

CURRENT LITERATURE.

The May Delineator, with a complete display, pictorial and descriptive, of the latest spring fashions, contains a wealth of suggestion for those who wish to be smartly gowned, and many other features of interest to women.

Readers of Mrs. Waddington's charming letters will be glad to know that in her new book she will have an article describing "A Corner of Normandy," where she spent parts of last summer.

"The Abandoned Farm," by Mary J. Holmes, also shows that wonderful versatility of talent for which she is distinguished.

"The Lady of the Decoration," by Frances Little, is an American romance with a Japanese setting. The yellow babies in the Japanese mission school designated one of their favorite teachers "the lady of the decoration" because of a little anecdotal watch she wore, thinking it a decoration from the emperor.

"Walker's Essentials in English History, From the Earliest Records to the Present Time," by Albert Perry Walker, A. M., master in history, English high school, Boston, is a volume which was prepared for a year's work in the high school.

All readers of American history are familiar with the American Statesman series and doubtless many will be glad to learn that the second series will continue this excellent work and will contain the lives of the men most prominent in statecraft since the civil war.

"Gannett, Garrison and Houston's Commercial Geography," by Henry Gannett, Carl L. Garrison and Edwin J. Houston, is a text book for commercial students and is intended to serve as a practical tool in leading pupils to an appreciation of the physical conditions and economic principles on which depend the successful production, manufacture and exchange of the world's great commercial staples.

"The Sunset Trail," by Alfred Henry Lewis, is a story of the west which is picturesque, dramatic and full of humor. Much of the comedy and drama of the broad life sketched in his vivid pages set us at Dodge, the most famous town of the old cattle trail.
