WORRALL AFTER RAILROADS

Trust Buster Now Going to Break Up Robust System.

MAY GO INTO THE FEDERAL COURT

Report Nebraska Grain Dealers' Association is Dissolved Still Decried by Some of Its Officials.

Tom Worrall has been before District Attorney Baxter, either in person or by his attorneys, in an effort to secure an investigation by the federal grand jury of the alleged practice of railroads in granting rebates to certain elevator men, members of the Nebraska Grain Dealers' association.

This is the statement of a prominent lawyer, who is attorney for some of the grain companies and who is credited with keeping close watch on the doings of the "trust-buster."

I understand Tom seeks the indictment of certain members of the Nebraska Grain Dealers' association and expects to drag the railroads into it and perhaps secure the indictment of some of the railroad officials. He says he can prove that in some instances the railroad companies have violated the law by granting rebates under the guise of elevator charges. As a patriotic citizen of this great American country, he says he cannot stand for that sort of thing. Of course, only the district attorney knows what is going to be done.

A rumor has been current for several days to the effect that the foregoing. This attorney says his statements are founded on absolute knowledge of the facts. Mr. Worrall is inclined to be silent in the matter. He said he would not know Mr. Baxter if he saw him on the street, but whether his attorneys had chosen to do anything he did not know. A. W. Jafferis of the firm of Jafferis & Howell, attorneys for Mr. Worrall, professed not to know anything of the matter.

Another rumor is current that the Nebraska Grain Dealers' association has recently disbanded, but it cannot be confirmed. This probably was founded on the fact that about a half bushel of letters were mailed out of the secretary's office a few days ago, and this is an uncommon thing since the action of Tom Worrall against the association. Attorneys for the association say no meeting has been held, either of the members of the association or of the board of directors. Secretary Miller, seen in his office Thursday, said the association was still doing business. Several of the member companies in the organization withdrew in the summer, but whether the membership has decreased since then cannot be ascertained.

Seward Street Church Entertainment.

The concert and entertainment given at the Seward Street Episcopal church last night, under the auspices of the church choir and Patten's orchestra, was attended by about 300 people. The numbers on the program showed careful preparation. The recitations of Miss Kate Swartzlander were well liked by the audience, she spoke with so much ease. The solo, "All For You," by H. Harmon, by Miss Macy Steinhilber, was applauded generously. The baritone solo, "Conqueror," by St. Quimby, was rendered with taste. Mr. Hamilton was a powerful and pleasing voice of considerable range. The proceeds of the entertainment go into the general church funds.

FAULT FOUND AT DAIRIES

Unsanitary Conditions Reported by Women's Club Delegates Who Visit the Places.

CARE OF COWS NEEDS MORE ATTENTION

Investigations Will Be Continued with Co-operation of Health Commissioner Ralph and Abuses Corrected.

At a meeting of the household economics department of the Woman's club Thursday morning the women made their first report of their investigation of the dairies from which Omaha receives its milk supply. Only eight dairies have been visited so far, but the investigation has only begun and is to be continued in season and out of season until the conditions under which the milk is produced and served to local consumers come a little nearer the standard set by the average housewife who has the welfare of her family at heart. The women made the inspection personally and unannounced, and they report there is still much room for improvement before some of the gravest of the unsanitary features are removed. Without exception there was complaint of the care of the cattle, even in those dairies that have emphasized this feature in their advertising.

Authorities claim that one of the most dangerous kinds of filth that gets into milk comes from its contact with the udder and with the hands of the milker and then dripping into the pail. Without exception the women complained of the care of the cattle and the practice of the milkers necessitated the presence of this kind of dirt in the milk. Cows Stand in Filth. In several places it was reported cows were allowed to stand in slime and mud a foot or more deep, and there was no evidence of any attempt to groom these cows. At one dairy in the vicinity of Rauer's park the cattle have to stand in deep slime and mud to reach the water trough, and the well supplying the water which washes the bottles and waters the cattle is in a filthy condition that is a disgrace from the trough. Soda is used generally as a means of cleaning and sweetening the bottles, but in the smaller dairies ammonia is largely responsible for the bad conditions existing. In some cases the feed is poorly taken care of. In other places the cattle are badly stabled, and wherever the milking was witnessed there was complaint of the dripping from the hands into the pail.

Among the dairies visited were M. P. Mason's, Schall's and the Hults, near Rauer's park; the Adams dairy, Borenson's dairy at East Omaha and the Sunrize dairy at Dundee. Regarding the use of preservatives there could be no proof, but the dairymen all denied using it, and the women propose getting at the facts by other means. Dr. Ralph, health commissioner of health, having promised to co-operate.

Appearance No Index. The appearance of the milk wagons and the men were reported as entirely unreliable means of judging the conditions prevailing at the dairies. Due allowance was made for the difficulty in getting reliable men to do the work, owing to the long hours and the comparatively small pay. In some of the dairies the milking begins at 1 a. m. and is not finished until 8 a. m. It begins again at 3 p. m. and is finished between 5 and 10 p. m. Thirty dollars a month is the average salary for a milker.

STATE BAR MEETS NEXT WEEK

Association Will Have Prominent Lawyers from Out of State to Address It.

The Nebraska State Bar association will hold its annual convention in this city next week, beginning Wednesday. The convention will be held in the halls of the Creighton School of Law Wednesday and Thursday. Features will occupy both evenings also. In the afternoon of Wednesday the meeting will be called to order by Charles F. Leavelle, the retiring president, who now has the distinguished honor of being the justice-elect of the supreme court of the state. The president's address will be delivered by Ralph W. Breckenridge and his subject will be "Law and its Administration in Nebraska." This will be followed by a paper by G. E. Howard of the law department of the University of Nebraska, the subject of which will be "The Problem of Uniform Divorce Laws in the United States."

Wednesday evening a reception will be tendered to George R. Peck of Chicago, the guest of honor of the convention. This will take place at the residence of J. L. Webster. Besides the State Bar association other prominent guests will participate in extending the hospitality of Omaha and the state to Mr. Peck. Thursday afternoon the principal address of the convention will be delivered by George R. Peck. This address will take place at 3 p. m. in the College of Law at Nineteenth and Douglas streets. His subject will be "Temperament and its Relation to Character, Laws and Institutions." Mr. Peck is general counsel of the Chicago & Milwaukee railway system and as a barrister has a wide reputation. He is a member of the American Bar association.

The culmination of the social features will be the dinner which is to be given at the Grand hotel on Thursday evening. Many more are looked for before the close of the week. The banquet will be addressed by many men of local talent and also by F. B. Kellogg of St. Paul, attorney for the Chicago Great Western railway, also by Congressman J. J. McCarthy of the Third district of Nebraska. President Breckenridge says the convention promises to be one of the most successful in the history of the association.

Saves Detectives Trouble. Andrew Christiansen, 4415 Isard street, gave himself up to Detectives Franny and Maloney last night. He stated that he was wanted in Kenosha, Wis., for embezzlement. He said he was engaged in trade and had been engaged in the contracting business in that city. On receiving the money on one contract he absconded without paying his bills for the materials or labor. A telegram had been received from the Kenosha authorities stating that Christiansen was wanted there and they had believed that he was here. Before the detectives had time to catch him Christiansen came in and saved himself up.

WOMAN IN CLUB AND CHARITY

Through its president, Ralph W. Breckenridge, the Nebraska Bar association has extended the following invitation to the members of the Woman's club:

I wish in behalf of the Nebraska State Bar association to extend to the Woman's club of Omaha a very cordial invitation to attend the sessions of the State Bar association on November 21 and 22, and particularly the session at 2:30 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, November 22, at which time Dr. George B. Howard of our state university, who is known throughout the world as a student of social problems, will read a paper under the title, "The Problem of Uniform Divorce Laws in the United States." It occurs to me that this subject is one in which intelligent men and women outside of the bar are deeply interested. The president's address will also be given at that session. Hon. Frederick W. Lehmann of St. Louis will deliver the annual address at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, entitled, "The Lawyer in American History." Mr. Lehmann is a lawyer of great eminence and an orator of the first class.

Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock Hon. George R. Peck, president of the American Bar association, will deliver an address on "Character, Law and Institutions." Mr. Peck is a scholar of repute and one of the best members of the bar in the United States. We shall be pleased to have the women of the club attend all of these sessions, which will be held at the new Creighton Law college in its building nearly opposite the city hall on Eighteenth street, but your invitation is a special one to the session of Wednesday afternoon, November 22. It will be remembered that one of the chief recommendations of the St. Louis biennial was that the club women should investigate the divorce laws of their own states and use their influence toward their uniformity. This invitation affords an exceptional opportunity to gain much needed information.

This week's meeting of the art department of the Woman's club was conducted by Mrs. J. W. Grimsh, Room of the works of Grotto were shown with stereopticon and Payne, Mrs. Warren Blackwell and Mrs. E. G. McGilton spoke of the influence of Dante and St. Francis. The next meeting will be held next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, Mrs. Grimsh leader.

Forty-eight patients, necessitating 427 calls, and in ten cases special nurses, was the report of the Visiting Nurses for the month just closed, presented at the November meeting Thursday afternoon. There were ten deaths, eight resulting from complications. The majority of these cases came to Omaha from other places and this is the largest number of deaths from that cause reported for some time. The date for the annual meeting of the association has not yet been definitely fixed, but it will take place soon.

Best Treatment for Colds. "Most ordinary colds will yield to the simplest treatment," says the Chicago Tribune, "moderate laxatives, hot foot baths, a free perspiration and an avoidance of exposure to cold and wet after treatment." While this treatment is simple, it requires considerable trouble, and the one adopting it must remain indoors for a day or two, or a fresh cold is almost sure to be contracted, and in many instances pneumonia follows. It is not better to pin your faith to an old reliable preparation like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, that is famous for its cures of colds and can always be depended upon? Then no unusual precaution is necessary to avoid contracting a fresh cold. It also counteracts a tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia.

WARE GOES AFTER BOB FINK

Questions Legality of Investing Sinking Fund money in County Warrants.

COMMENDS THE PURPOSE OF IT

Treasurer Admits System is Wrong and Says Same Element Now Questioning Legality Prevented Attempt at Correction.

County Treasurer Fink and his bondsmen are the latest persons to have the law served on them by Attorney John D. Ware, head of the "Good Government League." The bonding company which is acting as surety for Mr. Fink was notified of Mr. Ware's position Wednesday, and Thursday morning the county treasurer received a similar notice.

In his letter to the county treasurer Mr. Ware alludes to the $20,000 of sinking fund money which Mr. Fink has invested in county warrants for the purpose of swelling that fund by the high rate of interest the warrants bear. Mr. Ware comments the purpose of Treasurer Fink in making the investment, but he questions the legality of the warrants, if he were issued for expenses incurred prior to this year. On this latter point Mr. Fink said: "Section 14 of the statutes for 1867 provides that any warrant issued by lawful authority can be bought as an investment with money from the sinking fund; in fact it is made the duty of the county treasurer to so invest the fund when the change offers. It therefore seems to me that Mr. Ware's point is not well taken against this office. The county treasurer is simply a receiving and disbursing officer, who has nothing to do with passing on the correctness of accounts against the county, giving as a reason that the same cannot pass or be asked to pass on the legality of warrants which are in due form. I cannot say I will pay this warrant and will not pay that one. My duties are strictly defined by the law and when I have complied with those provisions I have no fear of the result. I have no hesitation in saying, however, that the system on which Douglas county has been doing business for years is wrong. No business concern would tolerate it. Yet when a question was up a while back to issue bonds which would give the county money to put itself on a business basis where it could buy in the open market for cash and save a great deal of money every year the same element that is now raising this question of the legality of our system fought and beat the bonds. I think the people see now that was a bad mistake."

TRACKAGE BILLS GAIN FAVOR

Ordinance Giving Right-of-Way to Railroads Endorsed by Councilmen.

HUNTINGTON POINTS OUT MERITS

Says They Will Start a System of Benefits for City in Which All Property Owners Will Share.

Councilman Huntington Thursday morning expressed himself as being favorable to the passage of the railroad ordinance introduced at the last meeting of the council, giving as a reason that in his opinion that portion of the city covered with railroad tracks Omaha will have the best wholesale district in the west. He believes also no property owners will be injured, but instead all will be benefited by the track in that the value of the property will be increased. As to whether the railroads should pay the city for the use of the streets, Mr. Huntington expressed himself as being undecided, though he said the city would be materially benefited even if it did not receive a stated revenue from the railroads.

"The council was criticized because it allowed the Union Pacific to lay its tracks on Ninth street," said Mr. Huntington, "but look what that has done for this section of the town. One property which had been offered for sale for $50,000 would bring $20,000 today and the owner refused to accept the larger offer.

"In my opinion, to open this section of the town for a wholesale district would be the best thing Omaha could do. It will bring other houses, here and will make Omaha one of the best wholesale towns in the west. Some people probably will demand that the city charge the railroads so much for the use of the streets, but while I have not decided about that, I believe the cities which give the most in this line will derive the most benefits. Property owners in this district will not be injured by the tracks, but their property will be materially increased in value. If the right is granted the railroad companies to use the streets for their tracks I look for an unprecedented amount of building in this section of the town and everybody in Omaha will derive some benefit."

Councilman Dyal said he had not thoroughly looked up the ordinance and therefore would not express himself at this time. A city official has been asked for information regarding the business sites in the proposed new wholesale district and whether permission had been granted for the railroads to lay more tracks in the district. The party writing announced he intended to bring a branch house to Omaha.

Another Big Feature. One other great feature of the new trackage proposition pointed out is the early completion of the new Union Pacific headquarters building. The first of the tracks have been laid along Ninth street. M. E. Smith & Co., have bought half a block opposite the Union Pacific headquarters, between which sites in the tracks and will put up the largest factory in the city and an immense warehouse. Here is an increase in realty prices. When the Union Pacific finally gives way to the pressure of the jobbing track crusade and moves uptown it is pointed out that its new movement will again in turn produce a heavy increase in the price of real estate adjacent to it.

"And so it goes," said Huntington, "laying these tracks simply means one chain, whose every link is a special benefaction for Omaha." Manufacturers constructing new buildings on the tracks which have been run up Ninth street will ask the council for permission to construct raised walks across the tracks the height of the car doors so that merchandise may be loaded and unloaded from the cars by trucks, the same as is done at the freight depots. This concession is granted in other cities in the wholesale districts, where there is little traffic of foot passengers, and little inconvenience is given, while it is a great saving of labor and time to the wholesalers who have big boxes to handle continuously.

ANNOUNCEMENTS OF THE THEATERS.

Francis Wilson's appearance tonight at the Boyd in "Cousin Billy" will be the first time this star has been seen in Omaha in a piece that did not have music for its basis. The comedy in which he has been appearing for the last two seasons is by Clyde Fitch, and deals with the affairs of a man from Allentown, Pa., who pursues a widow from one European watering place to another, with the intention of marrying her. He is using for the present season a one-act play of his own, "A Little Father of the Wilderness," which has been pronounced a gem by the critics. This precedes the main play. The engagement is for Friday and Saturday evenings and a matinee on Saturday. Opening on Sunday evening, the Chadstone Opera company is coming with "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," one of the musical successes that has not yet been seen in Omaha.

Three more performances of "When We Were Twenty-One" will be given at the Burwood. The Woodward Stock company has been busy preparing for next week's bill, which will be Bronson Howard's great war drama, "Shenandoah." Harry Carson Clark and company will be at the head of the bill at the Orpheum next week. Mr. Clark will present a comedy sketch entitled, "Strategy," that is said to be uproariously funny.

This going to prove one of the biggest weeks ever experienced at the Orpheum. The bill is scoring heavily. Many consider it the best of the season. Thus, the delegates to the impromptu convention are attending from 100 to 400 strong nightly, which fills the cozy playhouse to the "standing room only" point.
