WINTER WHEAT grown on our lands in SUNNY SOUTHERN ALBERTA

The GOLD MEDAL and GRAND PRIZE

at the Lewis and Clark Exposition at Portland, AWARDED FOR THE SUPERIOR quality of the wheat and the greatest yield per acre.

There is no section of Western Canada that offers today the inducement for settlement held forth by Southern Alberta. The land that we own is Rich Virgin Prairie, slightly undulating, with a soil of deep black loam supported by a clay subsoil, marvelously rich in productiveness and fertility. The climate is unlike that of any other part of Western Canada, because of the warm chinook winds, being much milder and pleasant; spring comes early, plowing often commencing in March, sometimes as early as February. The temperature on January 30th, 1906, was given by the United States government report as being 50 above at Calgary and 2 above at St. Paul, but these figures to the intelligent farmer are almost unnecessary, as he well knows that a district that can produce 30 to 55 bushels of hard winter wheat to the acre, together with magnificent crops of oats, barley, alfalfa, must be a country where the climate is exceedingly temperate and even. We own

250,000 ACRES

Of this land, located in the Calgary district of Southern Alberta, tributary to the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, giving the farmer easy access to the world's best markets. These lands are all located close to the towns of Calgary, Crossfield, Airdrie, Shepard, Langdon and Cheadle, so that the new settler has all the advantages of good schools, churches and congenial neighbors.

In the Yield Per Acre These Lands Lead All Canada

Remember, too, that this section of Canada is settled almost entirely by American farmers, men who came to this country, one, two and three years ago and are today prosperous, well-t o-do and content. We would like you to read some of the hundreds of letters we have from these men. We will be glad to send you these letters, or, better still, let us send you their names and addresses and you can write them yourself.

This is the Land that Pays for Itself.

A practical farmer in this country can easily make these lands pay their original cost in a very short time. Some have done it with one year's crop. Why not you? This is the proposition we are offering. Will you take advantage of it?

TO THE INVESTOR These lands offer opportunities for safe investments that cannot be equaled in absolute security and quick and large profits. The land cann of get away, taxes are a mere song, and with the tremendous crops brising high prices on such low priced land, together with rapid development and settlement of the country will cause, in the very nature of things, land values to double and treble in the next two or three years.

Inquiry for Sewer Bonds The city clerk has had many letters of inguiry from bond purchasing companies of the east regarding the proposed issue of South Omaha sewer bonds. The morning mail yesterday contained no less than four letters from different companies who want to know when the issue will be placed on the market. It appears there will be no difficulty in floating the entire issue at a good premium, but it will require some ime to arrange all the details of the issue and prepare a history. It is likely that the issue will not be on the market before the first of March. After this it will be some time before the money can be collected since the companies will have to examine the history of the bonds. The vote of the special election was canvassed resterday and the records put in order.
