

A PEERLESS SALE OF MENS CLOTHES

Nebraska Clothing Co.
FARNAM & 15TH

THIS MORNING we commence one of the most important Men's Suit and Overcoat Sales we have ever urged the men of Omaha to attend. This sale not only involves a large number of highest class garments—offering a broad selection, but the values they include are most phenomenal.

The superior quality and styles of these garments is such as have never before been sold in Omaha for twice the money. They were manufactured by four of the most representative wholesale tailoring concerns in this country. These concerns, after completing a very successful season's business sold us their entire surplus stock at less than factory cost. The entire purchase has been divided in two great groups. Extra salesmen have been engaged to make your selection easy.

AT THE PLAY HOUSES

FUNNY MR. DOOLEY at the Krug. A mixture of nonsense and absurdities, absolutely irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial, as the lawyers put it, called "Funny Mr. Dooley," began a brief engagement at the Krug last night before a fair audience. The arrangement is funny in spots, and bright others, and while it doesn't occasion many hilarious outbreaks of enthusiasm, it doesn't pall on the spectator-auditor at any time. All hands work with a vim, and get reasonably satisfactory results. The chorus, which isn't very numerous, has to wear as many costumes, all good, as the largest show on the road used, and this keeps the girls so busy that they don't have time to make all the changes in the dressing room and some are negotiated on the stage, in full view of the assembled multitude. In the finale of the first act each of the young women who line up back of Mr. Dooley appears in three different costumes, and is never out of sight a minute. It's worth your while to drop in and see the girls pull pins, unhook hooks and loops, drawstrings in their lightning changes. The effect is a decided novelty and is quite fetching, although at first it seems that something is really coming off. Many pleasing specialties are introduced in the course of the evening, and altogether Mr. Dooley is entertaining if he isn't awfully funny. The piece will be given at a matinee this afternoon and again this evening.
