CONDITION OF OMAHA TRADE

Features of Prominence for Past Week Are Few.

TEN-CENT DECLINE IN REFINED SUGAR

Some Cotton Goods Well Cleared Up and Hard to Get—Jobbers Resolute Over Better Weather for Farmers.

No features of prominence have marked the trade of the last week. The most important has been the decline of 10 cents a hundred in refined sugar.

Though the Lenten season has gone and the demands for it are considerably less, the market on salt fish remains firm.

Coffee is in a more settled position than last week and is being actively traded.

There is no particular change to report with reference to spot corn. Most of the packers offering in corn have withdrawn their early figures.

At the present writing, it is difficult to size up the situation on California canned fruit, for the market is somewhat unsettled.

Stronger market is reported on galled apples, the supply of which is very limited.

Both New York state and Michigan are asking more money for this stock.

A further advance has taken place on evaporated apples, both whole and ring cut.

Peaches are in stronger position, due to the increasing demand and the limited supply.

Another advance has been scored on Santa Clara prunes, the market being boosted during the last week.

Current business with shoe jobbers is running about the same as last week.

The window glass situation is strong and an advance is expected to be announced today.

In drug circles predictions for the coming season's business have been most optimistic ever since the turn of the year.
