AT THE PLAY HOUSES

"Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," at the Boyd.

William Courtney, Jane Laurel and others in "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," a comedy in three acts, by Augustus Thomas, under direction of Charles Frohman. The cast (name in order of appearance on stage): Mrs. Bonner..... Dorothy Hammond Mrs. Rumsey..... Mrs. A. Adams Dr. Rumsey..... Henry Harmon Nora..... Eva Vincent Orton, a butler..... Harry Lillford Isabel Almslow..... Jane Laurel Walter Corbin..... William Courtney Howard Leffingwell..... Louis Payne Richard Almslow..... George M. Brown Mrs. Leffingwell..... Grace Meyer Tim, a coachman..... A. Goodson Thomas Bonner..... Herbert A. Wilson Police sergeant..... Del De Louis Augustus Thomas is quick to conceive a situation and turn it to his advantage. In writing "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," offered at the Boyd last night for the first time in Omaha, he was possessed of an idea with almost boundless possibilities for humor, and these he largely realizes on. Once or twice he finds himself almost cornered for some way of relieving a situation, but these corners he turns by simply introducing some well-nigh impossible occurrence as an expedient, and away he goes into smooth water again. He brings osteopathy into his rescue, even at the expense of his own knowledge of Missouri geography, for he was a long time resident of that state (and maybe that's the reason for the vicious dig he hands to Louisville). At any rate, it must be borne in mind that he wrote the play for New York consumption, and the average New Yorker doesn't know if the train for California runs through Kirksville, Mo., or Kenosha, Wis. All he knows or cares, apparently, is that California is somewhere west of Jersey City. What Mr. Thomas has done in this case is to place several people in an unpleasant proximity to each other, the disfavor arising from a silly jealousy on the part of a husband of his wife and a maiden for her troth-plight lover. The situation is one that a few sensible words might explain, but everybody for the space of two acts and almost the third at least takes leave of common sense. All save two, the lover and the old doctor. These might have had a real pleasant evening if it had not been for the absurd conduct of the others. Under the circumstances they are deprived of rest and comfort, but with the aid of Mr. Thomas' faith in the still school of therapeutics they are enabled to restore to usefulness a boy whose moral perspective has been knocked galleyed to resemble a husband and wife who have been thrust asunder as a result of the boy's inability to distinguish between right and wrong, and incidentally to let the curtain down on a lover and maid in close embrace, with every reasonable prospect of living in peace and dying in grease, no matter how they might eventually be interrupted. The episodes appeal directly to even a blunted sense of the ludicrous, for the progress of the play is almost farcical at times; its dialogue is smartly written and some of its satire is keen. It hardly shows Mr. Thomas at his best, and while it is amusing and even entertaining in some of its aspects, one wonders at its vogue of an entire season in New York.

The company is fairly well calculated to bring out the points aimed at by the author. Mr. Courtney commends himself with just a trifle too much of composure, giving an impression of his absolute certainty of the outcome of the unpleasant predicament in which he is located up to almost the last moment of the play. On the other hand, if Mr. Payne were to borrow a trifle of Mr. Courtney's self-possession, he might make his Leffingwell more convincing. Kicking in doors is awfully bad form, even in a jealous husband. Mr. Burbeck's Bonner is a fairly good conception of a husband who thinks it hardly good conjugal form to rout his wife out of bed on a cold morning to rekindle the fire in the furnace, but who doesn't understand the mechanism himself. Mr. Brennan is a good Dick Almslow while he is bad, and a trifle mushy after he has had his cynical vertebrae properly adjusted by Dr. Rumsey, who, in the hands of Mr. Harmon, is the cleverest bit of character in the whole arrangement.

Jane Laurel, pleasantly remembered in Omaha, gives further evidence of the ability she displayed here in "The Front Prince," and deepened the impression made on that occasion. She has a fine idea of her part and executes it with evident sincerity. "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots" will be repeated at a matinee this afternoon and again this evening.

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Election Officers Are Being Daily Notified of Their Appointment.

INFORMED OF FINE FOR ABSENCE

Only Fifteen Out of Six Appointees Have Thus Far Been Instructed in the Use of Voting Machines.

C. L. Hendricks, custodian of the city's voting machines, is sending out notices to the judges and clerks of election informing them of their appointment. Each election officer also is notified by letter of the dates for holding a school of instruction and also of the fact that they are liable to a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $50 for failure to comply with the election laws. Officers of election must be at the polling places not less than forty-five minutes before the opening of the polls on election day to receive final instructions. In the matter of instructing election officers Mr. Hendricks, the custodian of the city machines, and E. E. Ridgeway, custodian of the four machines bought of the county, will work together. It is the purpose of these custodians to instruct thoroughly every judge and clerk of election in the operating of the voting machines and in the keeping of the records. Out of the sixty judges and clerks named by Frank A. Broadwell, clerk of the district court, only fifteen have received any instructions in the handling of voting machines. It will be seen from this that the two custodians have plenty of work ahead of them insofar as the matter of instructions go. Schools of instruction will be held at the different polling places and also at the council chamber.

Disfiguring Windows with Soap.

Boys are again causing much annoyance to business men and residents as well as by writing and drawing pictures on windows with soap. The practice seems to be much worse than ever this fall and in many instances boys write obscene words or sentences on windows. So far the police have been powerless to stop this work, and as a consequence windows have to be washed every day now in order to remove the unsightly pictures drawn and the vulgar sentences written at night by the gangs of boys that run the streets. Chief Briggs declares that if any of the children are caught or the names of any given by the police arrests will follow and punishment meted out to the wrongdoers.

Increased Live Stock Receipts.

So far this year the receipts of live stock at the South Omaha yards show a large increase over the same time of last year. Up to the close of business at the yards Friday afternoon the increase in receipts was 64,206 cattle, 32,206 hogs and 134,250 head of sheep. Last year at this time the shipments of live stock showed a decrease on account of the packing house strike, but this year there has been nothing to hinder heavy shipments, as the figures above show.

Republican Rally Monday Night.

The republican county central committee has made arrangements for a rally to be held on Monday evening at Workman temple.

Among the speakers who have promised to attend are Hon. John L. Kennedy, Charles Green, A. W. Jeffries and Henry C. Murphy. This will be the first big rally of the campaign in South Omaha. Candidates are expected to be present to hear themselves and speak briefly. Every republican in the city is urged to attend as well as the democracy.

Registration Light.

Friday was the second day of registration and while the exact number registered will not be known until some time today the registration officers reported the registration to be much lighter than was expected. During the daylight hours very few voters registered, but in the evening business at the registration booths picked up and it was estimated when the booths closed that the total was about the same as on the first day. There will be no more day of registration, on Saturday, November 4.

DETENTION HOME DEDICATED

Juvenile Headquarters Informally Set Aside with an All-Day Reception.

The Douglas County Juvenile Detention home was formally opened yesterday to the citizens of the county, the occasion being marked with a reception from 8 to 8 and 7 to 10 p. m. In the afternoon quite a number visited the home, while in the evening the visitors arrived in large numbers. There was no program of any kind. Visitors just dropped in, chatted awhile and were shown through the institution. Many made inquiries regarding the management. Some were particularly interested in the work and spent a large portion of the day at the institution.

The reception committee consisted of the district court judges, county commissioners and wives and the visiting committee of the home.

An interesting letter from Judge Ben Eligo of the Denver juvenile court was received. The judge expressed regret on not having been able to attend the opening, but stated he has been watching the work here and believed the home had started on a strong basis.

Mrs. Franklin, superintendent of the Children's Home school, was one of the out-of-town visitors, as were also Prof. Wright and Dr. Merrill of the Denver Juvenile Court and Detention home. Several Lincoln citizens, interested in the work of reforming delinquent juveniles, were also present and gleaned much information for reference when the proposed home is built at Lincoln.

The home was tastefully decorated with cut flowers and potted plants.

BRIDE OF WEEK TIRES OF LIFE

Takes Carbollic Acid, but Doctor Reveals He Can Bring Her Out All Right.

Mrs. Phil Shanahan, 1806 Webster, whose maiden name is Minnie Cooke, attempted to end her life last night by taking carbollic acid. She has only been married a return and her husband, who is a merchant from Kewanee, Ill., at 5:15 last night she took seven grams of the acid. She was attended by Dr. Rosewater, to whom she declared while he was working over her that if he succeeded in saving her this time it would do no good for she would take her life anyway. What the cause of her desperation was she would not tell. Dr. Rosewater thinks he will be able to save the woman.

Announcements of the Theaters.

Tim Murphy is coming back for a stay of four nights and a matinee at the Boyd theater, presenting his new comedy, "A Corner in Coffee," and his famous classic, "David Garrick." This will be the bill on Monday and Wednesday nights, and on Tuesday night and at the Wednesday matinee the double bill will be rendered.

HOME SECURES NEW QUARTERS

Mennonite Brethren Institution for Girls and Women Will Have Large Place.

The Young Women's Christian Home, an institution for the benefit of self-supporting girls at low wages, conducted under the auspices of the Mennonite Brethren, is preparing to expand and move into larger quarters. For sometime the home has been occupying a temporary domicile at 24 South Seventeenth street, where accommodations were available for about eighteen women. Thursday of next week the old Milton Rogers house at Nineteenth and Leavenworth streets, recently vacated by the Keeloy Institute, will be occupied. The interior has been very thoroughly cleaned and repaired and attractive quarters will be provided for about thirty girls. These will have separate, steam-heated rooms, but will use a common kitchen for preparing meals and common reception rooms and parlors. The home has been established in Omaha for a number of years and is under the management of Matron Barbeatz, who states that although contributions have not been generally solicited, in view of the expansion they will be cheerfully received. The object of the institution is to provide a dwelling for girls and women who are forced to work at wages so low as to prohibit their living in better class boarding houses.

MORMONS AND THEIR MORALS

Presbyterian Missionary Denounces the Saints and All Who Defend Them.

Miss Edith Hughes, who is lecturing under the auspices of the Presbyterian Home Board of Missions, on the subject of "Mormonism," spoke last night to a fair sized audience at the Second Presbyterian church.

"Mormonism depends upon ignorance for its success," said Miss Hughes. "Show me anyone who really understands Mormonism and defends it and I say he does it for one of three reasons—policy, ignorance or low morals."

Miss Hughes branded as lies many of the statements made by Senator Reed Smoot before the congressional investigating committee regarding the Mormon church and polygamous marriages.

HAWKINS OUT AND CRAIG IN

First Man Arrested for Assaulting Gibbellini Released When Second Makes Confession.

Charles Hawkins, colored, living at Sixth and Pierce streets, arrested Wednesday evening on suspicion of having been implicated in the assault on Daniel J. Gibbellini, was discharged Friday morning in police court, there being no case against him. Sam Craig, also colored, who confessed to the assault, will be arraigned in police court Saturday morning on a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily injury.

Gibbellini is still in St. Joseph's hospital and will be able to be out within a week or so, it is reported. Until the injured man can appear in police court the hearings of the case will be held in abeyance.

SEARCH FOR A MISSING WIFE

Starts from North Dakota to Lincoln Hospital, but Does Not Reach Destination.

Jacob Wedel of New Home, N. D., arrived in the city last night in search of his wife, Susie Wedel, who has disappeared. She started for her home on October 3 on route to Lincoln, Neb., where she was to undergo an operation at the College View hospital. She never arrived at her destination. Wedel says he put his wife on the train at Carrington, N. D., and with her two little daughters, aged 9 and 4. They paid their fare on the train to Minneapolis, where they arrived on the morning of the 4th. The woman bought a ticket to Omaha that day at the St. Louis depot, paying for herself, and a half fare for the older girl. The train men say that the woman started safely, but nothing has been heard of her since. Inquiries were made all the Omaha hospitals last night, but no one was found to have the woman in charge.

She was not bedridden when she left home, and though she would be able to get through all right alone, Wedel received no word from her and at last started in search. The second conductor between Carrington and Minneapolis said that the woman told him that she had no money, but Wedel says he had given her $20 to pay the expense of the trip and had sent $100 to the hospital in Lincoln. It is certain that the woman had money enough to buy the ticket to Omaha. Why she did not buy the ticket on to Lincoln is unexplained. Wedel describes his wife as a woman with dark, golden hair, fair complexion and good looking. She is about five feet two inches tall and weighs 125 pounds. He says he cannot believe that his wife would desert him. She had been sick and sometimes was a little peevish, but they had never had any trouble of a serious nature. If she had intended to leave him he thinks she would have gone on to Lincoln, where she knew there was money waiting for her.

A dispatch to Lincoln showed that she was in none of the hospitals there. Several letters are waiting her at the College View hospital. Another strange thing is that she has never written to her husband, nor has the little girl written to her father. Stubs of the tickets she used will be traced today to see if she arrived in Omaha. Wedel thinks that she might have lost part of the money and had only enough left to buy a ticket to Omaha, and that she may be here working. He was almost distracted with grief as he related his story to the police. Captain Haze assured Wedel that if his wife was in Omaha she would soon be found. Wedel put up for the night at the Arcade hotel. Captain Haze suggested that any clue to the woman's whereabouts may be sent to the police station at once.

A Serious Piano Business

The Hospe piano business is serious—to you. It seems to be a careless grab for your money in most piano stores.

We'd rather lose a sale than misrepresent one single thing about a piano—because you'll find it out, sooner or later. In this piano business we're standing up for your rights.

That's one reason why our pianos are all marked with the lowest price—a plain-figure business is fair to you—a sliding price is unfair. We pay no commissions to people who bring or send customers to our store. Our prices are too low for us to do that, and it is unfair business, besides.

Can you tell us of one other piano store conducted on such a fair, square plan—a plan that protects the one who pays out hard-earned money?

We sell a New $190 Piano for.....$145

We sell a New $250 Piano for.....$190

We sell a New $300 Piano for.....$225
