

Notes and Gossip for and About Women Folks

Miss Roosevelt's Oriental Presents. HE collector of customs of the port of Georgetown, D. C., has sent to the White House the gifts received by Miss Alice Roosevelt in the Philippines and Japan.

Miss Roosevelt is now reveling in the joyful task of overlooking the costly silks, embroideries, carvings and other things beautiful enough to delight any feminine heart. In the first place it was said that while the pecuniary value of the gifts has been monstrously exaggerated, they are fine enough to make any girl green with envy.

For one thing, unless Miss Roosevelt is very generous, she will not have to buy material for summer gowns or ball dresses for many years to come. The dowager empress of China gave her twelve bolts of embroidered crepe in every shade known to the dyer's art. Then she has bolt after bolt of fine embroidered cambric and linen, beautiful enough for an empress' lingerie. She has dozens of web-like lace and embroidered silk stockings and parsons of all colors with jeweled handles and lace bows.

Women of the Great West. Marion Foster Washburn, writing in Harper's Bazar, relates the following incidents of life in the new west:

We mentioned to some friends that we had aimed to acquire a little wisdom on the simple life, by studying these new countries; but they went into spasms of impolite laughter at the suggestion. It seems that the women hold on to all the frills they used to know and acquire all the new ones they can hear of, as a means of proving their social status, and of transforming their present place of residence into the nearest possible semblance of the one they left behind.

Another Fallacious Iowa Idea. The members of the Chauncey M. Depew club of Des Moines, Ia., are inclined to be a trifle resentful of the urgent appeals sent out by the national administration with regard to the necessity of replenishing the earth.

Quality Rather Than Quantity. In moving the adoption of this motto, Mrs. George W. Ogilvie, who presided, likened children to blooded stock, and declared that if people were as careful in the rearing of children and development of their progeny as some of the stock raisers were of their prize animals there would be a speedy uplifting of the human race.

And that is? "Just to be yourself," she answered. And we thought she was quite right. We attended one woman's club meeting. It was in Gage, in the northwestern part of the territory (Oklahoma), a little, brand-new town, bravely starting out to beautify itself by planting trees two feet high. This club has thirty-one married members and at present writing three single ones; but by the time this goes to press probably not one will be left unmarried.

"So you needn't mind him, ladies. But I do wish he'd take these children home and put them to bed." "I will, pretty soon," he said.

Evidence of Another Sense Wanted. "I think the trouble with me, doctor," said Mrs. Spinkins, "is a generally torpid condition of the system. There doesn't seem to be any organic disturbance, if that is what you call it, but I feel all run down. Few of the things I eat agree with me, and sometimes I have no appetite at all. I have an aunt on my mother's side that was affected exactly the same way, and she never got any permanent relief until she moved to another climate. Presently I am disturbed in my sleep. Any little noise wakes me up, and I don't get to sleep again for hours. My husband says it's the malaria in my system, but I think—

Modified Hoops. Despairing of the introduction of the old hoop skirt of war days, which, though it was all very well in the quiet cities of those times, finds itself much out of place in the crowded street cars and in the intense hurry of modern life, the Chicago Dress-makers' club looks with favor on the modified hoop skirt offered by Mrs. Hosac.

Twelve Rules for Choosing a Husband. Dr. Harriet C. Keatinge of New York City in an address on "Divorce" before the New York Legislative league, laid stress on the fact that mental, moral or physical weakness would not be judged before marriage, and that most mothers looked merely to good clothes, good manners and some money in the man who married their daughters.

Chat About Women. One of the most successful designers of stained glass windows in America is Miss Mary Dillingham of New York. The first European woman to adopt engineering as a profession is Cecile Betticher, a Swiss, 24 years old, who recently passed her examinations with honor at the University of Lausanne.

House Moss. One day mother said to her: "Betsy, you are getting very careless about your work lately." "Hucum?" said Betsy, bridling.
