Coroner's Jury Returns a Verdict that Briswold Was Murdered, While Police Insist it is a Case of Suicide.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 2 .- (Special.) Benator J. J. Crossley of Winterset is in the city today and was closeted for over an hour with Governor Cummins in con aultation on the proposed primary election law. Senator Crossley was the author a state-wide primary election law both at the last session of the legislature and at the session before the last. He stated today that he was assured that public sentiment had considerably changed on the question, and that he had assurance himself from many members of the legislature that they would this year favor the bill. It has been apparent with politicians for some time that the primary election law would be perhaps the most conspicuous matter of legislation before the legislature when it comes together next January. During the summer the governor has deivered addresses in nearly every county in the state, and they have all been in favor of the passage of a primary election When seen today Senstor Crossley

WOMAN IN CLUB AND CHARITY

Owing to the Ak-Sar-Ben guests in the mes of the members, there will not be as large an attendance of Omaha women at the annual meeting of the Nebraska Federation as usual this year. The delegation from the Omaba Woman's club goes to Lincoln today and includes eight represontatives; Mrs. Mary G. Andrews, Mrs. Clara Rosewater, Mrs. Edward Johnson Mrs. C. R. Glover, Mrs. Matthews, Miss Josie McHugh, Mrs. C. C. Cope and Mrs. B. J. Scannell, besides a number of other women who will go as visitors. While not all of the present state officers are eligible to re-election, there is no political talk among the Omaha women. There is no question but Mrs. H. M. Bushnell of Lincoln will be elected to serve another term as president, but there is some talk of electing the corresponding secretary from Lincoln to expedite the business of both that and the president's office. It is unfortunate that the industrial program, one of the most important of the convention, will come Thursday evening, when special trains will be run up to Omaha for the electrical parade, as it is feared that many will be out of town who would otherwise hear that program. While there will be no particular issue, every session is replete with interesting features that promise to be of material help in the way of suggestions for the coming year's work.

After a deal of consideration and discussion, the women's organization in a number of the towns of Nebraska have decided upon an aggressive crusade against bill at the next session of the legislature vice. For years they have petitioned town and it will be along the same lines as and county officials to enforce laws against the bill presented at the last session, with disreputable resorts and petitioned merthe state-wide provisions, and delegates to chants to stop selling intoxicants, tomerely canvass the vote of the primary. bacco and eigarettes to their sons, but it the members of both branches of the cided upon a policy of retaliation. The governor has given his as- izations that the women go back to the methods of the old crusade days-and go such a measure, and we are more hopeful even further. She suggests, and the women than ever before that the measure will of the towns have heard her with favor that the mothers go themselves to the ob jectionable places-raid them, so to speak, After deliberating for several days the and make a practice of surprising them until they accomplish something.

As for the merchants who persistently disregard their appeals, they will boycott them. In one town last winter, where the proprietor of the largest general store in deciares that the man committed suicide, they canvassed the town and laid the facts before the mothers and with few exceptions, every woman in town agreed to the boycott. Within a month that merchant sent a note to the president of the club apologizing for his conduct and promising to accede to the demands of the women. It is this plan that other towns propose to follow, and if necessary, a committee will be appointed to purchase supplies out Telegram.)-The following are the assign- of town and have them shipped. Two vocal numbers by Mr. Fred Ellis and two by Miss Nell-Painter of Colorado Springs and a whistling solo by Mrs. Berkmeyer of Fremont, O., formerly Miss Josephine Allen of Omaha, contributed to a very enjoyable program.

A radical step was taken by the Alle gheny Presbytery of the United Presbyterian church at its recent meeting at Pittsburg, Pa. A resolution was presented authorizing women to attend the sessions of the presbytery and also giving them the right to vote on all subjects coming before the sessions. The resolution was bitterly opposed by sixty members of the presbytery, but was finally adopted by a good majority. This step has been agitated in Presbyterian circles for years, but the Allegheny presbytery was the first to adopt such a resolution.

A preliminary meeting of the needlework guild has been called at the home of Mrs. Thomas Kilpatrick, 3100 Chicago street, at other cities in Iowa. High mass was cele-brated. The Catholic societies of seven terested in the work of the guild are asked to attend. The meeting will be important and arrangements will be made for the annual fall distribution of garments.

It had long been recognized in police circles, and in fact by all who knew her, that Miss Anderson's service has mover been excelled in the history of the city. The members of the board had nothing but the warmest expressions for her work. In choosing Mrs. Gibbons all think they have chosen well. Five Hundred Are on File for the Second Omaha Horse Show.

"Spiles that won't come off" adorn the faces of all of the directors of the Omaha Horse Show association for the phenomena nanner in which entries have poured into Secretary Cowgill's office. All horse show records have been broken and already over 500 entries have been received. This is an correspondingly happy and are receiving congratulations on all sides.

Seats were placed on sale Monday at the Auditorium and there was a continuou string of purchasers. All seats are good at the Horse Show, and as the performance will be given for six nights and two matinees, seats are numerous, but the demand s great, so President Peck wishes to advise all to get their seats early. The demand did not seem to be for any particular kind of seats, but all sections of the vast building seemed to be on about a par.

A novel advertising feature will be introfuced next week. Manager Haller will send up kites each evening with an envelope and a fuse attached. In the envelope will be free tickets to the Horse Show, and when the fuse burns to the kite it will set the latter on fire and when it has burned the envelopes with the tickets will fall to the ground. Four kites will be sent up each evening in different sections of the city. and as the tickets are quite valuable there will undoubtedly be a wild scramble for the gift of the management.

Although the time is at hand for closing the entries the management desires to anunce that entries from local owners will be received if sent in at onc. The larger classes are all filled, but more entries are desired in some of the local classes, and to make these more interesting to the public the list will be held open for a short time. Two cars of horses and equipment, representing the entities of Crow & Murray of Toronto, have gerived in the city and the carriages are at the Auditorium awaiting the big top which will be used as a hitching tent. This will be placed on Fifteenth street, just south of the Auditorium, and will be large enough to hold all of the equipages and also for use as a hitching tent. The list of exhibitors entered for the horse show to date includes:

The death of Jessie Burdette Patrick, folowing so closely upon that of her younger ister, Marjorie, brings tears to the eyes of large circle of sympathizing friends These two misters, who only lived to the ages of 19 and 15, respectively, had experienced more brightness and pleasure in their short span of life than falls to the lot of many who have passed beyond the three score and ten. Marjorle was a child of light and sunshine, always joyous and bright, the mere sight of her happy face making glad the hearts of her friends; a child of loving heart and ready sympathy. The mind of the elder sister, Jessie, already gave promise of brilliancy and cultivation far beyond her years. Her ability in conversation, her love and appreciation of the best in literature were truly remarkable in one so young. The quiet yet keen sense of humor added to her gentle vivacity of manner lent a sweet charm peculiarly her own. Her enthusiastic devotion to her friends was evidence of the kindly heart that could beat in generous sympathy for those in sorrow.
