Tips for Xmas Shoppers

or the Baby

Pretty Things for Baby to Wear.

THERE are so many things for baby to wear that to write a complete list would fill a book, but there are some things baby will enjoy if Santa Claus don't forget to come down the chimney. Comb and brush sets in pink or blue celluloid, fancy bibs, silk veils, dainty little bonnets, pretty coats in many new materials, tastefully embroidered shawls of fine flannel, hand made sacques, hand embroidered kimono, hand some toilet sets of celluloid, consisting of soap box, rattles, powder box and puff, and comb and brush, pretty trimmed or untrimmed baskets and bassinets, cute little sweaters, warm carriage robes and afghans, trim little shoes—to be found at Benson & Thorne's Lilliputian Bazaar.

The Bennett Company are especially to the front in attractive little things for baby. Their showing includes some very dainty Angora fur sets, collarettes and muffs, from $1 to $2 a set. Silk bonnets, trimmed with lace, ruching, wool or fur, up from 50c. Little booties of hand crocheted work, from 10c to 25c a pair; or those little hand-knit jackets that are so cozy and restful, up from 45c. And again, those long and short coats made from fine Bedford cord, trimmed with silk embroidery or ribbons, from $1.25 to $2.50, are fit to deck out the infant of a prince.

Thompson, Belden & Co. have a pretty assortment of things for the baby, suitable for Christmas presents. Among them are some beautiful hand embroidered bibs and hand embroidered cashmere jackets. Little silk wadded jackets make really handsome presents. Another pretty gift would be a hand painted comb and brush set. No baby has too many dresses. Some of the little nainsook dresses are particularly attractive.

You know that this baby is the only one in the world and nothing is too good for it—that's why the People's Store has such a magnificent stock of cradles, cribs, go-carts, highchairs, rocking chairs and baby walkers. Now you don't need to worry what to get baby, but call at the People's Store quick.

When you are buying a present for the baby something that will please its mother is quite an appropriate gift. You will find some very dainty little dresses at Hayden Bros. which will please the mother of any baby. They have cunning little coats and jackets that make decidedly useful presents.

You may want to take the baby out in the cold. Get a pair of silk mittens for the baby at J. L. Brandeis & Sons, 50 and 15 cents. They also have some dainty little caps at 50 cents, $1.00 and $1.50. Perhaps a pair of shoes would be a good gift for baby; our prices, 50 cents to $1.35.

We have some tiny gloves and mittens that make a cute little present for little babies and are very acceptable in the winter time. Ed P. Pickering, 103 S. 16th St.

Toys for the "Littliest One."
Some of the rubber toys and rubber dolls which you will find at Hayden Bros. will go nicely into the baby's stocking. If the baby is big enough, one of the baby jumpers and walkers will give it as much pleasure as anything. Hayden Bros. have a line of them.

Even the small baby must have a doll. The proper thing for them is one made of rubber, which can be bought for from 5 to 10 cents at J. L. Brandeis & Sons. There also will be found a selection of all kinds of go-carts, priced as low as 25 cents and some handsome ones as high as $10.00. An extensive assortment of imported German toys, ranging in price from 15 cents to $2.00, is on sale at Myers-Dillon Co., Sixteenth and Farnham.

There isn't anything that will amuse the baby quite as much as the Victor phonograph; at the same time it will be a constant fun and pleasure for everyone else. Nebraska Cycle Co., Fifteenth and Harney streets, sells the Victor.

The display of rubber toys in the big toy section of the Bennett company offers an infinity of choice. Prices are exceedingly small, considering the quality of the goods.

What the Jeweler Has for Baby.
Something substantial is always nice for baby and pleases the baby's mamma. We would suggest a comb and brush set, or some of our little gold neck chains or silver-mounted rattles for little babies. A silver cup is a nice present for a baby old enough to use one; gold rings and silver spoons are always in good taste. S. W. Lindsay, jeweler, 1215 Douglas St.

If the baby is old enough to eat at the table, a silver food pusher is a very useful little present. We likewise have milk cups, both in plated and solid silver. Many mothers are collecting spoons for the baby. We have a great variety in handsome designs. For small babies, teething rings and pearl-handled rattles are always handsome presents. T. L. Combs & Co., 1520 Douglas St.

Albert Edholm, jeweler, Sixteenth and Harney, has many pretty, useful and lasting things this year. Every mother is proud of her baby and is appreciative in having her remembered with a set of dross pins, a silver mug, food pusher or a chewing ring.

Baby beauty pins in solid gold and gold covered, all manner of little prices; baby brooches, gem-set rings and a variety of gold and silver trinkets for infants wear not hitherto shown. Prices don't cut any figure at Bennett's; the one's master of choice for the reason they are so insignificant.

Fred Brodegaard, 115 South Sixteenth street, has a well selected exhibition of pretty presents for babies. Among them are baby spoons, cups, baby pins, baby rings, baby necklaces, baby bracelets and baby napkin rings.

Get the little fellow a ring. It will please the mother as well as the baby. N. P. Frandsen, 109 South Sixteenth street, has them in all styles and prices.

Henry Copley has some beautiful silver drinking cups and other table articles that will make the baby crow with delight.

IMPORTED German toys would make pleasing presents. Buy them of the Myers-Dillon Drug Co., Sixteenth and Farnham.
