Christmas Hints

CHRISTMAS time is the season that gladdens the heart with the joy of giving.

Half the pleasure of giving is in the choosing from the myriad of beautiful things in which the stores abound at Christmastide. Many a journey is made half way across the continent to the expositions that are held from time to time to see exhibitions of the skill of the artisan and the art of the workshops of all nations much less complete than are seen this month in our Omaha stores.

"What shall I buy for Uncle Will? You can never find anything for a man!" "Can't think of anything nice for that baby!" "My brain is numb with trying to make out my Christmas list; it's only half made out, and I can't think of things to get the rest of the people!" These are the remarks you hear on all sides—yet the stores and shops are teeming with gifts of all kinds at all prices.

The Bee has come to the rescue of the Christmas shopper.

Today it prints a very complete list of the many things offered in our stores to Christmas shoppers. It is all arranged so that you can get suggestions of what you can buy for the girls and boys, big and little—for mother and father—yes, for the baby, too—and grandmother and grandfather are not forgotten. You will find by looking through the list hints of what to buy, where to buy and how much it will cost.

Here is the way to save yourself much weariness of mind and soreness of feet. Start by making out a list of the people to whom you expect to make Christmas gifts; leave a little space under each name. Then jot down the things you already have in mind for the different ones, passing by the names of those for whom you have thought of nothing in particular. Then turn to the following pages of The Bee and look under the proper heading at the lists of classified suggestions. This will bring to your mind what to buy. Note down what the cost will be and the stores where the gifts are sold. When you start on your Christmas shopping tour take your list and check it off as you go along. You will also find in looking over the various advertisements through the pages of today's Bee further details on the subject of Christmas gifts that will be of great help in deciding what purchases to make and where to make them.
