PAY AND DEBTS IN THE ARMY

Hard Task of Many an Officer Making Both Ends Meet.

STEADY DRAIN ON LIMITED RESOURCES

"Live Within Your Income or Quit the Army" is General Corbin's Advice, but it is easier said than done.

Taking as a text that paragraph in General Corbin's annual report, "Live within your income or quit the army," the New York Sun analyzes the dictum of the major general, who is pretty well fixed himself, and with the aid of army officers stationed at Governor's Island, presents some figures on the cost of army life which will interest the general public. In part the Sun says:

Before inquiring as to whether there are "officers in the service not mindful of their financial obligations," and whether or not "it is a growing evil," look for a moment at the pay table of an American army officer:

	1st	After	After	After
	1st	2nd	3rd	4th
Lieut.-Gen.	$11,000	$12,000	$13,000	$14,000
Major-Gen.	$9,000	$10,000	$11,000	$12,000
Brig. Gen.	$7,000	$8,000	$9,000	$10,000
Colonel	$5,000	$6,000	$7,000	$8,000
Lieut.-Col.	$4,000	$5,000	$6,000	$7,000
Major	$3,000	$4,000	$5,000	$6,000
Capt., mounted	$2,000	$3,000	$4,000	$5,000
Capt., unmounted	$1,800	$2,800	$3,800	$4,800
1st Lieut., mounted	$1,600	$2,600	$3,600	$4,600
1st Lieut., unmounted	$1,400	$2,400	$3,400	$4,400
2nd Lieut., mounted	$1,200	$2,200	$3,200	$4,200
2nd Lieut., unmounted	$1,000	$2,000	$3,000	$4,000
3rd Lieut., mounted	$800	$1,800	$2,800	$3,800
3rd Lieut., unmounted	$700	$1,700	$2,700	$3,700

It will be observed that there is a 10 per cent increase in pay every five years. There is also a 10 per cent increase in pay during the time of actual service in Porto Rico, the Philippines, Hawaii and Alaska.

Retired officers get three-quarters pay, and the president has the right to retire officers who served in the civil war at one rank higher than that which they occupied at the time of retirement, which practically gives them the same pay they had when they were in the service.

For instance, Now, take the case of a young second lieutenant. He gets about $1,000 a month. He has to purchase from $50 to $100 worth of uniforms to begin on. He has also to have a complete outfit of civilian's clothes, which probably cost him about $100 more.

He has to provide for his own living expenses, that is, food. This costs him at a reasonable estimate $250 a year.

Here is $1,250 of his income gone, leaving him only $750 for incidentals. He has to keep his box of cigars and a fair supply of liquid refreshment in his quarters for his friends when they drop in.

He belongs to the post club. If he is near a big city, all the big cities of the country have army posts near them, he child he's over his ears financially and in the parlance of the day he's up against it hard. If a second lieutenant comes along in a year or two the specter of debt hovers over the officer and his family.

Promotion Slow. It will probably be five years before that officer gets anywhere near $2,000 a year, and he's lucky if he reaches that stage in ten years. A captain at $5,000 a year is a man who has advanced many men rapidly, and captains at $5 are not uncommon.

But this $2,000 rank is crowded, and what is to become of the young fellows who have entered the service since that time? Think how numerous they are.

Below the rank of captain in the army, according to the last Army Register, there are 197 first lieutenants of artillery, 238 first lieutenants of cavalry and 461 first lieutenants of infantry. There are also 177 second lieutenants of artillery, 230 second lieutenants of cavalry and 424 second lieutenants of infantry.

What chance have these of becoming captains and getting $2,000 a year before they are graybeards? Meantime the children keep coming on. An army officer with three children has his nose to the grindstone all the time. Under the rank of captain it is simply impossible to keep two servants under such conditions and live within one's pay. That means drudgery for the wife.

Now all this time the officer must keep up his uniforms and once in a while there comes an order like General Order 132, issued on July 1, 1908, which required all officers from colonel down to get a complete new uniform and there's $500 more gone in one lump.

Soon the children have to go to school. There's always a so-called post school, but it's for little ones, and as a rule it doesn't amount to anything. The public schools are not available generally for these children, and there is no recourse left but private schools.

Life insurance doesn't grow any smaller in its demands on one's income. As a rule it increases, for the officer takes out a larger policy as his family grows, so as to leave a better nest egg in case he dies or is killed in war.

Then there are two more persons to feed, the wife and the servant, and one can see how much there is likely to be left of that extra $500 when the year is finished. It takes a level-headed woman to help a young officer make those ends meet.

All goes well, however, with economy until a baby comes. Then trouble begins. What is the annual cost of a baby? If the mother cares for the child exclusively perhaps $150 will do. The young army officer has no physician's bills to pay. Uncle Sam pays them for him unless he has to have a specialist. But he has a coal bill and a child has already gone slithering $10 a month, or $120 a year.

He now begins to pay life insurance, and that costs him for a moderate policy about $150 a year. He gets his rent free if he lives in quarters provided for him, but he has to pay for the maintenance of a wife, servant and child. He has to pay for a nurse for the child he's over his ears financially and in the parlance of the day he's up against it hard. If a second lieutenant comes along in a year or two the specter of debt hovers over the officer and his family.

THRILLER OF THE SOUTH SEAS

Magnificent Sight Was the Outbreak of a New Volcano on Savali Island.

The eruption of a new volcano on the island of Savali, in the Samoan group, and the terror that it caused among the people that part of the South seas, were witnessed by I. F. Brim, an elder of the Mormon church, who arrived recently on the steamer Sierra from Pago-Pago. The volcano broke out August 2, not two months ago, the confined forces from the bowels of the earth using the little mountain standing back of Matautu as their means of escape. This comparatively small hill had stood for centuries with no sign of having such giant forces hidden beneath its cone.

It was at 3 o'clock on the morning of August 2 that Matautu opened up. The shock of the eruption was felt for a distance of thirty miles and the force of the earthquake shock that followed shattered church buildings of the London Missionary society, ten miles away. But only one person lost his life. This was a high chief, who attempted to investigate the source of the explosion and tremor, and who mounted a cooled-off stream of lava on his way to the source of the trouble. The lava was flooded with a fresh outpouring while he walked along and he sank beneath its relentless body, literally buried alive and cremated.

His other countries officers go into the army largely for the distinction it gives. Most of them have incomes. In our country it isn't so. Men who enter our service do so for the calling, and the only living they get is from the government.

"There is no more devoted and self-sacrificing person in the world than the man who serves his country in the army at an inadequate salary."

It was the opinion of this man that at least $300 a year more should be added to the pay of second lieutenants entering the army and an increasing addition on a similar basis should be given to all the other officers.

Buttinsky.
 The new Webster's International Dictionary contains 25,000 words which have not been printed in any previous dictionary. But one word which deserves a place in any English dictionary was omitted. That word is buttinsky. It is slang, but it is a word which has earned a respected place in the language. It has no synonym of half its force. No other word can take its place.

A buttinsky is a man whose own business is of such small importance that he amuses himself by assisting in the affairs of others. He is full of suggestions, wise counsel, advice. He is full of self-confidence. He knows how to build the Panama canal and would do it if given half a chance.

But he is harmless if properly watched. At the worst he is merely annoying. His suggestions are impertinent and the attention he attracts is of the same sort as that attracted by a meddlesome mosquito.—Columbus Dispatch.

Pointed Paragraphs.
 Beware of the willing worker; he may try to work you.

 It isn't right to judge a man by the company his wife's folks inflict upon him.

Now is the season fast approaching when the can-opener will be mightier than the sword.

Any young man who deliberately flirts an innocent girl deserves to be heckled by her successor.

No, Alphonso, we have no data at hand relative to any ice dealer having been driven to suicide by remorse.

After reaching a certain age a man begins to make up his mind—and a woman begins to make up her face.
