Gossip and Stories About People of Note

A Silk Hat Job.
HE late Beriah Wilkins, owner of the Washington Post, came to Washington as a member of congress and left a good many political friends in Ohio, relates the Saturday Evening Post.
He was in his office one day several administrations ago, when a very steady man came in. He was ragged and dirty, unshaven and generally woe-begone.
"Beriah," he said, "I am down and out. I have lost everything I had, and I want you to get me some kind of a job."
Wilkins looked the man over and found he was a lawyer who had done him some service in Ohio. He said he would do what he could.
"But first let me make you presentable," he continued.
They went to a barber shop, where the man was shaved and had a hair cut and a bath. Then Wilkins took him to a clothing store and bought him a complete outfit—frock coat, high hat, good shoes, shirt, collar and everything he needed. The change was marvellous. The Ohioan looked distinguished and prosperous in his new rig.
"Next morning Wilkins took his friend to the White House and introduced him to the president. He told the president that this man had been of much help to him and he wanted to get him a place, thinking he might secure a clerkship of some kind.
"Are you a lawyer?" asked the president.
"I am," said the visitor.
"All right," said the president, "I will make you chief justice of one of the territories."
"But—but—" stammered the surprised Ohio man.
"Shut up," commanded Wilkins, and the fellow subsided.
The appointment was made and the man served out his term. Wilkins said he got the place solely on his high hat.

the present winter in binding in leather a library of 40 paper-bound volumes, doing everything from the making of the covers to the gilding and lettering with his own hands. Tolstoi is in excellent health, but reads less than formerly and sleeps longer. His reading chiefly consists of English and American books dealing with practical questions, such as co-operation of labor and capital, working class houses and municipal government. He reads now chiefly lying down. He no longer rides on horseback every day, but he never fails to take a walk, however fiercely the storm may rage outside.
Japan's Premier.
Marquis Saionji, Japan's premier, comes of a line of premiers and ministers of state, his family being comparable with England's house of Westminster. J. Takegoshi, M. P., who has been intimately associated with Saionji, characterizes him as a politician and cultured reformer. He helped overthrow the Shogunate, studied for fifteen years in France and returned to Japan as a pure Parisian. He is a liberal of the European type. He was among the first of the nobles to introduce western knowledge in Japan, has been its representative in Austria and Germany, held the portfolio of education at home and before he became minister to the crown helped in the upbuilding of the radical constitutional party. His drawing room is called a salon and he is often styled "grand signor" by Tokio people.

Tom Reed as a Financier.
"The late Thomas B. Reed has never bent his great intellectual faculties to the acquisition of money, and when he went to New York to engage in practicing law, after he abandoned congress, he was a poor man," remarked former Representative Charles F. Joy of St. Louis to the Washington Post man.
"Within a very short time after locating in the metropolis he had formed a connection which gave him the handsome salary of $50,000 per annum. One day he chanced to meet one of the big financial magnates of Gotham, who inquired of the ex-speaker where he kept his bank account. Reed wanted to eat since Christmas day. He has lived mostly on lean beef and spinach since that time and he has taken off fifty-nine pounds. Taft's banting instructor has not told him yet that he will have to keep on training or he will put his flesh back on three times faster than he took it off. The fact is that Taft can't eat anything he likes if he wants to keep down to 250 pounds. When he finds that out everybody expects to hear an explosion at the War department that will break all the windows in the place.

Kaiser's New Fad.
Kaiser Wilhelm has a new fad. It is collecting picture postcards, and he has thrown himself into it with characteristic energy. Every country in the world in which Germany possesses official representatives of any kind whatever are laid under contribution. The Kaiser causes his secretary to write a picture postcard to the official selected, and this is enclosed in a state envelope or indorsed "business of state." This is then sent by mail, and on reaching its destination, often in the middle of the night, the addressee is at once roused from slumber to receive the document, which he reverently conveys the imperial greeting, and commends a reply by picture postcard representing some local subject, "by return."

Mr. Shonts Paid
Railway men are telling a story of Mr. Shonts, chairman of the canal commission. Shonts, as president of the Clover Leaf system, was traveling on a pass. He was approached by a conductor who told him he would have to pay extra fare or cease occupying the drawing room of the parlor car. Shonts produced his pass, but the conductor said the agreement between the Atlantic Coast Line railway and the Pennsylvania system was that passholders could not occupy drawing-rooms unless they paid extra fare. Shonts remarked that he would not pay extra fare. The conductor declared Shonts would pay or be put out. Shonts inquired who would conduct the excursion. The conductor calmly answered that he would undertake the job. Shonts said he did not believe he could do it. The conductor then told Shonts to produce the money in ten minutes or be ejected. The conductor went away and returned on schedule time and—Mr. Shonts paid.
