

CHEERFUL SENSIBLE CREDIT AND LOW PRICES

TO THE PUBLIC:

Personal friends have come to us, from time to time, and inquired if it is really true that THE PEOPLES STORE sells furniture and household goods ON CREDIT, at lower prices than some of the cash houses ask. They seem to have had the impression that our claim was only "advertising talk" and not strictly the truth.

We desire to say in this connection that it is NOT merely "advertising talk," but as great a truth as was ever told and for this reason:

This store is associated with one of the greatest buying syndicates the world has ever known. The merchandise for the PEOPLES STORE is bought by a body of men who, at the same time, buy for a great list of other stores in various cities. IN THIS WAY PRICES ARE OBTAINED ON THE WHOLESALE MARKET THAT CANNOT BE DUPLICATED by cash or other houses that do their buying singly or in small groups.

This is one of the great strides taken in modern storekeeping. This is what makes it possible for us to say to you with the utmost sincerity: "Our prices, even when you buy on credit, and pay, say a dollar a week, are as low or even LOWER than those of many cash houses. Our merchandise is the best that can be bought in the world. Nothing we could say in its praise would be exaggerating the truth of the matter."

We wish to add that our store is now full from top to bottom with new things for spring. It represents quality and quantity under one roof. We say to friend and stranger alike: The Peoples Store will live up to its name and reputation in season and out of it.

There is no chance for disappointment here.

SILVER DOLLAR SLIGHTED

Not One Remnant of "the Queen of '73" Minted Last Year.

THIRD HIATUS IN THE COIN'S HISTORY

Recent and Remote Varieties of the Silver Dollar—Some Rare Pieces Worth More Than Their Face.

When the year 1893 ended without the issuing of a single silver dollar by the United States mint it was the first time since 1833 that such a thing had happened. This thoroughly American coin replaced the old Spanish piece of 8, or 8 reales, which had a general circulation in the colonies before the opening of the mint in 1792. From 1837 it appeared each year as regularly as the cent until last year.

encircled by branches of laurel crossed. Around the rim was "United States of America," while on the edge was "Hundred Cents, One Dollar or Unit." There is no way of telling how many 1794 dollars were coined, as the mint records combine also the output of dollars for 1795, the total number for the two years being 354,721. In the early part of 1795 the same design as that of 1794 was used on the dollars, but in the latter part of the year the pattern was changed to a bust of Liberty on the obverse, with the hair bound by a ribbon, shoulders draped, and with fifteen stars.

ago for $1.00, and yet it is said that there are fully twenty-one in existence. Great difference of opinion exists among coin authorities as to the genuineness of the 1894 dollar, and no satisfactory conclusion has ever been reached.

On the reverse is an eagle with its wings spread, holding in its talons a shield, across which is a band inscribed "Liberty." Underneath is "1838." At the base of the figure is the name in small letters "C. Gobrecht, F." On the reverse is "United States of America." In the center being a large flying eagle, surrounded by twenty-six stars. The edge is plain. The coin is now valued at $75.

end of a telephone circuit can tell with certainty who is talking at the other end, be it only a block away? How can the pharmacist know that it is a physician who is ordering morphine, or atropine or any other scheduled poison, to be delivered to any one who may call for it? True, he may recognize "the voice," but one can readily foresee cases like the present, for instance, where it might be vastly to the advantage of "the voice" not to materialize; in fact, to deny having given the order, or even having been present at the telephone, and unless there was present some witness, who could gainsay him?
