Tax Ferrets Certify Up to Treasurer the Holdings in the Company.

HOME OF THE COMPANY IN QUESTION

Present Assessment More Complicated Than Ones Which Are Now in Litigation Between County and Stockholders.

Figurer & Schleicher, the firm of tax terrets now working under contract in Pottawattamie county, yesterday morning informed County Auditor Cheyne in writing that they had "discovered" that no assessement had been made against the stockholders of the Portland Gold Mining company for 1906 and that the county audifor should at once proceed as the law provides to list and assess the tax for 1906.

The tax ferrets state in their communica tion that the corporation stock of the Portland company is divided into 3,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 each, but by reason of the development of the mining property are worth 21, at which figure they have assessed them. As required by law County Auditor at once sent out notices to the several slockholders assessed by Messes. Flaener and Schleicher through registered Suit was brought last year by the authorities of Pottawattamie county to collect taxes on the stock of the Portland company for five years up to and including 1905 and the cases are still pending in district court. Soon after the suits were begun the Portland company proceeded to dissolve its corporation in Iowa and reincorporated in Wyoming. The right of the company, however, to do this has been contested by James Doyle, the plaintiff in the famous dent of the Portland company and as it is location. possible that the action of the company in dissolving its incorporation in this state may be set aside Fleener, & Schleicher, the tax ferrets, decided it was best to be on the safe side and assess the stock for 1906. How the Elder Bennett Announced His Marriage in the New York Herald.

Somebody has dug out a copy of the New York Herald for June 1, 1840, in which James Gordon Bennett, the elder, anounced his approaching marriage "to the readers of the Herald," under the heading: "Declaration of love-Caught at last Going to be married-New movement in civilization.

"I am going to be married in a few days. The weather is so beautiful-times are getting so good-the prospects of in the lower Chesapeake bay," he related, political and moral reforms so auspicious, "it was a common occurrence to fish up that I cannot resist the divine instincts of an old iron pot or a rusty teakettle and honest nature any longer, so I am going find it full of oysters. or some piling near old Fulton market, New York, was a startling picture a big, gray octopus peering out of a huge chest that was supposed to have once contained the gold of some ancient buccaneer, The barnacled, brine-blistered water man who was sitting on an upturned fish basket before a smouldering blaze of broken boxes dug his freekled hands further down in his faded blue trousers and said to the little crowd of lolterers who were sharing the warmth of his blaze:

"That's a mighty queer place for an octopus to hang his hat, but it can't come anywhere near the queer places an oyste. will live in." Then the old man grew reminiscent.

"When I was working on a dredge-boat bachelors live in hig houses all alone. But pots and kettles weren't the only oyster mill with oysters stuck around inside like "Demijohns and bottles full of oysters it always puzzled me how the oysters ever got inside the little necks. But ano down the river was an old plug hat. guess it blew off some passenger on one floated around on the waves awhile it got too soggy and slowly sank to the bottom. Then the oysters took possession of it and when it came up in a dredge the captain was so tickled by its comical appearance that he forgot to cuff any of the crew all that day.

"But something even funnier happened when we brought up an old set of faire teeth with a plump oyster stuck fast to the center. Mr. Oyster didn't relish losing his anchorage very much and the cuil r had to give him a couple of stiff blows before he would part from the teeth. I wished afterward that I had kept it in tact, because I could have won all kinds of money betting people an oyster had teeth "What do you think of a skull full of oysters? Sort of unsavory, ch? Well, me day we fished up a hoss skull in the dredge and it was just brimming full of the finest bivalves that ever hung on a half-shell. Somebody had chucked a hoss overboard maybe years before and the oysters had made a sort of an apartment house out of his cranium. But, as I said, mates, when it comes to queer
