One that we shall have recurring and increasing business depressions at home and increasing business depressions at nome unless we have larger markets; the other that only as we develop missionary work and create the needs which come with Christian civilization can we have these larger markets. It has become necessary for us in order to prevent congestion and strikes at home to find larger markets for our goods.

It is only as we develop missions that we shall have a market in the orient which will demand our manufactures in sufficient quantities to match our increased facilities. It is only when the heathen is changed within that there comes a desire for the manifold articles that belong to the Christian man and the Christian home. The missionary is everywhere and always the ploneer of trade.

When I arrived in Europe I noticed that the unfortunate difficulties in which the Equitable found itself attracted a great deal of attention there and produced almost as painful an impression there as they have here. This matter has had a tendency perhaps not whoily unwelcome to European competitors to reflect on business enterprises generally, but, on the other hand, one could point out that after these matters became public it did not take long for American public opinion to assert itself. Besides the impression produced by this affair has been entirely overshadowed by the president's action in calling the peace conference and by his success in leading it to such a satisfactory result. When the session of the legislative comnittee to investigate the life insurance business was begun today Edmund D. Randolph, treasurer of the New York Insurance company, was again called to the stand. He presented a statement of the profits realized from the perations of the New York Life Insurance mpany's joint accounts. It showed profits of 1884 541 in ten years and was made out at the request of Counsel Hughes for the ommittee earlier in the week. A book of the financial transactions nonledger contracts kept at its Hanover bank office was also presented.

Checks for $100,000 were found in the ac counts of the Hanover bank office of the company. They were paid to A. Hamilton who, Mr. Randolph said, was connected with the law department. These payments were made on order of the president, without any action whatever by the finance ommittee, and Mr. Randolph said he knew nothing whatever about them. On December 30 another instance of checks ordered paid by the president to the amount of $48,702 was found, and Mr. Randolph said he knew of no one but the president who could tell what these items were for. As to the statement of the profits presented earlier, Mr. Randolph referred Mr. Hughes o George W. Perkins, who has charge of that part of the operations. Mr. Perkins was sent for at this stage of the proceedings.

Perkins Tells Things.

George W. Perkins, vice president of the New York Life Insurance company and partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., took the stand. He presented his original contract with the New York Life, which was a letter from his father. In 1872, offer-ing him a position as clerk. It was dated Pittsburg, March 27, 1872, and said in part: Pittsburg, March 27, 1873, and said in part:

I have obtained a situation for you with the New York Life to act for the present as my clerk at a salary of $25 per month, commencing April 1, 1873. Its continuance will depend upon your improvement in spelling and writing, which will need to be very rapid; also upon your care to attend to everything given you to do promptly without making any blunders or mistakes,
and if in every respect you are honest, truthful and faithful in your duties, it will lead eventually to some better position.
Mr. Beers hopes that you will prove to be the coming man for the company. I will instruct you about your duties in detail
when I reach Chicago.
Mr. Perkins went on:

Mr. Perkins went on: "I want to say I was 16 years old when the letter was written. I wanted to leave school and go to work at once. I have tried to live up to the injunctions in this letter.

Mr. Perkins said he succeeded to the first vice presidency in 1908, with a salary of $25,000. Before he entered the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. he drew a salary of $75,000 from the New York Life, but it was reduced upon entering this firm. Turned Money Back.

Mr. Perkins entered with great detail into the manner of his becoming a partner in the Morgan house and also his relations to the New York Life. He declared that any profits accruing to him on bonds sold to the New York Life by J. P. Morgan & Co. he turned back to the insurance company by his personal check.

Mr. Perkins was asked if W. S. Fan-Mr. Perkins replied: "My loyalty lies shawe & Co. purchased bonds of J. P. Morgan & Co. "They do," was the reply. "Does the New York Life buy of W.
