POSITIVE PARAGRAPHS FROM BOYLES

Being a new and more worthy version of the old proverb, "It's never too Don't you mind if you didn't start in on the opening day of our mid-

BOYLES COLLEGE That's so because it is so that we give each pupil INDIVIDUAL ATTEN-

TION here. This is not merely a claim of our ads. It is a fact of our teaching -it is the strong feature of our course. Time is fast getting away from you. Every day you let slip by means that you are one day farther from success—one day more in the poorly paid

Business makes the world go around nowadays. Business pays its students and it workers more money than any of the so-called higher professions. Moreover, it demands only ability. It cares nothing for family, for race, for whom your grandfather was. The things that influence patronage in the "silk hat" professions, the prejudices that often boost the unworthy to positions of power and prevent the worthy from rising above the first rung of the ladder of success in the professions, are absent from the business world.

All it demands of its bookkeepers is that they can keep books—that they know business from A to Z. All it demands of its stenographers is that they shall know stenography thoroughly—shall have a fair school education—that they be endowed with that training only to be obtained at a thoroughly good business college. All it demands of its telegraphers is that they shall be able to receive and send with speed and accuracy.

All that most Omaha business men ask is that they shall be Boyles College graduates. They know that name stands for all that is best in stenographers, bookkeepers and telegraphers. It has stood for this so long that every Boyles College graduate is practically certain of a splendid position as soon as we deem him or her qualified to fill that position.

Come in and see us about this tomorrow morning. At least, send for a catalogue. It's free. Business makes the world go around nowadays. Business pays its stu-
