SEASONABLE FASHIONS.

Despite the very young man's nonchalance regarding matters of dress, Dame ing the cut and design of what he is to wear. It decrees that the sailor suit is and shall be the most important standby of his wardrobe, and to this ultimatum fortunately "his honor" agrees, as there are no fuss and feathers to interfere with his all-important doings. In this matter it is often well to follow the boy's inclinations, his not over abundant thought on the subject is usually found to be for suitability, comfort and unobtrusiveness, which, on the whole, "fills the bill," with the added fundamental thought of beauty whenever possible. An excellent suit of dark blue was made after this fashion. trimmed with white braid, with emblems in white and red. White linen or serge would also prove appropriate for any occasion. HOW LINCOLN CLIMBED UP

Long Hard Path to Reach a Good Fee Before the State Supreme The lawyer who works his way up from a $5 fee in a suit before a justice of the peace to a $5,000 fee before the supreme court of his state has a long and hard path to climb. Lincoln climbed this path for twenty-five years, with industry, per-

I can set a whole neighborhood at loggerheads; I can distress a widowed mother and her six fatherless children, and thereby gain for you $600, which rightfully belongs. It appears to me, as much to them as It does to you. I shall not take your case, but I will give you a little advice for nothing. You seem a sprightly, energetic man. I would advise you to try your hand at making $600 in some other way. He would have nothing to do with the "tricks" of his profession, though he met these readily enough when practised by others. He never knowingly undertook a case in which justice was on the side of his opponent. That same inconvenient honesty which prompted him, in his storekeeping days, to close the shop and go in search of a woman he had innocently de-frauded of a few ounces of tea while weighing out her groceries, made ft impossible for him to do his best with a poor case. "Swett," he once exclaimed, turning suddenly to his associate, 'the man is guilty; you defend him-I can't," and gave up his share of a large fee.-Helen Nicolay

RICHES IN WASTE Precious Metal Collected from Floors and Even Water-Money in

The waste of gold in a manufacturing jeweler's premises is likely to be so considerable that the most stringent measures have to be taken to avoid loss by reason of the gold dust falling to the floor, getting caught in the workers' clothes, getting washed off his hands, and in many other ways. Some time ago a gold and silver manufacturing firm had occasion to put in a new floor in its working room, and the man who made the change took the old floor in payment of his work, and was well paid. In the process of manufacture it is impossible to avoid small particles of the preclous metal flying upon the floor where they are trodden into the crevices until the floor is saturated with them. The floor in a manufacturing jeweier's workshop which has become so worn that it has to be replaced contains fully sufficient gold to pay for a new one. The sweepings are sent to the refiner for the gold to be extracted. The process of extracting the gold from these sweepings is simple. They are burnt and the ashes are carefully collected. The buyer selects samples here and there, tak-

and sieve, then thoroughly mixes the product takes a sample of it, weighs it, refines it and calculates how much gold there is in the whole quantity of ashes. From this he forms an estimate of the value and pays accordingly. Even the water in which gold is washed when a ring or other article of jewelry is cleaned is preserved until there is a suffi-

ing a portion from every part of the heap.
