinion of local dealers. Prices in this country must advance, or those at the primary markets must decline at once. It is probable that the former will be the case.

Sugar has been steady, with no material change either in raws or refined. The refiners are largely oversold and are from one to two weeks behind in filling their orders. The demand is very good in this section of the country, and the outlook is encouraging for an increased business from now on. It is expected that the railroads will get together this week and adjust their rate differences. This would affect the price of sugar 3c in the upward direction, and taken with the fact that the next two months will be a large consuming period, no lower prices are expected.

Chees is about the same as a week ago. Young Americas, if anything, are a little casier. The demand is still heavy. The market this week cannot be foretold, but it is expected that not much lower prices will rule for some time, and the probability is for a stronger market in the fall.

and so expensive that the average individual cannot avail himself of it. Morefover, most grievances are of general application; that is to say, an unfair rate adfustment affects not only an individual, but a whole community, and the individual who would appeal to the courts would, at his own expense, fight a battle for the whole community.

Not Socialism, but the Square Deal.
Hence the provision in the proposed legislation that a well-founded complaint shall be taken up by the commission and the case carried to a conclusion at the public expense. Carriers are cognizant of the fact that under existing conditions the great majority of those who believe they are unjustly treated prefer to suffer in silence rather than appeal to the courts.
If the proposed legislation becomes a law,
the means of redress will be so simplified

Prices Quoted on Salmon.

Prices were made this week on new sockeye salmon. The basis established is 10c per dozen higher than was anticipated three or four weeks ago and puts the goods into the 20c class, both the tails and flats. The basis established leaves a spread of 25c per dozen between sockeye tails and red Alaska tails, which by most operators is considered too great. It is quite generally believed that the red Alaskas will soon show an advance. With reference to the sockeye pack it is reported that if all early sales are confirmed, practically the entire pack will have been sold.

Dried Fruit Market.

The dried fruit market has been in such pound more for evaporated raspberries in New York state than they have recently sold for, delivered at the river. This means an advance of 1% per pound. The crop is reported very much short of last season. Evaporated apples are in very strong position, being firmly held at full prices.

In mackerel the market has advanced in sympathy with the advance of 50c a barrel at Gloucester. Telegrams from Gloucester quoted $16.50 per barrel on Georges fish, with sales of some lots of extra fine quality at $17.00 a barrel. Holders on the spot quoted an advance of about 50c on Cape Shore. Prices are firm in herring. Codfish is firm.

Prices continue to be well maintained in the rice market and business is fairly active. Receipts are light from primary markets. At New Orleans receipts are light because of rains. The crop is reported as showing good progress.

Shoe prices still continue their upward march. Shoes which used to sell at the factory at $1 were ordered by an Omaha jobber recently at $1.15. A few days later he received word that his order would not be accepted at less than $1.50. The higher grades of shoes as yet have not shown any difference in price to the consumer. Retailers prefer to stand the loss themselves rather than raise the price. On the lower grades, on which there is but small profit made, they must raise their price with the advance in the leather market.

Japan is now drawing a large amount of leather from America. An order dama from that country a few days ago for 120,000 bundles of side leather, but it could not be filled. A local jobber predicts that in a few years Japani will be making shoes for all the oriental nations.

Stocks of leather are lower than they ever have been, and this accounts for the high price. Shoe houses are howy hipping out fall orders, of which rubbers are a considerable part. The local manufacturing shouses are enjoying a good demand from Colorado and Wyoming for riding and hunting boots.

Omaha dry goods houses have experienced the largest trade in the last three weeks there has ever been in this market. The order trade, too, has been good, both from salasmen and direct from customers, especially on prints and cotton goods. An announcement has been made by the American Print company that it will advance its various lines 1/2 to 1/2 cent. August 25. The effect is that present local trade is stimulated. New business will be 5 cents for indigo blues, grays and mournings. Shirting bas advanced 1/2 cent to a basis of 1/4 cents. Well informed retailers are supplying their wants before the advances take place. The announcement was made in New York Friday that leading bleached and brown goods would be marked up 1/2 cent all around. Some buyers think this will be an unhealthy advance, even considering the high price of cotton. Hardware Activity.

Hardware Activity.

A large tonnage of nails and wire, plates and pipe is going forward at the present time. There is an immense consumption of these materials. Builders' hardware is in great demand and the different varieties and kinds that the jobbers offer now are so low in price and fine and handsome in quality that the trade is buying and is going to buy liberally, and there will be a big trade this fall. Orders are coming in for larger and better assortments than heretofore.

There is a lot of roofing material going forward both in black and galvanized sheets also painted, galvanized, corrugated and crimped sheets and roofing plate, indicating that there are many buildings that must be covered before the fall season closes. Salesmen are returning from their vacations and are rending in many well assorted orders. Trade on the whole in all lines is quite satisfactory.
