annual report of the Educational society. The visiting board which, on behalf of the assembly, visited and inspected the Theological Seminary reported that the work is being carried on harmoniously and successfully, and that the endowment funds are safely invested with ample security.

President A. B. Martin of Cumberland university, reported a most prosperous year in all departments, there being fifty-four students in attendance in the theological department.

The educational commissions reported that Missouri Valley college at Marshall, Mo., had secured an endowment of $57,000; that several thousand dollars had been pledged for a new boys' dormitory at the university, Washburne, Tex., and that the James Millikin university had received additional bequests amounting to $6,000 and a subscription of $1,000, by the citizens of Lincoln.

The board charged with providing for the relief of aged and disabled ministers reported that $90,000 in contributions had been received in 1904. The total receipts were $12,815. During the twenty-five years of the existence of the board 251 persons or heads of families have been entered on the books as beneficiaries.

The Board of Publication reported that the volume of the best year in its history. On a volume of business amounting to $151,750 the profit was $37,672. The debt was reduced $12,778, leaving $27,900 against $50,000 five years ago. The assets are $20,000, or nearly $10,000 in excess of all liabilities. The publishing house is valued at $90,000, and the machinery at $65,451.

Committee on Union Reports.

The report of the joint committee on union of the Presbyterian and Cumberland Presbyterian churches recommended that each assembly adopt a preamble which set forth in detail all the steps taken by the two churches has since the appointment of the committee to negotiate union in 1898. The committee expressed its understanding of the effect of the action taken by the Presbyterian and the assemblies of the two churches to be as follows:

That the confession of faith of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America as revised in 1903 and its other doctrinal and ecclesiastical standards, have been adopted by the Cumberland Presbyterian church in the United States of America in conformity with said plan and basis of reunion and union.

That the said plan, including the plan and basis of reunion and union, concurrent declaration, and recommendations therein contained, have been adopted by the constituted authorities and in conformity with the organic law of both said churches.

That the reunion and union provided for in the said joint report and in the plan and basis of reunion and union, as adopted by the constituted authorities and in accordance with the organic law of both said churches, is binding and will become fully effective and operative when and as hereinafter declared.

At the proper time the confession of Faith and other doctrinal and ecclesiastical standard of the Presbyterian church shall become effective and operative as to all of the officers, organizations and agencies of the Cumberland Presbyterian church; the general assembly to be held in 1907 shall be composed of representatives of all the Presbyteries of the United church; when each assembly has notified the other of the adoption of the joint report each moderator shall announce the full consummation of the union in the following words:

The joint report of the two committees on reunion and union, and the actual and reported therein contained and recommended for adoption having been adopted by the Cumberland Presbyterian church in the United States of America and the general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church and official notice of such adoption having been received by each of said general assemblies from the other, do solemnly declare and here publicly announce that the basis of reunion and union is now in full force and effect, and that the Cumberland Presbyterian church in the United States of America and the Cumberland Presbyterian church in the United States of America are now reunited with the Presbyterian church in the United States of America in accordance with the plan and basis of reunion and union, and that the official records of the two churches, during the past year, shall be preserved and held as making up the history of the one church.

The existing boards of the two churches are directed to carry on their work in harmony during the year 1906-1907, the intent being that there shall be no actual consolidation of boards before 1907. Provision is made for including the lists of Cumberland Presbyterian ministers and churches in the minutes of the Presbyterian assembly for 1906.

Dr. Landrith Elected Moderator.

The credentials committee reported at the afternoon session of the society seating eleven additional commissioners without opposition. The total enrollment is now 279. The election of moderator was taken up after the reading of the credentials report and Dr. Ira Landrith of Nashville, Tenn., was elected by a large majority. In nominating Dr. A. N. Eshman for moderator Rev. W. M. B. Robinson and Judge Fusell made speeches asserting that their candidate was opposed to the Westminster confession of faith.

Education and Missions.

The report of the Educational society emphasized the great need for a thoroughly trained ministry, and stated that the amount contributed during the past year for the assistance of young men in the schools, colleges and seminaries aggregated $11,346, which was used for the benefit of something over 200 young men.

The report of the Board of Missions and Church Extension showed an increase in offerings for its work and a year of unusual results both at home and abroad. The net gain, as compared with 1904 was $11,900. There was a slight falling off in the contributions to foreign work, and, although the board met all of its obligations to its missionaries and closed the year with all salaries paid in full, it was left with no considerable amount to apply to indebtedness.

Mr. T. H. Perrin, a member of the board from St. Louis, presented the report of the board of missions. The report of the foreign mission board stated that the churches have contributed more than ever before, the aggregate of the gifts being $103,948, against $28,415 last year and $27,529 the year before. A few years before only a limited number of our churches gave per annum the salary of a missionary ($500 or $600); now it is common for churches to give that much and a number of them contribute $1,000 to $1,500, the salary of a man and his wife.

At the court house only a part of the long bill was read and argument was begun by Judge Green of Illinois, representing the plaintiffs.

and impartial discharge of the duty owed by the company, its officers and employees to the public will be tolerated.

Denial by Mr. Thayer.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—Vice President Thayer of the Pennsylvania railroad today issued a statement in which he denied vigorously the statements of fact made by Mr. Garfield respecting the granting of rebates to the Standard Oil company and reiterates his interview of May 15, in which he defends the Pennsylvania railroad in its relation with Standard Oil and other corporations.

Rebates Abolished Say 'Insuff.'

NEW YORK, May 18.—Pearson's Magazine for June will contain an article by James Cressman in which is given an interview on railroad rates with President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania Railroad company. Mr. Cassatt said:

I have for several years believed that the national government, through the Interstate Commerce commission, ought to be in a position to fix railroad rates whenever the rates established by the railroads themselves are found, after complaint and hearing, to be unreasonable. Provided, of course, that there shall be the right of appeal to the courts.

Experience has shown that closer relationship and mutuality of interests are necessary to prevent the kind of selfish and unwise warfare between American railroads which produced the secret rate and rebate system.

It is only right, therefore, that the public should have the means of protection against a rebate system suggested in the increased power developed by this wholesome and from every sound standpoint necessary spirit of alliance.

Let the government regulate us. For my part and for my associates in the Pennsylvania railroad company I am generally heartily in accord with the position taken by President Roosevelt. I have never believed that I should be in the right.

But it is equally important that the American people should understand the grave reasons for greater harmony of action and interest between the railroads of this richest and busiest country in the world.

We have trampled out the secret rate and rebate system, which was not only ruining the railroads, but also made equal and fair conditions of business impossible in America. The secret rate system must be revived again unless the railroads are prevented by unwise legislation from maintaining such relations among themselves, which will insure the maintenance of reasonable and stable rates.

DEATH RECORD.

Funeral of James W. Taylor.

COLUMBUS, Neb., May 18.—(Special.)—The remains of James W. Taylor, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Earl Simmons, at Council Bluffs, last Wednesday, was taken to rest in the Columbus cemetery yesterday. The funeral was held from the Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. L. R. DeWolf, the pastor, preaching the sermon. He came to Nebraska in his early manhood and lived near here for a long time.

Mrs. J. W. Lyons.

BILOXI CITY, La., May 18.—A Grand Junction, Colo., special to the Journal says: Mrs. J. W. Lyons, who was seized with an apoplectic stroke Tuesday afternoon, after attending the funeral of her husband, Captain J. A. Lyons, who dropped dead Saturday, is dead. Physicians state that the apoplectic stroke was the direct result of her intense grief over her husband's demise. Captain Lyons was auditor of Iowa for three terms. A large estate is left for their heirs.

Mrs. Alice Alexander.

Mrs. Alice Alexander, aged 51 years 11 months, died May 18. She was the wife of John N. Alexander, twenty-fourth and South Boulevard. She leaves a husband and two sons.

SONNINO CABINET IS OUT

FULL PROGRAM WAS NEVER ANNOUNCED

Opposition Musters Majority of Twenty-seven Against Him on Subsidiary Question and He Quits Office.

ROME, May 18.—Premier Sonnino, in the Chamber of Deputies today, officially announced the resignation of the cabinet. The Sonnino ministry was defeated yesterday by a majority of twenty-seven as the result of the impatience of the opposition, which, contrary to the advice of former Premier Giolitti, who was not present at yesterday's sitting, would not wait for the development of the whole Sonnino program, but attacked the cabinet on a question of procedure regarding the order of parliamentary work. In ordinary cases this would not have been sufficient for the cabinet to resign, but yesterday's vote, it was understood, showed unexpected strength on the part of the opposition and the premier considered he was called upon to retire.

Automobile and Papers Stolen.

NEW YORK, May 18.—A $10,000 automobile, containing $2,400 worth of bonds, script and other valuable papers, was stolen early today by a daring thief, who jumped into the machine while it stood unoccupied on Broadway, near Forty-second street. Its owner, J. H. Clarke, an automobile manufacturer, had stepped into a restaurant near by. He heard the automobile puffing as it started away and although he rushed to the street the thief sped the machine around a corner and escaped.

of anybody ever losing the president, there was no telling if within the next few days some new Chandler, might not fortune and to fame unknown, might not get possession of the president and tide him over the breaker of the Allison amendment, back again to his original terminus.

Mr. Rayner said that he would not pretend to make an assault upon the president or pretend to charge him with selfish or dishonest purpose, but that the processes of reasoning, through which he reached a conclusion were so changeable that it was impossible to follow him. He said that he resembled an unadjusted kaleidoscope whose reflecting surfaces, after shaking it up frequently, exhibit its beautiful colors in symmetrical form, but after you have adjusted and focused it it flies into its original fragments and resolves itself into its component parts. He said this was a great era for natural disturbances and that the president seemed to be somewhat jealous of the earthquakes and volcanic eruptions that had taken place and was going through a sort of meteoric performance himself, illuminating the horizon, but tearing through space oblivious of where he was going. Mr. Rayner said he (Rayner) was perfectly serious in his expectation that, owing to these peculiar fancies of the president, he would change his whole position again, unless the senate adjourned on him and prevented it.

In concluding his remarks about the president, Mr. Rayner said he might have reunited his party on the floor of the senate, but that he had unhappily divided the people.

Says Amendment is Fatal.

When he came to discuss the Allison amendment Mr. Rayner said he hesitated to vote for the bill and had never supported a measure of this sort with more reluctance, because he thought the words contained in the amendment were fatal.

Mr. Rayner insisted in the strongest way that this unfortunate amendment destroyed the efficiency of the entire measure and that, in his judgment, if it is really adhered to "we might as well abolish the commission and ring down the curtain on the comedy."

"I deplore the fact," said Mr. Rayner, "of the president's interference. I regret it with all my heart and I am sorry for it. He has debilitated and mutilated this measure, while if he had only persisted in his purpose a few days longer, a united senate, in response to the voice of a united people, would have put upon the statute book a law that would gratify their expectations and respond to the exigencies of the hour."

Dolliver Answers Rayner.

When Senator Rayner concluded Senator Dolliver took the floor, saying that if he felt about the bill as did Mr. Rayner he would not vote for it. "The bill is not revolutionary or dangerous legislation," he said, and predicted that it would have the popular approval.

He proposed to defend neither the bill or the president, but said there are millions who will not think less of the chief executive for bringing his party into accord in the legislation. Whatever may be said for or against the president, continued Mr. Dolliver, he comes out of the fight with every proposition he has advanced written in plain terms in the statute books of the United States. That the bill is a perfect response to the president's recommendations he contended and then quoted those recommendations to sustain that declaration. Whatever may be said of the president, he concluded, "he will be remembered as the fearless leader, who, without regard to personal comfort or regard for consequences, has taken up these great questions and secured their enactment into law."

Senator Teller expressed the opinion that the bill as amended by the senate was a much better measure than when it came to the senate. He expressed regret that there had been an effort to give the bill partisan coloring and denied the right of the president to call senators or members to the White House and instruct or request them how to conduct themselves. He would, however, give the president credit for giving life to the measure, for without that initiative he did not believe the republican party would have permitted the passage of the measure.

Foraker Explains His Position.

Senator Foraker said there were some sections that he would like to see enacted into law and that if he could vote upon those sections as such he would be relieved of great perplexity. He, however, had an unchangeable opinion on the right of congress to enter upon the rate making power and could not secure his own assent to an affirmative vote for the measure as a whole. Hence, though he stood alone, he meant to cast his vote against the bill, knowing if he voted alone he had support in the real convictions of many other senators.

Senator LaFollette took exception to Mr.

Dolliver's contention that the pending bill was in compliance with the president's recommendations. He said that the contrary was true and that it did not contain provisions that would enable the Interstate Commerce commission to ascertain what are either just or reasonable rates.
