What a Business College Education Has Led To

CHAS, S. FEE, general passenger and ticket agent Northern Pacific R. R., St. Paul, Minn., entered the railway service as a stenographer in May, 1873, and was secretary to the general manager of the Michigan Central R. R. His duties as a stenographer soon enabled him to get a more thorough grasp of the details of the railway management, that in 1875 he became chief clerk to the general manager of the Hannibal & St. Joseph R. R. In 1877 he was promoted to the posi-tion of chief clerk to the general manager of the Northern Pacific R. R. In 1883, just ten years after he started in work as a stenog rapher, he was appointed general passenger and ticket agent, in which position he has greatly increased the passenger traffic over the North-

A knowledge of stenography opens doors of opportunity that would otherwise be closed to the young man. It enables a young man to go into a business or railway office and obtain a larger salary at the start than he would receive if he went into that office minus the business college education. Railways and businesses make a habit of training their young men stenographers who are directly under the heads of departments to fill the shoes of that department head, in case of an emergency. All the knowledge, all the dexterity in handling details that the head of the department has been years and years in acquiring are naturally absorbed by his stenographer.

Young men should study stenography. Young men should obtain the very best business education that money will buy. They should realize that it is quite likely that the extra dollar spent for tuition means ten or twenty extra dollars in their pay roll each month. They should realize that they should obtain their business college education at

BOYLES COLLEGE.

Our president has been right through the mill as a stenographer and private secretary to two general managers and as Omaha court reporter. Our course is designed to fit young men for the fight for success. New classes in all departments tomorrow. Get a catalogue.
