SEE GREAT FUTURE FOR THAT COUNTRY

Bead of Montana Business Men's League Comes to Omaka in Interest of Billings' Development.

F. Chatterton, secretary of state and former governor of Wyoming and chief stockholder in the Saratoga & Grand Encampment railroad, was in Omaha Wednesday and is as enthusiastic as ever over the future of his state.

'The population of Wyoming at present is but 120,000 for the entire area of 97,890 square miles, and we estimate the state has sufficient mineral and agricultural resources to sustain 5,000,000 people," said Mr. Chatterton. "The state at present has more attractive features than either Michigan, Illinois, Iowa or Wisconsin had in 1850, as well as having more miles of railroad. It is covered with fertile valleys suitable for farming, and the rolling hills furnish most excellent grazing lands for both cattle and sheep. The climate of Wyoming cannot be beat and the soil in many places is a light sandy loam, with a good subsoil in the upland and in the valleys has a dark rich ap pearance, which produces most bountiful crops of cereals and vegetables.

In Wyoming are 48,000,000 acres of land ubject to entry under the government land laws and over 19,000,000 acres of this is suitable for agricultural purposes when properly irrigated.
