FATHER DEFENDS HIS SON

Chancellor Huntington Expresses Confidence Banker is Guiltless of Charge.

NEVER KNEW HIM TO TELL A LIE

Cannot Believe He Has Committed Subornation of Perjury in Connection with Land Cases in This State.

Chancellor D. W. C. Huntington of the Wesleyan university is an Omaha visitor, called here by the schoolmasters' club meeting, and is a guest at the Merchants. Dr. Huntington was asked in reference to the recent arrest of his son, Thomas M. Huntington on Gordon on the charge of alleged subornation of perjury with respect to land filings within the Richards and Comstock ranch enclosures in Sheridan and Cherry counties. He said: "I first knew of his arrest through the press reports and came here with the expectation of meeting him in Omaha. I do not wish to be placed in the attitude of pleading for my son, and hardly know just what to say. However, as I have known him all his life, I am perfectly free to say I never knew him to tell an untruth, and I cannot bring myself to believe that he has been guilty of the grave charge of which he is accused, and, in fact, I know that he is not. For a great many years, twenty or more, my son has been engaged in the surveying business in that country, having first been connected with it with the Northwestern road. He has, of course, located a great many people in that country, being familiar with it. But that does not follow that he would or could do a dishonest act in connection with the location of homesteads. He is not now engaged in the surveying business.

As to Criticizing Government. "I do not wish to be put in the attitude of criticizing the government or the secret service agents for whatever work they may be called upon to do there, or whether their seal to make a record for efficiency would lead them into making charges against my son or others who may have assisted homesteaders in locating their filings in that country that partake of the serious nature of subornation of perjury. That matter will, of course, be thoroughly thrashed out when the cases are to be considered by the grand jury. I have always had unbounded confidence in my son and still have, and believe a full investigation of these charges will prove my confidence is not groundless. As I said at the start, I do not know the full nature of the charges against my son and can only gather their import from the general statement that it is subornation of perjury. It is easy to make a charge of that kind, but to prove it is entirely another matter."

OMAHA WOMAN ON THE STAGE

Mrs. Frank V. Woods Joins Company Here After Manager Hears Her Sing.

Mrs. Frank V. Woods, an Omaha girl with a high soprano voice of excellent quality, has gone on the road with the "Gingerbread Man." She sang before Homer Lion, the star, and he immediately accepted her. Mr. Woods expects to join the company later in the season. He has a good tenor voice and has appeared in vaudeville in the east. At present he is in the employ of the Von Dorn Grain company.

A Notable Banquet. One of the most notable banquets annually held in the city of New York is unique. Though it is one of the most expensive dinners that the Waldorf-Astoria serves, and though it is attended by some of the most eminent professional men and some of the wealthiest financiers in the country, no wines are served, no cigars are smoked and the only bottles found upon the table are those containing the pure and sparkling Apollinaris. Furthermore, the dinner is served promptly at 6:15 p. m., and the banquet adjourns at 10 o'clock. It is one of the happiest, freest, jolliest banquets served in the city of New York, and it celebrates the work of an institution universally admired and respected. We refer to the banquet of the Y. M. C. A. At the twenty-fourth annual dinner, marking the thirty-ninth anniversary of the international committee of the association recently, the guests included Governor Utter of Rhode Island, Lieutenant Governor Bruce of New York, General F. D. Grant, Rear Admiral Coghlan, President Schenck of the Mercantile National bank, of New York City; Vice President Cannon of the Fourth National bank, James Stokes, Morris K. Jessup, a number of college presidents and clergymen and many gentlemen noted in the world of letters and in literary and artistic circles.—Leah's Weekly, Nov. 20, 1905.

CUDAHY READY FOR TRIAL

General Cowin Says Client Did Not Make Immunity Plea.

TOLD MOODY HE PREFERRED OPEN TRIAL

Omaha Attorney Says Garfield's Course Admitted of No Alternative and Immunity Was Natural Sequence of Law.

"The packers themselves were cleared, but the corporations will have to stand trial, and I will say for the Cudahy Packing company that it is ready to go to trial," said General J. C. Cowin, counsel for Edward A. Cudahy and the Cudahy Packing company in the celebrated case instituted by the Department of Justice against the packers. The trial to determine the question of whether the packers were immune from prosecution upon evidence of Commissioner Garfield, and which ended at Chicago Wednesday favorably to the packers, stands unique in history, as the attorney general of the United States personally appeared to prosecute the case, this being the first instance of the kind since the days of Aaron Burr. General Cowin's part in the case was a distinguished one.

"The investigation by Mr. Garfield seems to be misunderstood by the public," said General Cowin. "Under the Martin resolution and the lower houses of the packers' section 8 of the law creating the Department of Commerce and Labor, Mr. Garfield was compelled to make the investigation he did make. He had no discretion in the premises. The object and purpose of the investigation was to get full information with respect to the packers' business, how it was conducted, how purchases were made, how sales were made, the matter of by-products, the matter of profits, and everything connected with the business.

Had to Make Visits. "Mr. Garfield could not comply with the demand of the Martin resolution and the law without going to the offices of the different companies and getting access to their books. As I say, this he was compelled to do. The packers could not refuse to give the information, for the reason that their privileges under the fifth amendment to the constitution was taken away and immunity given in its stead. But no law could take the place of the privilege of the constitution without complete immunity from prosecution, regardless of the question of guilt or innocence.

"This was decided in the complainant case and the case of Brown against Walker. Therefore, when Garfield sought the information which he was compelled to get, as I have stated, and it was given by virtue of the compulsion of the law, and as a duty resting upon the citizen called upon, immunity at once flowed from the law, and Mr. Garfield had nothing to do with it but to get the information that congress required him to get. The resolution and the law made it mandatory and Garfield had no alternative. When a packer was called upon to give the information, the constitutional privilege of the fifth amendment being taken away and immunity awarded in its place, he had no alternative but to answer and furnish the books. In other words, Garfield was compelled to get the information, the packer was compelled to give that information and necessarily there flowed therefrom under the law complete immunity to the person furnishing the information.

Government Action Unusual.

"It is remarkable to me the importance given to this case by the Department of Justice. That department considered the decision in the Hale case (the tobacco case) as a great triumph for the government. Now, outside of the decision with respect to the corporations themselves, the decision in the Hale case goes only to the extent that Hale is compelled to answer, so that this paraded victory is nothing more than securing an order of the court to compel Hale to answer, while Garfield secured the same victory without any litigation. When Hale shall answer and produce a single book of his concern he will be absolutely immune from any prosecution. You will see, therefore, that the Department of Justice has litigated the Hale case over a long period to compel him to answer, and the argument of the government was that he was compelled to answer because the legislature gave him immunity upon answering, and the Department of Justice will give Hale, when he answers, just exactly the immunity that was given by the investigation by Garfield without the expense of litigation.

Cowin's Statement to Jury.

"In my opening statement to the court and in my I took the position that, as above stated, Garfield was compelled to get the information and that the packer was compelled to answer; the duty of Garfield was to get the information, the duty of the packer to give it, and that upon giving it immunity flowed from the law. My contention was fully sustained by Judge Humphrey.

"Mr. Cudahy did not interpose the plea of immunity from fear of a trial on the merits; in fact, I made a proposition to

ANDREWS ENTERS A DENIAL

Pool Room Man Says Minor Did Not Play in His Place of Business.

"The charge made by Probation Officer Bernstein that a 13-year-old child was found playing pool in my place is entirely untrue," said T. F. Andrews, who conducts a pool room at 33 North Fifteenth street. "No minor was caught playing pool there and no minor plays pool there. The implication that I offered a bribe to Bernstein to escape arrest also is untrue. I never thought of doing anything of the kind. I have lived and done business in Omaha for a good many years and don't have to violate the law to make a living.

"The statement that I was locked up in the county jail to await trial also is untrue. I was detained for about fifteen minutes in the sheriff's office."

Mr. Andrews, with some show of feeling, insists he is an innocent victim of circumstances. The only part of the report he admits is that he was arrested.

Announcements of the Theaters.

A matinee this afternoon and this evening, when the curtain will rise at 8:15 sharp, will be the last two performances of the bill on for this week at the Orpheum. Valerie Bergere will be the bright particular star at the head of the bill for the week starting matinee Sunday. Miss Bergere & Co. promise the most ambitious one-act drama in a condensed version of "Carmen" that has ever been put on in vaudeville. Special scenery and properties for the production are carried and every detail of the staging is given the careful attention that distinguishes the popular star's work. Other contributions are: Charles E. Sweet, tramp comedian and pianist; Madam Enny's dogs; Paul Kleist, the musical clown; Bonnie Gaylord, a "Sis Hopkins" girl; the Le Pages, novelty jumpers; Bert and Bertha Grant, singing and dancing comedians, and new kindrome pictures.

Patrons of the opera at the Boyd theater are reminded that the performance of "Faust" begins at 8:15 this afternoon, and the prelude to "The Valkyrie" will be played at 7:30 this evening. The length of the performance makes this early beginning essential, and all are urged to be on hand promptly in order that the performance may not be disturbed.

On Sunday afternoon and evening Joseph Jefferson, Jr., will be seen at the Boyd in a role made famous by his father, the late Joseph Jefferson, that of "Fighting Bob" Acres, in Sheridan's famous old comedy of "The Rivals." William W. Jefferson, who is starring with his brother, will have the role of Captain Absolute.

The closing performance of "The Second in Command" at the Burwood are drawing good crowds and seem to be fully enjoyed by all. "My Friend from India" is in rehearsal for next week.

On account of other bookings the Van Dyke Stock company will close their engagement at the Lyric on Sunday night, March 25. The company has met with a very good success and the management of the theater are convinced that there is room for another theater in Omaha. However, the remainder of this season will be given over to some of the most celebrated of musical attractions, among them being Henri Marteau, the world-famed violinist, who will be at the Lyric Tuesday, April 3; Fishman, the noted pianist, April 28; Mandorin Opera company, April 28, and the greatest of all cellists, Jean Gerardy, on May 1.

GAS, ENGINE OF THE FUTURE

Economical Motive Power, Says City Engineer, After St. Joseph Visit.

EXAMINES THE PARKER PRODUCER

Will Report to Commercial Club His Findings as to Production of Gas at Three Cents.

At the request of the Commercial club City Engineer Rosewater went to St. Joseph and made a critical examination of the Parker gas producer, which has been represented to the club as capable of making power gas for 3 cents per thousand cubic feet. The engineer took City Chemist Kirschbraun along with him to study the process from a purely technical standpoint. The report and conclusions have not been formulated entirely, but will be given to the club as soon as possible.

"The inventor of the producer is a Rochester man," said Engineer Rosewater. "A company has been formed to make the machines and a complete plant equipped and used for demonstration at St. Joseph. There is no doubt in my mind that the gas engine is the economical engine of the future. The gas as produced by this process is used in gas engines direct, and not to generate steam, as some persons evidently suppose. While I think it can be made at the bare cost of 3 cents per thousand cubic feet, this refers solely to the coal consumed and not to the labor, interest on plant or deterioration. Gas producers are not new. They have been experimenting with them for fifteen years. The Parker process apparently is a success. The gas made can be used for illuminating purposes by using a small quantity of crude petroleum.

"The main principle of the producer lies in the utilization of every particle of energy possessed by coal. Screenings from the Cherokee district mines, costing about $1.50 a ton, are used.

"So far as I can see there is no reason why a central plant cannot be established and a city or town supplied through pipes. This has not been done anywhere with the Parker process to date to my knowledge. I believe the present company simply limits itself to making and exploiting the machinery.

"When I was at the University of Michigan lecturing two years ago I was told they were making experiments in high pressure steam and that this was the only avenue left open in power development except by gas, which the professors agreed reached a point far ahead of anything else at that time."
