This latter he thought was the one dark cloud that threatened the country. He deplored the fact that the United States had interfered in he war of the orient, and spoke long and earnestly for the country to attend strictly to the affairs of the home country. On the tariff question he brought to bear one of his old-time speeches and predicted that the democratic party would eventually win a victory,

As touching the attitude of the democratic party of Nebraska loward the general railroad question we declare specifically as follows:

This convention emphatically condemns the issuance of free transportation for any purpose other than in the genuine cases of charity or to bona fide employes actually under pay of the issuing corporation, and demands the adoption by the next Nebraska legislature of a law making the intentional acceptance of free transportation a criminal offense, as a violation of the principles of justice by a common carrier.

Nominations by Acciamation. Bowlby of Saline moved to nominate supreme judge, which was adopted amid calls for Bryan. Bowiby placed in nomination Judge W. E. Hastings of Wilber. P. L. Hall of Lancaster moved that Has-

The democratic party, he said, should not be discouraged because the republican party was now occupying the position the democrats occupied fifteen years ago. He made a bid for railroad support by saying the democratic party should not go further than to say that all before the law. He said he had ridden on passes, but had none at this time to return. He would not refuse a retainer from a railroad, he said, were he practicing law, and if the convention didn't like that kind of a platform, then it could nominate some to introduce him, but the convention had become enthusiastic and Bryan spoke. Mr. Bryan expressed his pleasure at being able to say a word to the democrats of Nebranks before leaving for a trip around the world. There was never a better time, he said, for him to leave than now, as it would take the president and senate about a year to get together. The democratic party is in better shape now, he said, than ever before The defeat of Parker, he claimed, was not a victory for the republican party, but a rebuke to the democratic party. The republican party, he said, was now going through the same fights which the democrats had already settled in their party. No republican leader today, he said, was gaining popularity except the man who was advocating democratic doctrines. La Follette, he said, was the greatest reformer in the republican party and he gained his popularity by advocating democratic doctrines, especially the primary system, which is a democratic principle. La Follette's advocacy of the regulation of railroads, he said, was another democratic principle. The popularity of Governor Cummins of Iowa, he said was gained through his advocacy of democratic doctrines. The president of the United States, he said, who today is enjoying popularity, has never done a thing to make him popular except his advocacy We condemn the republican party of Nebraska for its general and continued subserviency to great corporations and for the hypocrisy of its present day attitude. For more than five years that party has been in control of the executive and legislative power, yet it has failed to provide the people with relief from corporate imposition. It has had it within its power to protect the people, but it has piled higher and higher the burdens upon them and has permitted the representatives of special interests to wage unrestrained war upon the LINCOLN, Sept. 20 .- (Special.) -- Chairman Weber called the populist state convention to order at 2:20. Frank Eager, the treascounty was elected temporary chairman. E. Walworth temporary secretary and Mr. Lundean of Saunders county assistant secretary. The temporary organization was nade permanent.

The meeting comprised about fifty delegates and was held in the Young block at Fifteenth and O streets. There was no opposition to the credentials offered and the susiness proceeded smoothly.

M. F. Harrington moved the appointment of a committee on resolutions. The committee of five members was as follows: M. F. Harrington, Jacob Wolfe, ex-Lleutenant Governor Gilbert, G. W. Berge and L. D. Beltzer

Frank D. Eager moved that the convention proceed to the nomination of two regents and a supreme judge and then hear Bryan at the Auditorium, where he was billed to address the democrats.

The motion aroused a flurry of protests, but eventually carried. Mr. Erick of Lancaster county was especially vehement. He said it was merely a scheme to get the delegates under the siren influence of the orator who many times had brought about fusion and had practically swallowed the party. Others said that if the convention disbanded without naming a full ticket it might as well abandon the campaign, as the members would not return.

The motion carried. The next order was the nomination of a regent. The name of D. C. Cole, superintendent of schools of Polk county, was greeted effusively and he was selected by acclamation. A recess until 4:30 was then taken, many members exclaiming as they left that they would not only avoid hearing Bryan, but would go home on the first train. The others flocked to the Auditorium.

When the convention resumed business after listening to the speech of Bryan, George W. Berge, chairman of the resolutions committee, read the platform, which was adopted. The platform is of the usual populistic mould, but went further than the democratic platform in that it desounced Judge Letton for running for office on an anti-pass platform.

The convention nominated Louis Lightter of Platte county for regent after it had been announced that he had been selected by the democrats. Judge Hastings was then nominated judge, though if a division had been called for he would have lost out. A half hour was then devoted to trying get some one to act as chairman of the state committee and it was finally saddled onto Otto Meyer of Lincoln, who was not present. Frank Eager was chosen treasarer for the same reason and the chairman will select his secretary.

Years of experience have demonstrated the superiority of investments secured by first mortgages in improved real estate. No loss can arise from such when carefully selected at the outset. This becomes the more true when such investments are backed by a strong reserve and the loans reduced by monthly payments.
