

THE OMAHA DAILY BEE.

E. ROSEWATER, EDITOR. PUBLISHED EVERY MORNING. TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION. Daily Bee (without Sunday), one year $1.00...

OPPOSITION TO THE PRESIDENT.

It is well understood that there is a good deal of opposition among republicans in congress to President Roosevelt. The friends or retainers of the corporations are arrayed against him...

Looking Before Leaping.

Before publishing a list of dealers selling adulterated seed Secretary Wilson secured the opinion of the attorney general's department that such action would not make him liable to damages for libel.

Mid Competition in Sugar.

The Sugar trust has not succeeded in crowding out all its competitors. Before the war the sugar trust controlled the market.

Hunting Thrills in Prospect.

The president is reported to be looking forward to a hunt for lions and elephants in Africa. He intends as soon as the reins of government are transferred to other hands to go to Africa for the purpose of hunting lions and elephants.

Evils of Sanatorial Methods.

The people are coming to a point where they will refuse to tolerate in high office men of low ideals and questionable principles. Senator Brackett's allegation that Depew owes his election to his business connections is his ability to control campaign funds is a powerful argument for taking the prerogative of electing federal senators away from state legislatures...

Heroes in Civil Life.

Boquet of Praise Passed Up to the Hero. Cleveland Leader. When firemen, braving flames and smoke, save human lives the applause rings out. So also when policemen put their lives in pawn to bring malefactors to justice.

THE BRITISH LABOR PARTY.

A noteworthy fact in the British elections is the showing made by the labor party, which thus far has elected thirty-three of its candidates to Parliament, which foreshadows the presence in the next House of Commons of a united labor body of greater strength than has ever before been in Parliament. It is said that the labor party may be depended upon to take an entirely independent course and that all the older factions will have to reckon with the laborites hereafter.

DUAL TARIFF PROPOSITION.

According to reports from Washington there is an increasing probability that the agitation for a dual tariff system will soon assume the proportions of a definite movement. A dispatch from the national capital to the New York Sun says that the State department has virtually decided that there is no way, under present conditions, by which Germany can be induced to admit American products on the basis of her conventional tariff rates.

An Oasis in Wealth's Desert.

One of the beauties of Marshall Field's large fortune was that he could tell where he got it without falling back on "the advice of counsel."

An Available Alternative.

Congress should either hasten action on the bill submitting an amendment to the constitution changing the date of the inauguration of the president from March 4 to the last Thursday in April or else take a leaf out of Ohio's journal of progress and build a crystal palace, where the inauguration ceremonies may take place without danger to those who participate in or witness them.

A THRILLING SEA SPECTACLE.

Heroic Rescue of the Crew of a Stranded Ship. A tremendous spectacle, a thrilling drama of the sea, was played to a brilliant finish before the eyes of thousands of people who lined the beaches at Atlantic City, N. J., last Sunday. Sixty lives marooned on a stranded ship was the stake. Between ship and land a wild, stormy sea, over which lifeboats and life saving crews dared not venture. Yet the task was accomplished, every life saved and much of valuable personal belongings of the ship's crew brought ashore.

How He Worked a Small Community with a "Hot Air" Project.

Recognizing my inability to cope with the sharp who donate the financial districts of London, I returned to the "States," where for three years I have pursued a precarious career. Discouraged by the dull times in New York I made my way into New England with a view to interesting the population in some "hot-air" projects which I had in mind. It was during this trip that I did the meanest thing that I was ever guilty of. However, my ignorance of the laws of the state was partially to blame, the statutes providing that each and every shareholder of a company shall be responsible for the debts of manufacturing project, and for the sake of appearance had rented a disused plant in a small town. Our plan was to sell stock in the vicinity, urging that the company was more or less cooperative and that the buyers of shares would be given preference over all others for us on credit. We wanted quite a number of shares, all among the working people of the town.

PERSONAL NOTES.

Less majeste also has its weak-or humorous-side. They have found in Berlin a man who supports himself by speaking insultingly of the emperor. A bar statement of the rescue was published Monday morning, but the action of the thrilling drama, the actors in the heroic spectacle and the incidental scenes fills columns of the eastern papers.

Why Refer to Doctors? Because we make medicines for them. They know all about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, so they prescribe it for coughs, colds, bronchitis, weak lungs, consumption. They trust it. Then you can afford to trust it. Consult your doctor about it, anyway. Sold for 60 years. We have no secrets! We publish the formulas of all our medicines.

Wearily Willie—Can you swipe a ride under an auto? Dinky Dinky—Naw, that's where the owner rhodes.—New York Sun. Robinson Crusoe was talking to the parrot. "I don't want a cracker?" he asked. "I refuse to answer," replied the bird, "on advice of counsel." "That was the parrot was not as green as he looked"—New York World. "I see they are talking about importing Spaniards to dig the Panama canal." "What's the use of going so far from home? Why not they hire a tribe of Digger Indians?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer. "Sharpe—Your boy has a fine head. Wise—It's too large. Sharpe—Too large? Wise—Yes, he can't wear my hats.—Brooklyn Eagle. The congressional insurgents were about to "canonize" in front of them," quoted a jocular spectator. "Merely an old-fashioned smooth-bore," they assured each other, and declined to be affronted.—Philadelphia Ledger. "You ought not to work such long hours. Surely your boss can get along without you part of the time." "Surely, but I don't want him to find it out."—Cleveland Leader. "Gosh!" exclaimed Farmer Korotop, after listening to the story, "he must be a regular dead beat." "Huh!" snorted the victim, "he's a plumb right warden that. He's a live one."—Philadelphia Ledger. "So you do not care to be an orator?" "No, answered Senator Sorghum. "The man who talks attracts attention, but it is the man he is talking about who stands a chance of getting the office."—Washington Star. "The main trouble with pedestrianism as an exercise," said the man with mental strabismus, "is that when a fellow first begins to take a little exercise, he gets a little out of breath, and that when he has been at it two or three days, he begins to share his opinion."—Judge. Old Hunkus was settling his coal bill. "I know the prices seem high," said the dealer, "but we can't regulate them. We've got to sell at these figures or go out of business." "I'd rather be held up in the ordinary way," snarled Old Hunkus, "than have my man merely take my stuff. He doesn't insult me by offering any apology."—Chicago Tribune.
