FIGHT OF RAMSEY AND GOULD

Controversy Over Control of Wabash Excites Interest in Railroad World.
FINAL TEST BEFORE BOARD OCTOBER 10
Ramsey Believes He Will Swing Majority of Votes and Supercede Gould as Dominating Power of Road.
Strained relations between George J. Gould, chairman of the board of directors, and Joseph Ramsey, Jr., president of the Wabash railroad, and the controversy between these two men and their friends over the control of the railroad, is exciting unusual interest in the railroad world. The two men—though Ramsey disclaims the existence of personal animus between them—do not speak, notwithstanding they have their private offices in adjoining rooms in New York. The culmination of Ramsey's fight to wrest control of the road from Gould will come October 10, when the Wabash security holders have their annual meeting.
Mr. Ramsey has just returned from abroad, taking a leave of absence at the request of the board of directors. He says himself that at the last meeting of the board in the spring he was requested to take a leave until October 1, or thereabouts. It will be recalled that at that meeting the report gained currency—and has been generally accepted as correct—that Gould made a peremptory demand that the board request Ramsey's immediate resignation, but that the board declined to do this. It took the alternative of requesting the president to absent himself for a few months from the scene of his official activities. Thereupon the impression went abroad that the board sided with Ramsey as against Gould. As to Mr. Ramsey's ability to supersede Gould as the dominating factor of the Wabash, however, there is serious difference of opinion.
What Each Man Says.
Mr. Ramsey this week is quoted by the New York Times as expressing confidence in his ability to secure support of a majority of the voting security holders of the Wabash to give him control. The interview quotes him as saying:
I would not have gone into this thing unless I had reason to hope that I would receive the proxies of a majority of the security holders of the Wabash. I would certainly not willingly go into a losing fight.
On the other hand Mr. Gould expresses less comminative. The New York Commercial quotes him as saying, when asked to comment upon President Ramsey's assertion that the Gould faction is not in control of a majority of the votes for the approaching annual election:
No, I think the kindest course that I can pursue in this matter, is to say nothing.
This statement the Commercial adds is regarded as more significant than had been given a long interview.
The Times adds:
Mr. Ramsey was asked whether his success at the coming annual meeting would mean that Mr. Gould would be eliminated as a factor in the management of the Wabash. He replied:
I would do nothing detrimental to the interests of any of the security holders of the Wabash, and I do not believe that merely because a majority are in control of a road that they have any right to ignore the interest of the rest of the owners of the property.
Removal of Gould.
Asked if he would remove Mr. Gould as chairman of the board if he got a majority at the annual meeting, Ramsey said that there had never been the slightest personal trouble between them, and that the differences were due entirely to methods and policies.
"There was never any dissatisfaction on the part of Mr. Gould with the Wabash," he said. "It was on questions of methods and policies that we disagreed. Mr. Gould, in fact, frequently commended the Wabash plans."
Removal of Gould as the power in Wabash affairs would seem to be displacing an irremovable landmark and it is this feature, together with the fact of the tremendous influence allied with him and at his command which makes many railroad men doubt the success or possibility of Ramsey's attempt, and yet railroad officials admit they have been taught in the last few years that all things are possible in railroad affairs.

WOMAN GETS VERY HARD FALL

Porch Rail Gives Way and Mrs. George Durham is Laid Up with Broken Leg.
About 5 o'clock last evening Mrs. Durham, wife of George Durham of 230 North Twenty-eighth avenue, fell from the porch at the second floor. The distance was eighteen feet, and she struck on firm ground, sustaining a severe fracture of the right leg at the thigh, painful bruises about the head and face as well as other contusions on the body. She was attended at her home by Drs. Moore and Impey, and lies in a serious condition. The rail of the porch was known to have been defective and they had arranged to have it repaired. Mrs. Durham forgot the unsafe condition of the rail in her work and leaned against it, when it gave away.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The Twelfth Ward Republican club will hold a ratification meeting in Jensen's hall at 1315 North Spaulding streets Saturday night.
Snatch thieves are reported as having entered the home of Albert King 325 Charles street, Thursday evening and stolen a handbag containing about $30.
Samuel Hayes, colored, was Friday morning sentenced to fifteen days on a charge of petty larceny. Hayes was charged with stealing roofing material from J. M. Dow of the National Roofing company.
James Kelly, the man who went to sleep Thursday afternoon across a fall under a box car at Eighth and Douglas streets, was Friday morning sentenced to six days in jail for being drunk and sleeping on the railroad tracks.
Samuel Downs, 105 North Sixteenth street has reported to the police that Thursday evening two strangers engaged a room at the address given and left at an early hour Friday morning with a gold watch and $20 belonging to Downs.

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Matter of City Hall Bonds Slated for Hearing.
JUDGE SEARS PREPARES TO TRY CASE
City Attorney Lambert Looks After City's Interests, While City Attorney Breen of Omaha Appears for Plaintiffs.
The city hall bond case is set for hearing before Judge Sears today. This case was called Friday, but owing to the fact that Attorney Breen was otherwise engaged, the case went over until today. As Judge Sears has nothing else on his docket at the present time, the attorneys on both sides expect that the case will be tried at once.
City Attorney Lambert is looking after the city's interest in the case and City Attorney Breen of Omaha is to appear for Madeline Pivonka and others who brought the suit.
It is alleged, among other things by the plaintiffs in the case, that the ordinance directing the election and submitting the proposition for voting $70,000 for a city hall was not passed legally. The assertion is made that the rules were suspended last spring by the council and the ordinance rushed through. Another point is the payment of interest semi-annually and the neglect of the city officials to properly publish the amount of interest the bonds, if issued, are to draw. Other points are raised by Attorney Breen, but these are two of the important ones. The people voted on this city hall proposition last spring and the bonds carried. The matter was taken into the courts and has been dragging along ever since.
Mr. Lambert says that no matter which way the court decides the case, either for or against the city, an appeal will be taken to the state supreme court. There is therefore no likelihood of the bonds being issued this year, and there is no telling when the supreme court will hand down a decision upon the case gets up in it.
Of late there has been very little talk about the city hall building although a site at the southwest corner of Twenty-fourth and O streets was decided on when the bonds were voted.
Jetter Starts Improvements.
Work was commenced Friday at the Jetter brewery on the new pitch sheds and cooper shop. This building is 100 feet long and 20 feet high and will be a great improvement to the brewery property when completed. Yesterday City Engineer Beal struck out the ground at the brewery for the new temporary brick office building. Henry Vane of Omaha is drawing the plans for this building and bids for the construction will be received next week.
Today the Jettors will let the contract for a two-story brick building to be erected at the northwest corner of Twenty-fourth and Q streets. This building when completed is to cost about $1000.
Still Stealing Grain Doers.
In spite of the efforts of the police, thieves are still stealing the inner doors of grain cars. When the cars of grain are unloaded in the yards the inner doors are set aside and thieves find it an easy matter to carry them away. Within the last few weeks about 300 doors have been stolen from grain cars and only one man

STREET CAR CRUSHES HAND

Richard Hillinger Jumps Backward from Car While it is Moving Rapidly.
While the Walnut Hill car was moving rapidly toward Benson a man was observed to jump backward off the car. He fell heavily on his shoulders and the back of his head, with his right hand outstretched to the rail. Instantly it was crushed off and the man lay as dead beside the car. The man is Richard Hillinger, a laborer, who lives in Benson. He was picked up by the train crew and carried to the drug store at Forty-fifth and Military avenue. Here he was attended by Police Surgeon Cox and afterward removed to the Clarkson hospital.
In the first examination it was impossible to tell whether there was a fracture of the skull, although it is feared. In explanation of the accident, R. H. Covert and J. H. Johnson, the train men, say the man sat near the front end of the car and it appeared that he had been indulging in drink as he went to sleep on the car. Covert, the conductor, awakened the man and asked him where he wanted to get off. After being roused, as the car was at full speed near Decatur street, on Military avenue, the man's hat was blown off. Without giving warning or waiting even to turn in the direction in which the car was moving, he sprang off, with the result that he will lose his hand, if not his life.
At 12 o'clock word was received from the hospital that there was no fracture of the skull and that the man was doing well.
Mortality Statistics.
The following births and deaths have been reported to the Board of Health during the twenty-four hours ending at noon Friday:
Births—Harry A. Stenfield, 3312 North Seventeenth, girl; Lawrence Andrews, 33 South Twenty-second, girl; Charles J. Gorman, 25 Ames avenue, girl; Jake Schreiner, 122 South Fifth, boy.
Deaths—Ella G. Fitzgerald, 1314 South Third, 4.
HAD AN AWFUL TIME.
But Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Cured Him.
It is with pleasure that I give you this unqualified testimonial. About a year ago when I had a severe case of measles I got caught out in a hard rain and the measles settled in my stomach and bowels. I had an awful time and had it not been for the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, I could not have possibly lived but a few hours longer, but thanks to this remedy I am now strong and well. I have written the above through simple gratitude and I shall always speak a good word for this remedy.—Sam H. Gwin, traveling salesman for Concord Nursery, Concord, Ga.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Dr. Allison left for the west Friday morning.
George Goodell of St. Paul, superintendent of the Great Western railway, and with him Al. Munster, I could not have possibly lived but a few hours longer, but thanks to this remedy I am now strong and well. I have written the above through simple gratitude and I shall always speak a good word for this remedy.—Sam H. Gwin, traveling salesman for Concord Nursery, Concord, Ga.

ANTE CARNIVAL CLEAN-UP

Arrest of All Suspicious Characters Made in View of Ant-Carnival.
Ben Peroid.
Chief of Police Donahue says he is beginning his annual roundup of suspicious characters that infest the city, particularly just before carnival time. Last year the chief's forces exercised untiring vigilance with the result that the city was practically free from crime during the visit of thousands of strangers, and the chief intends that last year's record shall not go by default this season.
Next Monday morning a detail of special policemen for the street fair will be sworn in.
Could Not Find the Sluggler.
Robert Hawks of 128 Van Camp street was taken to the surgical department of the police station Thursday night with a badly battered head and face. Hawks said he had been in a fight under the viaduct near the King brewery, but was unable to disclose the identity of his assailant or assailants. Police Surgeons Cox and Langdon attended Hawks' injuries.
Medlar Begins to Build.
Work began Friday morning on the new building to be erected by the L. A. Medlar company, publishers of the Hotel Reporter. The building is to occupy a lot 41x6 feet immediately south of the Pacific Express
