ADAMS COUNTY MAN KILLS SELF. No Cause Can Be Assigned for the Act, as He Was Prosperous. HASTINGS, Neb., Nov. 22.—(Special Telegram.)—Tracy P. Sykes, one of Adams county's best known farmers, who resided four miles southeast of Hastings, committed suicide at 6 o'clock this morning by shooting himself through the head with a revolver which he carried on his person. Mr. Sykes arose early this morning, as usual, and going down to the parlor, wrote the following note:

"Don't blame me for this. I could not help it. Good-bye to everybody. My family and my friends."

It appears that as soon as he finished writing he held the note on the table, took the rifle from behind the door and deliberately shot himself through the right temple. His wife, hearing the noise, rushed down stairs and found her husband lying on the dining-room floor in a pool of blood. A physician was called, but Mr. Sykes never regained consciousness.

At the coroner's inquest a verdict was rendered to the effect that the deceased came to his death at his own hands. Tracy Sykes had been a resident of Adams county for about twenty years. He was prominent in Masonic circles and was popular among those who knew him. When the populist movement was at its height Mr. Sykes was a candidate for state senator, defeating W. F. McCreary. He served one term, after which he took no active part in politics. He was a successful farmer, though not in a large way. His farm consisted of an eighty-acre tract and was sold for $5,000 possession to be given to the purchaser next March.
