ALL RECORDS ARE BROKEN

Harriman Travels from Coast to Coast in Less Than Three Days.

When E. H. Harriman reaches New York City this evening on the Empire State Express, a regular train of the New York Central, he will have broken all records across the continent, having made the entire distance in seventy hours and fifty-one minutes.

The best previous record for a trip of 2,800 miles was made in 1875 when Jarrett and Palmer's Fast Transcontinental train made a run from New York to San Francisco. The time for this train on the Union Pacific was forty-one miles an hour, including stops, and forty-four and eight-tenths miles an hour, excluding stops.
