

BEFORE THE PEOPLE'S BAR

Pot Fourri of Human Troubles Come Before Police Judge.

BOY AND FATHER NON PERSONA GRATA

Colored Man Would Sell Guitar for Baby's Sake and Woman Disgraces Herself and Sex.

If variety is the spice of life then Friday morning's session of the people's bar was such as to suit the most fastidious. The whole gamut of human joys and sorrows was run from strike outs to home runs, and hardtack to angel food. Those who liked to hear of a fight between the stepson and stepfather were satisfied, those whose predilections inclined toward the story of a man who would not commit suicide when he learned such a course would please his wife, received twice the price of admission and those whose heart-strings responded to the story of a colored man who tried to sell his guitar for money with which to buy a present for his babe were moved to sympathetic tears. There were other features on the bill which proved the most entertaining of the present season.

After Chase Green, assistant janitor at the people's bar, removed the molecules of dust which had settled on the fixtures and Prosecutor Tom Lee had viewed with pardonable pride a new vest he did not win on the recent primaries Magistrate Crawford mounted his dias and the band played "God Save the City Hall."

Then Joseph Dalton and James E. Barry, stepfather and stepson, were arraigned, the former on the charge of drunkenness and the latter as complaining witness. As evidence of a conflict which occurred Thursday evening at the Dalton flat, 765 South Sixteenth street, the defendant presented an eye which would not look well in print and which was said to have been discolored by having been in the direct line of movement of Barry's fist. Barry showed a lip which his alleged wife caught between his stepfather's teeth during the melee.

Dalton testified the boy had been consorting with young women whose characters would not square with the social alignments, and added that the women in question were tenants at the flat managed by his wife. He declared his wife had told him repeatedly to rebuke the boy, which he did Thursday evening, only to receive a blow on his right eye, which could not perform its full function before the people's bar Friday morning. While Dalton's left eye was doing yeoman service for both optics, his right eye was in sack cloth and ashes. Young Barry retorted by calling his stepfather the most good-natured liar he ever heard. The judge dismissed Dalton, and at the same time rebuked him for allowing women of unenviable reputation to remain under his roof.

Dalton has been in the police court before for having had trouble with his wife, who is reported as wearing the figurative unmentionables at the Dalton ballwick.

Richard Morrison, a colored man, with an end-of-the-world countenance and a heart filled with sorrow, was arrested Thursday night by Patrolman Hudson, who could see nothing but evil in a colored man who would sell his guitar for a pitance. Hudson, Morrison and the guitar in for "investigation." But when the matter was explained to the police judge Morrison was discharged.

Morrison was trying to sell his guitar that he might buy his baby a birthday present. With no thoughts of crime in his heart the man went out from his home in South Omaha Thursday evening and tried to sell that which he cherished the most of his worldly goods—his old guitar. He did not think that some people might look askance at a colored man trying to sell a guitar or that the faint of suspicion was on him. The prattle of that little baby of his was an sweet to him as the sound of his guitar. Thursday, being the fourth birthday anniversary of the first-born of the Morrison household, the father found himself without coin of the realm with which to exchange for some little token in remembrance of the occasion. All Thursday afternoon he twanged the strings of his instrument and made sweet music for the bright-eyed youngster, who played on the floor, unconscious of the heart-aches which are part of the after years. Presently Morrison laid his guitar aside and lighted his pipe (clay pipe). "Aren't we going to buy something for Freddie's birthday?" came the question from the wife, which struck Morrison's heart like a dart from an archer's bow. Then Morrison took the guitar down from the wall and walked out into the twilight of the evening hours. Then the arrest, police court and discharge.

There is a saying that a woman seldom does things by halves. She generally goes all the way or goes to the stable before the race is called. She wants the last word, usually gets it, is entitled to it and few would say her nay or call the police if she exceeded her time limit in the use of current language. Miss Jennie Davis, who was fined $5 and costs by the police judge Friday morning, when she was arraigned on the charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct, made no efforts even when brought before the police judge to conceal the fact that she had been out the night before, worshipped at the shrine of Bacchus, referred to in Webster's as the son of Jupiter and Semele, and then disturbed the peace and good order of the city as well as her own raiment. The mere sight of the woman would have brought tears to the eyes of any self-respecting member of her sex who might have seen her. Her crowning glory was wind-tossed and disheveled; her hat, once the pride of a milliner's price mark, was tipped to starboard side and her face bore a morning-following aspect. The curse of drink was on her brow, but she took the whole thing as part of the passing show, paid her fine, went home and then looked into her mirror. Then she cried.

SEASONABLE FASHIONS.

646—A STUNNING EVENING COAT. Among the few embroideries which are exceedingly beautiful are those of Oriental craftsmanship. These are conspicuous on many of the new evening wraps brought over from Paris by the designers of fashion. The wraps resemble almost exactly the Chinese mandarin robes, being made of the finest broadcloth satins, moires or heavy silks and gorgeously adorned. A new model after this style is sketched here, the bias seam in sack, as well as the flowing bell sleeve being very graceful and effective. The closing is made at one side after the manner of these robes. The style is one readily adapted to home construction and a coat of this kind may serve for any occasion or season of the year. In the medium size, three and one-half yards of thirty-six-inch material are needed. 646—Skirts, small, medium and large.

For the accommodation of readers of The Bee these patterns, which usually retail at from 25 to 50 cents each, will be furnished at the nominal price of 10 cents. A supply is now kept at our office, so those who wish any pattern can get it either by calling or enclosing 10 cents, addressed "Pattern Department, Omaha Bee, Omaha, Neb."

INTEREST IN SHOW GROWS

All Lovers of the Automobile Flock to the Auditorium.

SIDE LINES PLANNED FOR VISITORS

Moving Picture Displays Are in Perfect Order and Afford Great Pleasure to Large Crowds.

All Omaha seems to be interested in the automobile show, which is in progress at the Auditorium and the attendance has been far in excess of anything which was anticipated by the promoters of the show. Especially is the number of people who have come from out in the state gratifying, and many machines have been sold to these, all the dealers selling a night number. Several side issues of the show have been planned for the entertainment of the visitors, one of which was a hill climbing contest Friday morning between a Buick and a Reo and a five mile race between the same machines. In the distance race the Buick won by nearly a mile and in the hill climbing contest the Buick won by about a block. The race was up the Cass street hill starting at the corner of the street. Eastern manufacturers of machines are taking great interest in the show and have sent some of their best men to exhibit the machines. The representatives of the machines sold by the Powell-Bacon company are D. S. DuBois and E. Y. Lewis. The Powell-Bacon company sold a model G. Franklin to J. M. Woolworth, Friday morning. The large six cylinder thirty-horse power Franklin brought sometime ago by Nels B. Updike arrived by express Friday morning and was at once taken to the show where it is attracting considerable attention. The thirty-horse power of the Franklin is said to equal fifty-horse power of any of the other make. The Rambler shown under the direction of Clarke G. Coit, also form one of the features of the show. Complete machines are shown as well as the working parts exposed and machines which have been in service for some time, showing the wear and tear and the little cost for repairs.

Owners and admirers of electric machines will be glad to know that a new improved rectifier for charging the batteries is now on the market. The only objection to electric cars heretofore has been the charging question, and with this rectifier the problem seems to be solved in a satisfactory manner. The cost of charging batteries with this new rectifier is a great deal less than with the old methods, and an electric car may now be kept at an average expense of not more than $4 per month. There was some delay in this Mercury Arc rectifier getting here, but it arrived by express Friday and was placed in the Fredrickson exhibit and shown in working order.

The two highest priced cars in Omaha are the Peerless and the Thomas Flyer. They seem to be close competitors and the merits of each are being discussed and compared. Both cars always are surrounded by a circle of admirers. A great attraction is the display of Prest-O-Lite gas tanks, which are exhibited in the Fredrickson booth. Probably the leader in four-cylinder machines is the Thomas Flyer, the millenium car, which has a seating capacity of seven persons. It is fifty-horsepower and the largest as well as the swiftest automobile in the city. It is also fitted with more anti-friction bearings than any other car in the world. The car has many exclusive features, one of which is the locking device which prevents the car from backing down hill. The Peerless, the car made famous by Barney Oldfield in his racing exploits, is a great favorite with those who desire a high grade, high priced car.

Machines sold by E. Fredrickson: Peerless, J. M. Larsen; Thomas Flyer, J. W. McDonald, Lincoln; Buick touring car, L. I. Abbott; Buick Runabout, A. H. Fetters; Haynes, Charles Kelly.

An 1896 model of the Haynes is shown in the Fredrickson exhibit. This is the first Haynes brought to Nebraska and one of the first automobiles in the city. It has been in almost constant use ever since and its owner, E. W. Lamoreaux, reports that it seldom sees a repair man. This is a great recommendation for the Haynes and doubtless there will be a large number of that make sold here this season.

NEW RULES TO CHECK AUTO

Fast and Reckless Driving Denounced and System Provided to Handle Runners.

The fast and reckless driving of automobiles is denounced in a resolution passed at the annual meeting of the Omaha Automobile club, held at the Her Grand hotel. The club also promised its aid and co-operation to the police to put an end to infractions of the speed ordinance. To this end it was declared the duty of members of the club to report violations of the law to the police and request that complaints be filed.

The club has adopted a plan in vogue in Minneapolis in which it hopes to secure the co-operation of the police. Each member is given a membership card bearing his name and the number of his machine. On the reverse side is an order to be signed by the chief of police directing any officer arresting the bearer to take the card as bail and release the unlucky autist to appear in court to answer the charge. This will make it unnecessary to haul the offending driver to the police station. The plan is said to work well in Minneapolis.

These officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Dr. F. N. Connor; first vice president, C. Brown; second vice president, J. F. DeJarnette; secretary, E. L. McShane; treasurer, Emil Brandeis; board of directors, Harry L. Cummings, Gould Dietz and Louis C. Nash. These are the resolutions adopted by the club:

Resolved, That this club pledge itself to aid and assist in apprehending and prosecuting any and all persons for reckless driving in this city, and to request the co-operation of the police department to the end that such practices may be stopped, stopped, stopped.

Resolved, That it shall be the duty of members of the club seeing or knowing of such reckless driving to report the same to the chief of police and request that a complaint be filed against such person, and resolved further, That it be the duty of the club to defend its members against assaults, unjust arrests and improper prosecutions.

BIG CIVIL SERVICE CLASS

One Hundred Applicants Are Examined for Positions in Uncle Sam's Employment.

The largest class of applicants for examination in the civil service ever examined in Omaha was present at the postoffice building Thursday to take the examination for postal railway clerks. The class numbered over 100 and the examination occupied five hours. Secretary J. M. Shoemaker of St. Paul, secretary of the eighth civil service district, conducted the examination, assisted by Miss Viola Coffin, secretary of the Omaha branch of the civil service and a number of the postoffice clerks and railway mail clerks stationed in Omaha. The examinations bore particularly upon the educational qualifications of the applicants and their knowledge of the general railways of the west, particularly in the district west of the Missouri river.

W. J. BROATCH STILL THIRD

Shown by Official Count as Well as First Returns Last in Mayoralty Race.

The official totals of the canvassing board so far as completed up to noon showed: Benson 3,590 Johnson 3,589 Hennings 3,271 Watsberg 3,259 Broatch 3,218 Fend 3,203 Greenleaf 3,287 Breen 3,299 Elsbourn 3,220 Fawcett 3,288 Stockham 1,270. Hennings beats Broatch for third place by fifty-three votes, sufficient to cause the turning over of several thousand dollars, principally by Billy Nesselbous, bet on a three to one shot that Broatch would be better than third. The tabulation and canvass probably will be completed today. No changes will be made affecting the results as already known and the only interest attendant is that involving bets on the respective strength of certain candidates.
