WEATHER IN THE GRAIN BELT No Relief Yet from Clouds and Rain. OMAHA, Oct. 18, 1906. OMAHA, Oct. 18, 1965.

The pressure continues over the southwest and a trough of relatively low pressure extends from the upper lake region southwest over the middle Mississippi valley. An area of high pressure overlies the northwest and is moving down over the Missouri valley. This high is accompanied by very cold weather in the extreme northwest and has caused a decided drop in temperature over the country lying between the Mississippi river and the Rocky mountains. The weather is much warmer in the eastern and slightly warmer in the southern states. It continues unsettled in the central valleys and will remain cool and unsettled in this vicinity tonight and Thursday.

LONDON, Oct. 18—Money was in active demand in the market teday and changed hands freely in connection with various dividend distributions and the payment of $5,000,000 on the last exchequer bond issue. Discounts were maintained though there was an easier feeling and less apprehension about an increase in the Bank of England's rate of discount. Trading on the stock exchange was more cheerful but quiet, owing to the uncertainty of money. Consols are steady, sustaining kindred securities. The market closed a shade off. Americans opened dull at about parity, advanced a fraction, reacted later and closed flat and slightly above the lowest quotations on moderate New York support. Grand Trunks was steady on the traffic increase. Japanese imperial sixes of 1904, were quoted at 1913.

ese imperial sixes of 1904, were quoted at 10174. BERLIN, Oct. 18—Prices on the Bourse today are somewhat firmer. Business was day opened firm but became heavy. Russian imperial fours were not quoted. Russian bonds of 1904 were quoted at 526.

been just about the same as for the corresponding period of last week. As was the case yesterday, a very considerable proportion of all the cattle here consisted of feeders.

Range beef steers were far from being plentiful, there being only a moderate sprinkling of cattle good enough for killers. There were a few loads of corn-fed steers, in fact more than there have been here for some days of late, and there were among them some pretty decent cattle. There was a fair demand on the part of local packers and the market was just about steady with yesterday. The trade, however, was delayed by the late arrival of several trains, so that it was well along toward midday

The early market averaged up just about steady with yesterday. Some of the best hogs sold at prices that looked if anything a little stronger, as high as $5.30 being paid for choice. light butcher weights, as against a top yesterday of $5.25. On the other hand, the strong sales were offset by others that looked easier, so that the average, as noted above, was no more than steady. While the early market was not what might be called active the movement was fair, so that the most of the seasonable arrivals changed hands in fair season. As will be noted from the sales, the most of the hogs sold inside the range of $5.00 g. 5.30, with a very considerable proportion of them at $5.05 go.15.

yesterday. The trade, however, was delayed by the late arrival of several trains, so that it was well along toward midday before very much was done toward effecting a clearance.

Cows and heifers were not in very large supply, while there was a good demand heifers were generally a little stronger than yesterday and were free sellers. The common and medium kinds sold at just about steady prices. The trade as a whole was in very fair condition as viewed from a seller's standpoint.

There were a good many stockers and feeders in the yards, but there was also a very fair demand on the part of local operators and speculators. The general market on feeders was just about steady, but at the same time some of the best heavy cattle, which were sought after, commanded good, strong prices, and the same was true of yearlings of good quality.
